Discourse on English Grammar

By Louis Hill Pratt, '58

It is alarming when one stops to realize that there are few persons with a thorough knowledge of what is generally known as American English. We stumble over it, abuse it and often say things we don't mean at all. We simply employ our words in such a fashion that they fail to represent our true thoughts. I say this is alarming because man is severely handicapped unless he can accurately communicate with his neighbors.

Assuming that there is a cause upon which every effect is predicated, the situation needs analyzing. Just what has caused erudite men to consider American English the most difficult of languages? Variation in the definition of words can definitely be cited as a determining factor. If I "fix$5 my car, I repair it, but if the chefs "fix" dinner, they prepare it. On the other hand, if I "fix" someone, I take revenge, and if my tailor will "fix" my trousers, he will mend them. It's just as simple at that!

Frequently Americans have difficulty determining the correct implication of terms themselves. Is it any wonder that foreigners find our language difficult and confusing? How can we teach more than we know about our Mother Tongue? To a foreigner, HOUSE would suggest a structure. Yet, the same HOUSE can be used as a verb implying the provision of shelter. Finally, one begins to wonder if anything is yet immobile. After a disgusting experience with such homonyms as rain, rein, meet, meat and the like, we discover the word READ. Is it "reed" or "red?" It could be either, depending on its use, since READ is both present and past tense of the infinitive "to read."

Seemingly, there is no limit to the difficulties and controversies of our language. To the European, Asian, African, South American and Australian, I offer this challenge: Develop an interest in our tongue, study it, practice it, master it and you will have accomplished a feat as great as Americans themselves and you too will have won a place in the hearts of the American people for all times.

Extensive Renovation Program Underway At Savannah State College

Savannah State College is making extensive plans in preparation for its 1956-57 school term which began on September 23 At one of his weekly press conferences Dr. W. K. Payne, President of Savannah State College, elaborated on the gigantic renovation program which has already been initiated at Savannah State College to make it better able to meet the needs of numerous students.

Wilcox Gymnasium is being renovated. The outside will be waterproofed and painted. The inside will be replastered and painted.

The rest rooms in Meldrim Hal lare being covered with quirrie tile. New toilet fixtures and individual steel metal stalls are being installed. A laundry room will be furnished for the women's area. Meldrim Hall is used as Administration Building with offices, classrooms and an auditorium.

Hill Hall, in which the library is temporarily located, is being rearranged and redecorated. The entire first floor will be used for the library in order to provide ecology space in preparation for the new library to be constructed in the near future. The south wing of the second floor of Hill Hall is being renovated to house the following offices: Education, Economics and Research, Social Sciences, Public Relations and Alumni Affairs, as well as quarters for the practical nurses enrolled in the State Area Trade School. The north wing is being redesigned for apartment quarters for single teachers. The floors are being covered with master-paved tile. Individual steel-metal stalls are being provided in the rest rooms. The stair-way, halls, as well as offices and living quarters are being re-plastered and painted.

Adams Hall, which serves as the main dining room, is being redecorated and painted. The floors in the food preparation kitchen, dishwashing and rest room area will be covered with quirrie tile, and the side walls with ceramic tile.

Morgan Hall, the center for the Division of Trades and Industries, State Area Trade School and Audio-Visual Center, is being painted and fire doors are being installed.

In order to make way for the construction of the technical building and new library, Dr. Payne pointed out, it was necessary for the Board of Regents to sell several frame cottages and Purnell Hall; brame buildings are being removed from the campus.

The Periscope

By C. Eugene Hubbard

The month of October finds the 1958 election year drawing near an end with tension and bitterness between Democratic and Republican candidates on the increase. Both parties are lashing from all angles at each other.

Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson has chosen President Eisenhower's H-Bomb policy as one of the major issues on which he plans to fight. Stevenson intends to carry his fight to the nation by means of radio and television in an attempt to continue his discussion on Eisenhower's policies.

Republican presidential nominee Eisenhower, on the other hand, said that Stevenson and his democratic running mate Estes Kefauver are making a "record of cluttering campaign oratory" and cited as examples, the issues of "big business" versus "small business", the draft, the H-bomb tests, national defense, and peace. Mr. Eisenhower also accuses Mr. Stevenson of political irresponsibility in implying that the republican administration cares little or nothing for the "Little Man."

Progress on the Suez crises has been slow in developing. According to United States Secretary of State John F. Dulls, Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov wants to keep the Suez dispute sizzling. However there's a chance for a Suez settlement before the November election. If this happens it will be hailed as a personal triumph for Mr. Dulles. Even though the Egyptians have been trying to soft pedal the Suez question they are beginning to feel the economic effects of the Western boycott.

Complaints have been made that Negroes in the South are being deprived of their voting rights. The United States Department of Justice asked Congress to investigate whether Negroes are being deprived of voting rights in Pierce county, Georgia and in Benchits and Rapides Parishes, Lousiana.

The American League Fennant winners, New York Yankees won a seven game world series. In this series the Yanks had the aid of two young pitchers who contributed magnificently in contributed magnificently in helping the Yanks to win. In the fifth game of the series Yankee pitcher Don Larson pitched the first perfect game ever to be pitched in the history of a world series game. In the seventh game during Johnny Kucks pitched the Yankees to baseball's World Championship when he pitched a three hitter, defeating the Dodgers 9-0.

With the ending of the 1956 world series, the Brooklyn Dodgers are off on their tour of the Pacific and Japan. Casey Stengel has been named manager of the Yanks for two more years.

Humor

Susie: Did you hear of the girl whose first husband was a millionaire, second husband an actor, third husband a minister and fourth an undertaker?

Mary: No. How did that happen?

How to Win Friends And Influence Professors

Oklahoma Daily writer Ed Turner has come up with a new way of college living which, in keeping with the times, he calls "classmanship." Briefly, he says, it means the knack of frustrating a well-meaning professor to such an extent that he will want to quit his chosen profession as an educator and go to work for a munitions factory. Here are some of his rules:

"First of all: always be late to class. Upon entering NEVER look meek or apologetic for disturbing the class. Appear surprised as if this section was scheduled to meet at this time or even look hurt that they could go on without you. Many an accomplished classman has caused the professor to thumb quickly through his class bulletin to see if perhaps they should have met at 8:35 instead of 8:10.

Disagree openly with the professor. An economics instructor says in his most profound and sonorous tones: "The theories of Adam Smith are the foundations of our modern system of economics." You say in an audible whisper: "But that's So passe" . . . making him look as if he had an old pair of plus-fours and was shouting 23 skidoo instead of delivering a lecture.

Leavemanship is another effective gambit that will add sparkle to every class room. About 10 minutes before the class is over slam your book shut, zip up your notebook, tuck your pencil neatly in your pocket and begin tapping your foot spasmodically, whistling to yourself, if you are a poor whistler. At five minutes before the hour, scoot up on the edge of your seat, alternating your gaze between the wall clock and your watch, shouting "X minus 5, X minus four, X minus three" . . . right up until the end of the hour."

YOU HAVE TO COME TO CLASS

(ACP)—Freshmen and sophomores at the University of Connecticut are faced with compulsory class attendance this year. Under a new ruling, they're expected to attend all registered classes and if, for any reason, a Freshman's number of absences equals the number of credits for the course, his case will be called and reviewed. Penalties will range from restriction and probation to suspension from the University. University officials think the new ruling will raise the standards of academic achievement among the freshmen and sophomores.

President Addresses First Assembly

On Thursday October 4, during the regular all-college assembly, Dr. W. K. Payne, President of Savannah State College, delivered his Annual Message to the members of the college family. The President extended greetings to those present.

He stated—"I believe that we have all assembled here at Savannah State College because we believe in education." If we go forth with this concept in mind, all of our experiences will coincide with this belief. This premise will influence our efforts and activities."

President Payne further stated that "Our assemblies are a part of our educational program. For this reason they are compulsory . . . Assemblies are not called unless it is believed that they will contribute to the educational program. Education covers more than the courses one takes."

There approximately one thousand persons assembled in Meldrim auditorium heard the President state that "Many of you are already facing problems that you had not anticipated. You will face many more." One should long for the ability to face problems instead of the absence of them. There are many things to be done other than attending college but attending college is the main job at Savannah State College now.

Students were reminded that "You are living in an age filled with the wonders of civilization. The opportunities that are presented to college men and women today are greater than at any other time. No matter what your state may be today as far as your clothes, friends, and the like are concerned, you are the possessor of a great opportunity if it is your privilege to attend college today. We believe that Savannah State College has a reservoir of advantageous educational experiences for the thirsting student. If you look hard enough and seek earnestly enough, you will find them. If you will, you can make this academic year 1956-57 the most illuminating in your experience."

Young lady presenting parking ticket at police station: "Did one of your men lose this? I found it on my windshield."

Teacher: "Egbert, if you're not chewing gum, what is that lump in your mouth? Candy?"

Egbert: "No ma'am, I'm soaking a prune to eat at lunch."

Savannah State Co-eds Greet the "Duke" — Rita Youmans, Blanche Flipper, Carolyn Patterson and Janie Dearing were among the lovely Savannah State co-eds who escorted Duke Ellington around the campus during his visit to the campus on October 3.

Duke Ellington Visits Campus

By I. A. McIver

Even though Wednesday, October 3, 1956, was the day on which the initial game of the 1956 World Series between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers was being played, and in spite of the fact that Mickey Mantle had just clouted a two-run home run to give the Yankees the advantage just as the "Duke" was arriving on the campus, the students of Savannah State relinquished their box seats beside the television sets to hear the inimitable Duke Ellington play some of his compositions on the Steinway in Meldrim auditorium.

After the "Duke" played such numbers as "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," "I'm Beginning to See the Light," and many of his other compositions, the members of Delta Eta Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity presented him with a monogram bearing the Alpha Phi Alpha insignia.

Before departing, Ellington made his final and famous statement, "I Love You Madly." Throngs of autograph hunters and amateur photographers prevented him from leaving before they had secured his signature or snapshot.

The Creative Corner

J. Campbell, Jr.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," says the poet John Keats. But precisely what is this thing which brings to the individual such eternal joy? Is it a face which with the years withers away like the green leaves of Spring with the coming of Winter? A building that crumbles before the onslaught of a gigantic tidal wave or an earthquake? Is beauty a lasting work of art reaching its culmination in the enigmatic smile of Da Vinci's Mona Lisa — and the delicate symmetric balance of the Grecian statue, Venus de Milo?

Is beauty a relative concept arising out of the personal subjective feeling of an individual, when confronted with a pleasing external object?—or is it an absolute, invariable, universal concept which brings a feeling of joy, as expressed by Keats, forever to him who perceives it? Is beauty eternal or simply a fleeting phenomenon, which once awakening the senses to a supreme state of felicity, dies softly away, leaving one with but a dim, image that is never fully recaptured again?

What is beauty?—the schools of thought are many and there are numerous theories—but I will tell you what beauty is. Beauty is the rising and setting of the eternal sun; an ephemeral glimpse of a rainbow which gently fades away at the end of a shower on a cool summer's day. Beauty is the jungle—beauty is the quiet, peaceful, free of the tiny brook in the Dakota Hills. Beauty is the wild, savage, untamed, beat of the tom-toms, echoing across the dark, unlighted, African continent—the restrained, melodious, and harmonious blending of a Classical symphony, floating gayly, blissfully, through the walls of a great concert hall. Beauty is the coming of Winter—the sad passing of Spring. Beauty is the unseen wind, rushing across plains and prairies, singing its joyful song to all.

Beauty then, transcends national boundries—favors no one, but manifests itself to all who can recognize and appreciate its qualities. Beauty abounds in nature, and in the art which man has created. Objects of inestimable beauty surround us every day. It is up to us to learn to appreciate the beauty with which nature and man have so richly endowed us.

COLUMBUS, OHIO—(ACP) — All those stories about college athletes who can't spell their own names fall to pieces as a result of this story. It's about Kent State University and comes via the College Crossroads column in the Ohio State Lantern.

It seems Kent State has a varsity filled only with athletes, each of whom participates in a varsity sport and also helds down an outside job. That dorm rankled above both the all-fraternity and all-men's grade averages for the past quarter.

SSC Presents First Lyceum Program

The Lyceum Committee of Savannah State College presented on Thursday evening, October 18, at 8:15 P.M., the Robert Joffrey Dancers, one of the newest dance companies on the American musical stage. This group's accent was on entertainment and the production was designed to bring a new idea in dance programs. The program consisted of a combination of romantic ballet, dramatic dance in the Spanish style and musical comedy dance in the best American tradition, with a liberal sprinkling of song.

Three leading young American dancers headed the company of seven: Glen Tetley, Beatrice Tompkins and Gerald Arpino. TV fans readily spotted Mr. Tetley who has danced on nearly all the major video revues. He has also been featured in opera ballet, in Broadway musicals and in concert dance here and in Europe. Since 1951 he has been a TV "regular" at Christmas time in a dancing shepherd in the annual telecasts of Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Beatrice Tompkins has toured the U. S. and Europe as soloist with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and with the New York City Ballet. The dark-haired dancer was also prima ballerina of the San Francisco Opera.

Gerald Arpino is another young veteran of TV, who has also been featured on Broadway in "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Bless You All" and with the May O'Donnell Modern Dance Company. Latin America has also had him as soloist with the Nana Gollner-Paul Petroff Ballet.

A triple threat supporting performer in the company is an extraordinary young man named John Wilson. He demonstrated his gifts as a dancer, a baritone and a pianist. At the age of 25, Mr. Wilson has also been teacher, a prolific composer and arranger and a director of dramatic works.

Choreography and staging of the program were done by Seattle-born Robert Joffrey whose ballet productions for Ballet Theatre, for the Ballet Rambert of London, and for the NBC Television Opera Theatre have marked him as one of the leading newcomers to the dance. One of his original ballets was featured on the program which was held in Meldrim Auditorium.

Cooperation, Where Is Thy Sting?

Cooperation, according to the Merriam-Webster Collegiate Dictionary, means working jointly for a mutual benefit. The same word when used to describe the actions of our students means just the opposite. Why is it that something has caused the school spirit to sink to such a low level?

It is the opinion of this column that something has killed the school spirit of our students. One no longer hears the expression, "Let's give it the old college try." Even the Greek letter organizations are lagging. Where is the competitive spirit that we usually find in groups of that type? It may not have been noticed, but our homecoming activities were affected by this very low cooperative spirit. Wherever floats and cars were being decorated, very small groups were doing all of the work. Each of these groups was part of a larger group that should have been working. Even though this column realizes that this is a subject much too broad to speak about, it also feels that these observations must be placed before the public.

Returning to the subject of homecoming, I should like to make mention of the fact that the float of the Campus Queen should always be the most beautiful. Yet, only the Student Council President and a few steadfast members of the council decorated the float. This has happened for the past three years. Why is it that out of an enrollment of over one thousand, only five people worked on the Queen's float? It is the responsibility of every student attending this institution to work on a project of this type.

This column has expressed the opinion of a few; it is up to the many to decide if this opinion will stand up under the bombardment of public criticism. At any rate, the fact remains, school is made up mainly of students, regardless of the number of officials responsible for administration. Any school is only so good as the students that are enrolled. The success of any school rests on the shoulders of each individual. He can let his shoulders sag and drag the name of the school in the mud, or he can hold them erect and carry the school's banner high.

This column would like to be quoted as saying: "This is our school; let's cooperate with all of its programs; they are offered for the benefit of all."

Clevon Johnson.

Six Day School Week In The Making

Within the next five years it may be necessary to hold college classes on Saturdays to take care of the additional students who will be attending universities by that time. High school students should be used to that procedure because they will probably be on a six-day week before the college.

In making this prediction, Dr. H. J. Sheffield, director of admissions and registration at the University of Southern California, said that by using Saturday as a school day, enrollments can be expanded by as much as one-fifth. He sounded the following warning "don't":

"Don't offer fewer personal services and less individual help to students simply because there appears to be an endless supply with which to replace your drop outs.

"Don't push your part-time student, or students who belong to some other marginal category, out of your school without considering them individually. Realize that many of our best citizens have worked their way through college at advanced ages and in considerably more than the usual four years.

"Don't limit your enrollment to the number you can accommodate in your present dormitory space. Investigate governmental and other housing plans that will make possible added enrollment.

"Don't expand your enrollment to a point where you cannot offer a sound academic program. Reecognize that it is easily possible to do little for too many.

"Don't be misled into a belief that the problems of admissions, enrollment and retention will be confined to undergraduates. Realize that graduate schools, professional schools, and advanced study at all levels through the doctor's degree must be provided."

The Periscope

By C. Eugene Hubbard

For the past few months all the world's attention has been focused on the Middle East crisis, where the seeds of World War III could be sprouting.

After Britain and France destroyed the Soviet equipped Air Force of Egypt, crippled the small Egyptian fleet, and wrecked much of the organized land forces of that country, a cease-fire followed. Now the U. N. is organizing a Police Force that will move to enforce a truce. It has been reported that the main objective of the British-French action was to drive Egypt's dictator, Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, from his position of power; Col. Nasser, however, still remains in power. The Suez Canal is not under control of British troops. It remains blocked. This again is a failure of British-French movements.

Russia threatened to send what they termed volunteers for Egypt's army if Britain, France and Israel delay withdrawal of their troops from Egypt and warned that she may use force if these countries defied U. N peace moves.

This is a move Soviet leaders have made down through the years, and on many similar occasions.

Reports have been made that because Britain feels that the U. S. failed them in the Middle East crisis, they are now planning to support Red China's bid for a seat in the U. S. The British had agreed to back U. S. efforts to keep Red China out of the U. N. for at least one more year in erturn for U. S. backing in the Middle East.

The crisis in the Middle East with its continued uprisings leads one to wonder:

What lies ahead now in the turbulent Middle East?

Is the Soviet Union plotting another Korea type war there?

Is World War III in sight?

Can the U. N.'s police force actually maintain peace in Egypt?

Can the U. N. order any nation around?

THINGS MUST BE GETTING MIGHTY ROUGH

We knew that beef prices were down, but had no idea they were as low as this story from the Kansas State Collegian indicates.

A new depth was reached this week on the cattle market. A farmer down in Missouri sent a 2-wek-old Jersey calf to market. It sold for $1.25. The sales barn charges 60 cents for commission, 25 cents for yard fees and 5 cents for insurance.

For a minute, the farmer thought he had a neat 35-cent profit. Then the trucker handed him a $1 statement for hauling. So, in the end, he lost 65 cents.

The world's best afterdinner speech: "Waiter, give me both cheeks."

Clark Appointed To Scholarship Board

President Dwight D. Eisenhower has appointed Dr. Felton O. Clark, president of Southern University, to membership on the Board of Foreign Scholarships, according to a formal announcement by the Department of State.

The Board was established by Public Law 584 of the 78th Congress (the Fulbright Act) specifying that the President of the United States name "10 United States citizens, prominent in public and private educational and cultural activities" for the purpose of selecting students and educational institutions qualified to participate in the program, and to supervise the exchange program, authorized by the Fulbright Act.

Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, president, University of Alabama, is chairman of the board. Other members include: Dean Joseph Nuesse, Catholic University of America; Dr. John N. Andrews, Veterans Administration; President Katherine G. Bigley, Keuka College, New York; U. S. Commissioner of Education Samuel Brownell; Dr. Bernice B. Cronkite, dean of the Graduate School, Radcliffe College; Roger A. Moore, Harvard Law School; Dr. Francis Scott Smyth, University of California Medical Center; and Anthony Philip H. Wilkie, Rushville, Ind.

The EEducational Exchange Program is now almost ten years old, during which period nearly 25,000 carefully selected people from the United States and twenty-eight countries have been recipients of grants. In 1955, grants were made to 4,358 individuals, from available funds of $14,528,467.06; it is expected that approximately the same number will be issued this year.

Baylor Has Dormitory For Married Students

The $375,000 48-apartment dormitory Baylor University has built for married students is becoming a "model plan" for other universities across the country. Dr. Roy J. McKnight, vice president, said that business officers from many other colleges have inquired about the unique dormitory plan so that they may duplicate the idea on their campus. Officials of the Home and Housing Finance Agency also have expressed favorable favor with Baylor's pioneering venture.

"All utilities paid" make the $75 monthly rental charge for the completely furnished and completely modern air-conditioned apartments "phenomenally cheap," according to housing experts. While no breakdown is shown on the bills, Baylor officials figure that the cost includes $45 rent on the space itself, $10 for furniture, $10 for utilities, and $10 for the year-round heating and cooling system.

Dr. McKnight and Dean of Men W. C. Perry "dreamed up" the building while facing a critical need for housing accommodations for married students. The apartment dormitory is arranged in two separate buildings comprised of 24 apartments each. There are two floors, six apartments on each level on each side of the building. Long open porches open on each side. The building cost, all told counting land, construction and furniture, about $375,000—or about $8,300 per unit.

N. Y. U. Professor Defends Fraternities

A New York University professor, Elmer D. Mallery, recently defended fraternies during a speech before a YMCA in that city. Said Professor Mallery: "If the fraternity is what its enemies say it is, then it is hard to understand the encouragement and support that have been given to fraternities during the past century by the better American colleges."

The Professor went on to say that the congenial environment found in fraternities is of great importance. He also added that residence on campus should be a basic requisite for campus life.

Professor Mallery emphasized the fact that although a limited number of students live and work together in a fraternity, tolerance for differences of opinion, high standards of taste, and good conduct are developed. He also declared that by democratic self government in the chapter house "fraternity men become better fitted to assume the larger responsibilities of the student council and other college organizations.

Mallery told the YMCA audience that a limit should be placed on the number of members in a chapter. "If there are over thirty," he warned, "the chapter will be headed for trouble."

A questioner asked the professor if fratrnities are the nucleus of bias groups. In reply he said that students in fraternities should be allowed to pick their own friends."

Business Internes At S. S. C.

Savannah State College, through its Department of Business Administration, again cooperates with the Student Marketing Institute in its program of providing marketing, sales and sales promotion experiences and earnings for students majoring in business. The Student Marketing Institute seeks to locate a wider market on college campuses for the use of products of its clients through individual campling. A faculty supervisor is selected to supervise, train and assist students in this marketing function. Willie Telfair, Junior, majoring in business administration, is student representative of SMI for the second year, in the sampling of American tobacco products.

The Reader's Digest is interested in acquainting college students and faculty with the magazine that is read by twice as many college graduates as any other magazine. This was done by a special introductory subscription rate which ended November 12. Of greater interest was the big $61,000 College Contest, open only to college students and faculty. The contest offered cash prizes to individuals and donations to college scholarship funds. Student representatives were Misses Rosa Lee Boles, Leonora Whitehead, Christine Woodruff, Irene Derry and Messrs. Daniel Washington and Leon Coverson.

Another client of specialized marketing is the Johnson Publications, publishers of Ebony Magazine. Book Week Observance

Nov. 25 to Dec. 2, 1956
Theme: It's Always Booktime

Modern man seems to be on a twenty-four hour merry-go-round. One cannot say to him—"If time be heavy on your hands, do this or that" because there never seems to be any time left over at the end of the day. All America has worked to put more leisure time in that twenty-four hours by shortening the work week. One might well inquire of the use to be made of this prized commodity. It is hoped that some of it will be devoted to reading. It seems, however, that reading is fast becoming a lost art as so many people now depend on television and radio for information and entertainment.

Once each year the Book World spotlights the art of reading. The College joins in this annual observance. This season Powell Laboratory School will present Marjorie Barrow's play "The Enchanted Door" in College Assembly, Thursday, November 29. The culminating activity will be given by the College Library during the Sunday Vesper hour. Immediately after this program Open House will be held in the Library.

Won't you take some time to help your College celebrate National Book Week?

Common Goals Of Everyone

One of the results of the Self Study Committee at the University of Wichita has been the formulation of desired objectives in a university education. The Committee explained that these objectives should be common to all individuals irrespective of their vocational objectives:

1. To develop personal and social resources and participation nin activities conducive to good physical and mental health.

2. To develop effective citizenship through a thorough knowledge of the democratic process of political institutions.

3. To develop the ability to communicate effectively through the spoken and written word; to read and listen with understanding, and to converse freely with persons of divergent interests.

4. To develop an understanding of the historical legacy of men, its contributions to the contempory scene, and an understanding of the history of the United States.

5. To develop the understanding and practice of moral and spiritual values.

6. To develop an understanding of the basic principles of the natural science and their impact on modern society.

7. To develop basic mathematical skills and an understanding of them as an instrument of reason.

8. To develop an understanding of the cultural heritage of man as found in philosophy, literature, music, and art.

9. To develop an understanding of his potentialities to enable the individual to make an intelligent choice of vocation.

10. To develop competence in orderly and critical thinking and to stimulate a desire for continuous intellectual growth.

11. To develop a sense of vocation motivated by the highest imperatives of service to mankind.

Is Co-Education Desirable?

New York University is faced with the question of whether co-education is desirable. There seems to be at least a chance that the school . . . long a citadl for males . . . will start admitting female students.

Experts who conducted a $250,000 study of the University's operations have urged co-education at the earliest possible date. In support of that action, faculty members have presented the following arguments: "Co-education would make our students gentlemen . . . Our students as a whole have not had social experience . . . It would improve the social atmosphere.

On the other hand, opponents of the co-education move contend that it would destroy what they call "the desired separation of the student from his own environment." They contend that the University's chief advantage is that it is not co-educational and that to change this situation would be to rule out this advantage. They also say that male students might lose detachment if the girls moved in.

Are Entrance Exams Valuable?

The question of whether exams such as Junior College entrance tests are valuable has been debated for a long, long time. The Fresno Junior College Rampage recently published this editorial on the subject:

Many of the students who take the Junior College entrance tests which are given each year, complain that th tests are boring and time consuming and completely useless.

Let us consider the facts. Most students entering college have only a vague idea of their knowledge of the English grammar, literature, and vocabulary. They don't know whether or not they are capable of handling English 1A. Most young people cannot judge the amount of fact they are able to retain from their reading.

Let's take for instance a pre med student and face the hard facts. This particular student had better have a whopper of a vocabulary and an A class reading retirement percentage. A foreign language major or an education major had beer know his English grammar backwards and forwards. This English entrance test shows what particular individuals lack in certain phases of English and what they need to develop and what classes are best suited to this development.

As far as the aptitude test is concerned you may be the type of person who knows just what he wants and just what all his interests are. But believe it or not there are many young people who have not yet found their real interests in life and who haven't the vaguest notion of what vocation they're best suited for. By asking the JC student very personal questions and evaluating the answers, test scorers can determine a student's interests and vocational aptitude. And what could be more helpful to a tentative last entering college than this.

Scholarship Amendment Announced at University Of Pennsylvania

An amendment to the requirements for eligibility to hold a scholarship for students attending the University of Pennsylvania, was announced here by Douglas Dickson, secretary of the committee on scholarship and student aid.

The new amendment states that "an undergraduate scholarship holder must attain an academic average of 3.0 for the preceding academic year to hold a scholarship unconditionally for the n ext academic year."

The amendment also states that an undergraduate scholarship holder whose average in June for the preceding academic year is between 2.0 and 3.0 may have scholarship assistance renewed for one probationary year. If his annual average is less than 3.0 in June for his probationary year, his scholarship assistance will be subject to revocation, Dickson said.

A student in attendance must have a 3.0 average for the preceding academic year to be eligible for the initial award of a scholarship, he added.

There was an earthquake recently, which frightened the inhabitants of a certain town. One couple sent their little son to stay with an uncle in another town, explaining the reason for the nephew's sudden visit.

A day or two later, the parents received this telegram: "Am returning your boy. Send the earthquake."

Tigers Open Cage Season Against South Carolina State College

When the Savannah State Tigers open their cage season against South Carolina State College on December 3, Savannah will have two players on their squad who have been named to the all-conference team for three consecutive years. Robert (Robbie) Lewis and Noel (Snuffy) Wright, who are considered by many as two of the most colorful players in this section of the country, are Savannah State's only all-conference competitors for the 1956-57 cage season.

Lewis, captain of the Tiger's squad last season, was among the consistent scorers on the team. While serving in the army, Lewis was named to the all-army team for his excellent performance on the court.

Noel Wright

Noel Wright, who shares the honor along with Lewis of being one of the toughest little men in the conference, is also one of the most effective long-shot artists that Savannah State has ever produced. Aside from being a long-shot artist, Wright is one of the fastest players on the team and one of the leading rebounders in the conference.

In addition to Wright and Lewis, the Tigers will have such players as Robert Robbins (Savannah State's leading scorer during the early part of the 1955-56 season), Clevon Johnson, Charles Aibe, Thomas Adams, Charles Beard, Myles Oliver, Roy Fuller, Frank Gordon, Henry Jackson and several freshmen who will be out to capture the conference crown.

Last season the Tigers finished second in the conference and second in State tournament. The Savannah State Tigers lost their conference tournament to Albany State 72-74 and they were defeated by Morehouse in the finals of the state tournament.

The Tigerettes shared the conference crown with the girls of Albany State College and they were winners in tournament competition. The Tigerettes defeated Albany 36-34 for the tournament crown.

Marriage And College

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—(ACP)—There's been a lot of talk about the advantages and disadvantages of getting married while still in college. So, we pass along these observations by Professor Ralph Dakin of the sociology department at Kansas State. They were reprinted in the Syracuse Daily Orange.

Marriage and college can mix, according to Professor Dakin. He says that married students usually make higher grades. Dakin believes this is due to the increased security and responsibility. Students seem to feel that marriage actually helps their college work. And, in opposition to many studies, Dakin said that the divorce rate for college marriages is lower than for the comparable highly educated persons.

Commenting on the same subject, a Kansas minister has said that college marriages are much more dependent on the couple's level of maturity, the degree to which they want to make a go of marriage, and their common interests than upon the influence of college life. In other words, the success of a college marriage depends upon the same factors that influence any marriage.

Dramatics Class

The first meeting of the year for the Dramatics Class was held November 1, 1956. It was characterized by great interest and enthusiasm.

The officers for the year were elected. Robert Tindal, president; Alice Bevens, recording secretary and chaplain; E. Gunnar Miller, financial secretary; and Florence Bodison, reporter.

The Dramatics Class is working on the play "You Can't Take It With You" by Hart and Kaufman. Mr. T. E. Jordan, the advisor, is also play director. You can be sure that you will be hearing more about this fascinating play in the near future.

NATO Scholarships

For the second year the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will sponsor a scholarship program to further the study of the common traditions, historical experience and present needs of the North Atlantic community.

NATO will sponsor a series of exchanges among the NATO countries in two categories: scholarships and research fellowships and research fellowships.

At the request of the Department of State, the Institute of International Education (1 East 67th Street, New York City) will assist in the screening and recommendation of American students for the scholarship program. The Conference Board of Associated Research Councils (2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington 25, D.C.) will screen applicants for the research fellowships. All American candidates will be chosen by the Board of Foreign Scholarships, ten leading educators and educational administrators appointed by the President of the United States. These candidates will be submitted by the Department of State to NATO's international selection committee which will make the final awards from among applicants from all NATO countries.

Competition in the United States opened August 1 and closes November 1, 1956. Candidates who have applied for United States Government foreign study grants under the Fulbright Act may also enter the NATO competition. Awards for the 1957-58 academic year will be announced April 4, 1957, the 8th anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty.

Applicants for the NATO scholarships must be United States citizens in good health. Preference will be given to candidates with graduate training. Language proficiency will be essential for placement in non-English-speaking countries. Scholars will be selected on the basis of their scholastic record, the institutions at which they propose to pursue their studies, and their subject of study. Grants will be 500,000 French francs for one academic year of study plus travel expenses.

The international selection committee will aim at an equitable distribution of awards among the member states. This is a program for exchanges among all NATA nations rather than between the United States and a limited number of other countries.

The aim of the NATO fellowship program is is further the idea of an Atlantic Community by encouraging the study of the historical, political, legal, social, linguistic, economic and strategic problems that will reveal the common traditions, historical experience and present needs of the North Atlantic area considered as a community. Preference will be given to candidates in the humanities and the social sciences. Projects should be directly related to some aspect or problem of the Atlantic community.

The program has been established under Article 2 of the North Atlantic Treaty which states, "The Parties will contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well being. They will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage collaboration between any or all of them."

Last year NATO awarded 16 scholarships and research fellowships. U.S. winner was Miss Margaret M. Ball, Political Science Professor at Wellesley College, who will conduct research on the general subject of NATO and the Western European movement at London, Paris, Bonn and other European capitals.

Candidates for the limited number of NATO scholarships should apply to the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

Students Vote To Begin Traffic Regulations

On Thursday, December 19, 1956 approximately one-fifth of the student body and a portion of the faculty voted 129-39 in favor of the recommendations made by the Committee on Motor Vehicles and Regulations to put into effect on a trial basis, whereby in the near future Savannah State will have county approved school zones, red blinker lights at the Fulliganl College street intersection, traffic regulation signs at the entrance to the campus. All traffic will travel one way in a counter clockwise direction with a few exceptions.

The roads that will remain two-way are: Taylor Road from Athletic Road to Fulliganl Avenue, Athletic Road from the campus to Skidaway Road and the road between the Home Economics building and the laundry will remain two way. To prevent violations of the rules certain fines have been recommended and approved and all cars are to have stickers.

According to the proposed plans, left turns near the cannon monument on College street and at the intersection of Athletic Road and Campus Street between Powell Laboratory School and Herty Hall will be prohibited, the maximum campus speed will be fifteen miles per hour and parking in front of the College Center in parking zones longer than ten minutes will be unlawful.

The proposals require all students, staff members and faculty to secure a sticker for twenty-five cents and place the sticker on the lower right hand corner of the front windshield. Failure to display the registration sticker will result in a one dollar fine for the first offense, three dollars for the second offense and five dollars for offenses above the second. Failure to secure stickers and the violation of other rules will result in fines identical to the ones set up for failing to display registration stickers.

Failure to appear and pay fines within five days of the offense adds fifty cents to the fine, excluding Saturdays, Sundays and college holidays. Should a student fail to pay his fines, his grades will not be issued and credits will not be granted.

Fines will be paid in the comptroller's office during its regular operating hours and records of student infractions will be kept in the Student Personnel Office.

Offenses range from speeding and reckless driving to parking on the grass and all violators

The Student and His Ideas

By Isaiah McIver

Students are often reminded that tomorrow they will become leaders and therefore they should practice formulating ideas and form the habit of expressing these ideas.

Words such as these sound very encouraging to the student at first; however, they soon realize that these phrases are only uttered because they sound beautiful in democratic societies.

The mere fact that an individual resides in certain sections of our beloved Democratic society prevents one from expressing his views. In many areas students and certain groups of the population are not permitted to be expressive. They can express their thinking only as long as their ideas are not contrary to the existing sentiments.

Being a resident of certain areas is not the only reason why individuals fail to express their ideas. If many among us who encourage the average student to be expressive were fortunate enough to hear the average student express his sincere ideas or beliefs, chaos would result.

A student is often encouraged to speak up when something happens or is happening that he does not condone. However, if he makes a suggestion to change the manner in which certain projects are handled at present,he will be reminded that there are those who know best because of experience. He will be told that there are individuals who are hired for the purpose of advising when the student gets off the beam. When one's, thinking is considered off the beam, many fail to observe that what was "once off" is "now on."

In many instances, the experienced fail to realize where advising ends and where dictatorship begins. It is said that people whose ideas are not accepted will eventually give up and fail to be expressive.

Since there is no single person or small group that knows what is best, everyone should be given consideration before any type of action is taken, especially if everyone is responsible for the proper performance of the particular event or is affected by the decision that is made.

If today's students are to be tomorrow's leaders, some of the factors mentioned above should be considered. It is said that if old age were the only source of wisdom, the country's ideas would be formulated at the homes for the aged. Evidently this is not true; those who will have to lead tomorrow should be given an opportunity today to practice for tomorrow's performance.

Those Resolutions

Have you noticed a marked difference in the behavior of your friend since he returned to school from his Christmas vacation? Does he seem to be more serious about school, spending most of his time in the library studying instead of sitting in the Center talking about the various instructors? Does he mention such strange sounding names and places as Egypt, Yemen, and Ghana? Has he asked you what is your opinion of the administration's new Middle East doctrine? If so, you are on the verge of losing a good friend, and those happy carefree days you enjoyed prior to Christmas will be lost forever, unless you do something real soon about the situation.

You have probably guessed the reason for your friend's rather strange ways by now — but if you have not — the change of behavior has come about simply because he has made a few New Year's resolutions and is doing his best to keep them. This means either that you will have to change, that is, you will have to find out what Yemen and Ghana are, what the new Middle East doctrine is (chances are you do not know what the old one was), spend your time studying, or lose your friend. Friendship is too precious to let a few old resolutions ruin it, so those resolutions will have to go.

However, if he has kept them this long, you are in for trouble, for anyone who keeps resolutions for more than a few days is

Biographies of Current Interest

Biography as a form of literature offers much to a reader. It has the power of inspiration, exploration and discovery. It is the easiest and most natural bridge from fiction to fact. All biography should be honest, simple, and above all, interesting.

The current titles reviewed here may or may not meet all of the standards required of a good biography. Their lasting appeal can be determined by time alone. But all of them are interesting and highly readable. Why not see if they meet your standards for a good book?

Fred Allen. Much Ado About Me. Such a title might suggest to a casual observer that here is another stuffy autobiography. But such is not the case at all. Instead, it is an amusingly told account of the story of John Florence Sullivan, of Cambridge, Mass., who became Fred Allen, America's wittiest comedian. It is also the story of the rise and decline of that past form of entertainment known as vaudeville. Although the present generation probably remembers Allen best as a radio comedian, vaudeville was his first love. Edwin O'Connor, in his epilogue to the book, says that it is "a rare and wonderful book by a rare and wonderful man, who in spite of having written literally hundreds of the wittiest and most felicitous letters of our time, did not for a moment consider himself to be really a good writer at all."

Marian Anderson. My Lord, What a Morning. Miss Anderson has recorded the story of her life in a most charming and yet unassuming manner. She has often minimized her accomplishments and the events which have happened during her career — especially the Constitution Hall episode. In spite of her modesty and reticence, the reader is able to follow Miss Anderson's life from her childhood, her first public appearance to the great concert halls of the world and finally to her appearance on the stage of the famed Metropolitan Opera House. One reviewer has stated that the story is told "with the simplicity and dignity and graciousness people have come to associate with her." To read this book is indeed a rewarding experience.

Poppy Cannon. A Gentle Knight: My Husband, Walter White. Poppy Cannon, Mrs. Walter White, has written a love story as well as a biography of her husband. It is chiefly concerned with the last six years of Mr. White's life, when he was in the limelight of his much publicized interracial marriage. The author naturally includes much of her own feelings and experiences which resulted from this union. It is interesting to note that she was often mistaken as the Negro as she was much darker than Mr. White.) In spite of the warnings received from their friends and colleagues in both races, the slights that were expected, to some extent, and the always present press, the couple managed to build for themselves a happy life which was ended by Mr. White's untimely death in 1955. The author has succeeded in reporting on two worlds in a manner both personal and analytical.

Billie Holiday. Lady Day Sings the Blues. Here indeed is what may be termed a very tough book. The famous blues singer writes quite plainly of what it is like to grow up as a child in a Negro slum. The shocking story also includes Billie's hard luck in her career, her marriage, and

A Message from the President

In some societies there is a definite age at which the youth become grown and assume full responsibility for their own lives. In America during the nineteenth century and early twentieth century, there was a common concept that the age of twenty-one for men and the age of eighteen for women represented the beginning of full responsibility for manhood and womanhood respectively. Under the changing social and economic conditions this concept has tended to fade out and become less general. In practically all levels of American education, from the elementary school to the graduate school, pupils and students are exercising degrees of responsibility. In the secondary schools and colleges will be found many who carry the responsibilities of full citizens. It is no longer a matter of age that determines the exercise of responsible citizenship. In a number of states the recognition of this tendency has been encouched in laws which permit young people to vote at the age of 18. The selection of the low age limit indicates that many become able to participate in the affairs of the community long before they reach the age of eighteen.

It is to be expected that the young people in our colleges today will exercise citizenship throughout their college careers. To be a good citizen, a college student must do more than pass his courses with a grade of "C", or above, or refrain from interfering with other persons or things. Every citizen, irrespective of age, needs to be informed on matters relating to the community, its operation, its needs, and its ideals. To be thus equipped one must gain his information through personal contact, reading, visitation, learning, and observation. Students who do not read the newspapers, listen to the radio, watch television, discuss the important events of the day, are limiting the possibilities for becoming effective citzens. In addition to the foregoing, a good citizen develops opinions, participates in a limited number of activities, and prepares for continuous improvement and growth.

There is little reason for college students to assume that they will be excused from shouldering responsibilities that grow out of their living and studying. A survey of how American college youth live, think, participate and plan will reveal that they possess abilities to perform the full responsibilities of citizenship. If there are drives and campaigns in the community for health and other types of united effort, the students should plan to participate in terms of their means and abilities. Observation reveals that many college students prefer to remain immature and irresponsible. To prolong the period of dependence delays the development of the individual. Wherever possible college students should seize the opportunity to participate in the life of their community and college and to contribute towards their development. There should be a willingness also to share the difficulties, restrictions, and regulations which are required for the moment. The best citizens today and tomorrow will be those who have equipped themselves as they participated in learning and living.

accepted a teaching position at Florida A and M University. After serving as head of the String Department at Florida for one year, he was drafted into the military service. After serving his tenure he returned to Florida for a short period before returning to Millikin University to continue his studies under Professor Hess.

While studying for the Master of Music degree, he made appearances with the Millikin Civic Symphony Orchestra and evoked widespread acclaim.

After obtaining the Master of Music degree, he returned to Florida where he has made and is still making significant contributions to the cultural life of the campus. He is an accomplished musician with splendid talent who has given concerts in many parts of the Mid-west with great success.

Critics contend that Hayden, one of the few real Negro violinists in the country, faces a bright future.

Those Resolutions

dealy serious. The approach must be subtle and tales of the good old days must be introduced with caution and at the most opportune time. A very good time would be right after he has flunked an examination, after studying the wrong material half the night. Then you could remind him of the days he flunked with a 0 and is losing any sleep. A number of schemes can be thought of to put him back on the right track.

How will you know when he has thrown those resolutions out of the window where they rightfully belong? Simple — when he stops entering class before the roll is called, stops giving correct answers, stays out of the library, and loses interest in the Far, Middle, and Central East.

Perhaps society gains a knucklehead, but what is more important is that you will have regained your good old pal, unchanged and unconditioned by the educative process.

her dope addiction. Perhaps some of the sordid details could have been omitted without affecting the story. But all of them must be true. Time magazine reported that "Billie sings a sad, sad song."

Eartha Kitt. Thursday's Child. Another young star of television and stage has set down the story of her life. In a much less shocking manner than that used by Billie Holiday, Miss Kitt has written of her rise to fame and fortune. She spent the first seven years of her life as the unwanted charge of a tenant farmer in North, South Carolina. Then she lived in Harlem as the ward of a psychoneurotic aunt. Because of a stroke of fortune, Eartha began singing and dancing with the Katherine Dunham troupe and she remained with them for several years. She began working alone in a Paris nightclub where she sang "C'est Si Bon" and suddenly became a noted entertainer. Here indeed is an extraordinary success story.

Style in Colleges

The first-year collegian wants to make the best adjustment possible to the new world about him, whether he's come across country to school, or he's attending the local city college down the block. One pre-requisite to fitting-in smoothly is the way he looks.

Today's college man may or may not be a football hero, ergonometry master or library wizard, but one thing he will be is clothes-conscious, reports the Men's Fashion Foundation of Casper, Incorporated, manufacturers of "Jockey" brand underwear and Coopers hosiery and sportswear. The Foundation, after a recent merchandising survey, notes that the BMOC of today is dubbed by many fashion experts the best dressed in history. Often, the college man is the pace setter in men's fashions.

Good grooming is, of course, the first pre-requisite to any wardrobe requirement, the Foundation states. A cashmere jacket on an Adonis who needs a shower and a shave is like the house without the foundation! Once a man has acquired a basic list of good grooming essentials he's ready to learn how to look like a "man in a million." The beginning college student will find several new innovations this fall, 1956, but the staple items are more important than ever.

Oxford, button-down shirts in colors and white, and slim ties in neat rep stripes and foulard patterns come up for mention. He'll be attracted by the latest glen plaid and vertical stripe patterns in sport jackets and the new lighter colors of tans and gray in 3-button worsted or flannel suits. Two pairs of slim-fitting, lightweight flannel or worsted slacks, sportshirts in classic styling and several v-neck sweaters, both the sleeveless pullover and the crewnecked, bulky, long sleeved varieties, will take care of his campus needs.

White bucks are being replaced by tennis shoes on many campuses this year, the Foundation concurs. These, too, are worn with everything from bermuda shorts and long socks to khakis and the new Italian-look sweater-shirts.

Your Stake In A Free Press

You who work on college publications and who are thus aware of some of the stirrings within professional journalism probably think us frenetic in our attitudes about freedom of the press.

The unhappy truth is that we are not emotional enough about the subject. You people here are among the generation which is about to inherit the United States — and you will inherit one far less free than that into which I and my colleagues came.

For there has been a steady erosion of freedom. More and more doors have been closed to the press with the result that the people of the United States know less and less about the operations of their government — on every level. Never before have we faced such an appalling degree of governmental censor-

The Message

Sunrise brings the glow,
Daybreak brings the message;
Stillness rubs the sleep from her eyes,
Nature stirs in her bed, listens, then arises.

Noon takes over with grasping fingers,
Sunset translates the message to her neighbors,
Moonrise whispers to the stars and waits over the harbor.

ship as exists at this very moment.

Over the past several years, many of us in journalism have been battering at these doors of suppression and raising a hue and cry. But we cannot in honesty say that we have yet succeeded in arousing all the publishers, editors and reporters.

What victories we have won have been in the main little ones. And they will continue to be little ones until we can shake up and wake up every publisher and every editor—and a majority of our citizens—to the terrible evil that we have been battling.

Are you aware of the system of governmental censorship in effect—a steadily creeping censorship—which daily deprives you of information you must have if you are to make intelligent decisions?

Some of you probably know it, but I do not believe that most of you are aware of the extent of this censorship—and I maintain that the fault is largely that of newspapers and newspaper executives who seem to think that these are trifling matters and of no deep concern to the people.

Is it trifling when for the first time in our national history we have saddled onto the civilian branches of government powers of regulating news heretofore only held by the military in times of war?

It is brushed aside with the explanation that it is merely the power of classification. Classification, nuts! That's merely a pretty word for censorship.

And they have the gall to say to us: "Show us where these classification powers have been abused and we will review these cases."

How in the name of Heaven can you show abuses when the news is blacked out from you?

In this connection, I am speaking of President Eisenhower's Executive Order 10 501. This is the successor to the iniquitous 10 290 which was issued by former President Truman in September, 1951.

That original order gave to 45 civilian agencies of government the right to classify information — "restricted," "confidential," "secret" and "top secret." This order gave these sweeping powers to such agencies as:

The American Battle Monuments Commission.

The Arlington Memorial Amphitheatre Commission.

The Commission of Fine Arts.

The Committee on Purchase of Blind-Made Products.

The Indian Claims Commission.

The National Capital Housing Authority.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The National Forest Reservation Commission.

And the Smithsonian Institution.

These are just a few of the list of 45 agencies. Could any intelligent citizen accept powers of censorship given to such agencies as these? Yet this was the order of the Government.

When a committee went to Mr. Truman to protest, that astute gentleman waved his hands in that familiar way he has and said: "Well, boys, you just sit down and write an Executive Order that you think will do the trick. If we like it, we'll take it."

What a wily move that was. How could newspapermen attempt to draft a censorship order? They had to back away in dismay, with the President blandly saying, well, he'd put it up to them, but they weren't willing to cooperate.

When Mr. Eisenhower was elected in 1952 we went back to the battle. All during the spring and summer and early fall of 1953, we fought to get our story across to governmental officials —to get the order revoked. But it wasn't in the cards. Too many politicians liked what they had been given on a silver platter—and they had no intention of giving it up.

Meanwhile, the stupidities of bureaucracy were included in all the daily suppressions. There were—and there undoubtedly are today—girl clerks snipping articles out of newspapers and stamping them "Confidential." And so, too, with radio texts—texts already delivered.

We did succeed in getting a compromise—one of those little victories I mentioned earlier. We were able to get 28 of those 45 agencies tossed out of the censorship system — no longer holding the authority to classify information.

And they threw us a bone by scrapping the "restricted" clause. Which meant only that "confidential" took the place of both "restricted" and "confidential."

We were promised ever so faithfully that we were going to get continuous review of the classification practices of the remaining seventeen agencies. More important, said the Government soberly, review would no longer rest with the head of a department. The power would now be in the hands of the President's attorney and special counsel.

When he announced the revision, Attorney General Brownell admitted publicly that "we actually have buildings full of classified documents" and he said the new system would work toward prompt declassification all along the line.

The record is that in all this time we have never been able to get the President's special counsel to discuss these matters with us. Indeed, we can't even get the courtesy of a reply to letters.

Today, these seventeen departments of government—civilian agencies like:

The Department of Agriculture,

The Federal Power Commission,

The National Science Foundation,

The Post Office Department.

The Tennessee Valley Authority,

The Departments of Labor and Interior and Health, Education and Welfare, and

The Small Business Administration,

all continue to use this military-type authority to suppress news. The Executive Order under which they operate provides no penalty whatever for abuse of these powers to conceal or withhold information that could safely be released.

This is our own Iron Curtain in America—a curtain that is being drawn tighter all the time.

Only last year, we in professional Journalism were astounded by the Defense Department's fatuous proposal that there should be screened out of non-security news whatever might be interesting to an enemy. This directive, as issued by Secretary Charles E. Wilson and his deputy, R. Karl Honaman (and later given Mr. Eisenhower's blessing) stipulated that there must be a determination "of whether release or publication . . . would constitute a constructive contribution to the primary mission of the Department of Defense."

Do you know what "constructive" means in this context? I'm not sure I know. What I do know, though, is that the acceptance of this kind of formula is the simplest way to turn all power into the hands of some clique that can then decide to tell you what news you ought to have—based on their interpretation of what is constructive for them.

I am being no rabble-rouser when I point out that this was the Hitler way, the Mussolini way, the Stalin way, the Franco way, the Peron way.

I will grant that these men in American Government are not dictatorial types. I will grant that they are perfectly sincere. But I submit that the path they are following is a road that leads to a dictatorship. They are foregoing the ideal tools for the use of an inscrupulous man or group of men.

In winning the 1956 conference title, Savannah State was led by such outstanding players as Jolly Stephens, Jesse Carter, Willie Batchelor, Roland James, Louis Ford, Ulysses Stanley, Henry Wesley, Joseph Cox, Hosie Harris, Robert Butler, Willie Dukes, Leroy Brown, Donald Davis, Moses King and Moses Calhoun.

Savannah State's forward wall was centered around Willie Dukes, Jolly Stephens, Joseph Cox, Louis Ford, Jesse Carter, Leroy Brown, Donald Adams and Moses Calhoun. Intramural Athletics

By Odell N. Weaver

Coach R. Kenneth Washington, Assistant Professor of Health and Physical Education and Director of Intramural Athletics, has organized leagues in volley ball, football, and basketball, and later in the year he will organize leagues in badminton, softball and track.

The College All Stars won the Championship in volley ball with a 9-0 record. The Carpentry and the Omegas were tied for second with a 3-2 record.

The Championship football game will be played in the very near future between the Seniors and Sophomores with the Seniors being favored to cop the Championship.

Coaches of the various organizational teams are getting their basketball teams ready for competition in the season's opener, which will be played shortly.

Director Washington has a pamphlet out with rules and regulations governing all activities that are covered on the intramural program. Coaches of the team may secure these pamphlets from the Director's office in order to orientate their team on intramural proceedings.

Seniors Blank Juniors 32-0

With Ray Fuller at quarterback, the Seniors outclassed the Juniors on defense and offense in winning the first intramural football game 32-0.

In the first period Richard Washington caught two touchdown passes. Leading 12-0 the Seniors received a score from the Trade student, when Joe Louis Sweet turns in a long touchdown run, resulting from a long pass. Ray Fuller then brought life to the Seniors bench by running for the third touchdown. Johnnie Morton scored the final touchdown for the Seniors. The extra point attempt was good.

Four S.S.C. Players Bid Farewell

By Julius Browning

BASEBALL—Jackie Robinson has announced his retirement from baseball. Jackie Robinson was the first Negro in organized baseball. In the majors, Jackie has a .311 lifetime batting average. Jackie was the National League's "Rookie of the Year" in 1947, and National Batting Champion and Most Valuable Player in 1949. He helped the Brooklyn Dodgers to win six pennants and one World Series.

BASKETBALL — Wilt "the Stilt" Chamberlain, fabulous sophomore cage star who stands seven feet tall, has broken the individual scoring record for one game at Kansas University. He is also a candidate for All-American.

BOXING—Sugar Ray Robinson was defeated by Gene Fullmer on January 2. Fullmer is now Middleweight Champion of the World.

The 22nd annual "All Sports" Event will be held at the 100 per cent Wrong Jamboree January 31 — February 1, in Atlanta, Georgia. Included among the United States Stars will be Mildred McDaniel, only woman gold medal winner in track and field for America in the Olympics, and Lee Calhoun, first male athlete from an All-Negro enrolled institution to win a Gold Medal in the Olympics.

Miss McDaniel hails from Atlanta, Georgia and is a graduate of the Booker T. Washington High School. Mr. Calhoun is from Gary, Ind., and attends North Carolina State College. Other stars are: Frank Robinson, National League "Rookie of the Year" with 38 round trippers; Henry Aaron, National League batting champion, Lee Lorman as "Hammering Hank"; Bill Russell, the great All-American from San Francisco, a member of the U. S. Olympic Cage Team, and now a member of the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association; and Wilt "the Stilt" Chamberlain of Kansas University, a seven footer who is hard to stop, and specializes in the set shot. Chamberlain is the leading scorer in American Universities.

Louis Ford, one of the Tigers' 1956 co-captains and top scorer for 1956; Joseph Cox, one of Savannah State's top tackles; Robert "Jumbo" Butler, one of State's fullbacks; and Anderson Kelly, an end, played their final football game for the Savannah State Tigers when they defeated Paine College of Augusta, Georgia to capture the S.E.A.C. title.

Upon being informed that the Tigers were declared the S.E.A.C. conference champions, Ford and Butler commented that they are proud to have been participants on a championship team during their college careers.

The Savannah State Tigerettes will open their cage season against the Albany State Girls Basketball team January 16, 1957, in Wiley Gymnasium.

Coach Ella W. Fisher has begun making preparations for the new season and is expecting topnotch performance from seven returning lettergirls.

During an interview Coach Fisher stated that Lizzie Dawson, a freshman, has the potentiality of becoming a great star at the forward position.

As a whole, the team is minus the overall depths of last year's team. However, Conch Fisher is expecting fine performances from Louella Johnson, Susie Bonner, Mary Bonner, Reta Youmans, Jo Ann Tolbert, and Minnie Spivey. To support this squad will be Rosa Lee Brown, Doris Porter, Johnnie Mae Walker, and Delois Cooper playing at forward. Dorothy Williams, Eugenia Taylor, Carrie Greene, Altomese Burton, Asre Reynolds, Nell Catton, and Lou Verta Sharpe are the reserve guards on the team.

Gwendolyn Keith and Rosa Lee Moore, two outstanding forwards during last term were lost via graduation.

The Savannah State Tigerettes will play the Fort Valley State Girls' team on January 30 and will have a return engagement with the Albany State team in February.

Why Use Profanity?

I. McIver

It is said that one of the reasons why so many individuals use profanity is that they are unaware that there are other forms of discourse that are even more descriptive in their respective languages which are acceptable that may be resorted to describe an incident, a situation or an individual.

The fact that there are so many individuals who constantly indulge in or resort to profanity when they are attempting to be descriptive, forceful, colorful and persuasive makes it an unquestionable that there are many who are unfamiliar with many of the acceptable terms that can be used to obtain the same goals as those descriptive, unacceptable vocables commonly referred to as profanity.

In institutions of higher learning the inhabitants are not expected to use profanity in obtaining objectives which can be accomplished in a more intelligent and professional manner. However, in many institutions the same tactics employed by outside unprofessional and unintelligent sources are used by many of the low level aspiring professionals in our institutions.

Profanity used in the presence of male or female shows that the user has been improperly trained, that his culture has sunk below acceptable standards, that the user is disrespectful and that his vocabulary is very limited.

At one time it was rare indeed to hear profane words spoken on a college campus. However, today profanity seems to be as much a part of the age as progressive education. Is this new fad due to the fact that ladies and gentlemen do not demand as much respect today as they once did, or is it something that is inseparable from our present age?

There are certain basic principles that must be adhered to if the atmosphere in a college environment is to be more wholesome than the environs of the gutter. Since profanity and the gutter are so closely associated, college campuses throughout the world should campaign vigorously to destroy this contagious, crippling malady and locate an acceptable substitute.

The demanding of the respect that is due and the enacting of laws prohibiting the use of profanity among all who express the college walls would be a tremendous move toward making it less difficult for strangers to determine whether they are among inhabitants of our most undesirable circumjacencies.

What's Wrong With Our Programs?

I. McIver

During the past four quarters many of the students who support many of our activities here at the college financially have failed to be present at many of the affairs which they have made possible through the paying of an activity fee which is used to sponsor many of the cultural programs which are presented here on the campus.

Evidently there must be some dissatisfaction on the part of the students since they do sponsor the activities and fail to attend them.

Assuming that there is not a student among us who will willingly part with his money for a purpose for which he reaps no benefits and yet witnessing this type of action every time a lyceum feature is presented on the campus, makes the author think that the type of entertainment that is being presented is not chosen in accord with the sentiments of the majority of those who make these features possible.

Since there is none among us who has been a careful observer over a period of time who can truthfully say that our cultural activities, especially the lyceum features, have been attended by at least forty per cent of those who support the program financially, one feels as though some type of investigation should be made to determine why so few of the financiers are present at the presentation of such features.

If it has not dawned upon anyone to poll the students or the sponsors and let them suggest or decide who shall entertain them or what type of entertainment they desire, then the author is recommending that the student body be permitted to select its features. When this is done, there will be no reason to doubt that each feature that is presented in the future in the auditorium will have in attendance a greater majority of its contributors, provided that they are given an opportunity to select with advice from authorities the type of entertainment they prefer.

The Periscope

By C. Eugene Hubbard

Officials report that sanctions would not force Israel to yield; and reports that the Commodity Credit Corporation notes increase in farm price loss, are some major and important issues facing our nation and the world today.

Senator Byrd, a Democrat from Virginia, has made a proposal that Congress cut President Eisenhower's $7,800,000,000 budget by at least five billion dollars, in an effort to guard against inflation. Senator Byrd, who heads the Senate Financial Committee, revealed that he is drawing up an alternate budget calling for specific reductions in non-defense spendings. Byrd was quoted as saying that Eisenhower's budget is inflationary at a time when our nation is facing a definite threat of inflation. He said it represented an increase in domestic spending of seven billion dollars over outlays in the fiscal year 1956. He continued that he was still working on his proposed budget but it indicated that his attacks will be directed largely at what he termed "intrenched spending" on domestic projects. Senator Byrd added that the worst feature of the President's budget is that almost all of the increases it proposes in non-defense spending call for permanent and not emergency spending.

Mrs. Golda Meir reportedly said that hardships incidental to any United Nation economic pressure would not drive Israel away from the Gulf of Aqaba and mouth of Aqaba. Reporters quoted her as saying, "Israel cannot leave these points without guarantees of security against renewed Arab raids of the Strip and against a renewed Egyptian blockade of the Gulf which leads from the Red Sea to the Israeli Port of Elath."

United Nations Secretary General Hammarskjold worked on a report which he hopes will tell the Assembly that Israel had not complied with the Assembly's successive resolutions calling for withdrawal.

In Tel Aviv it was reported that Prime Minister Ben-Gurion has told President Eisenhower that Israel now insists on freedom of the Suez Canal passage as part of its Sinai and Gaza Strip evacuation price, but later reports revealed that western diplomats predicted that Israel will remove its forces out of Egypt as a result of U. S. support of its claim to free navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba.

Reports are that government losses in supporting farm prices during the Eisenhower administration have been nearly three times greater than the total losses during the preceding 20 years of the federal farm aid program. Deficits have been particularly heavy during recent years, reflecting accumulation of large surplus supplies and vigorous government efforts to get rid of them.

President's Message

In most of the undergraduate colleges in the United States some consideration is given to religion. Many institutions have a period designated as religious emphasis. During this period special effort is made to enlist the participation of all students and faculty personnel. The program usually includes the services of an outside individual who has been selected for his ability to make contributions in the area of religion. The vigorous activity centered about religion usually subsides after the evaluation report.

When one studies the extent to which religion functions in the life of each individual and the culture in which we live, one wonders how an area so important can be considered lightly for most of the weeks in the academic year. The limitations on inclusion of religion in the curricula offerings do not offer valid excuse for the omission. It is evident that all of the worthwhile learnings which young people and adults need can not be included in the ordinary college curriculum. Since much of the education is acquired through living and learning outside of the classroom, there is little ground for not providing for religion.

In general it is true that as the individual grows older, the individual's responsibility for his education becomes increasingly greater. Many of the extra-class activities, programs and movements associated with the colleges and developed to answer the needs of students for a broader and richer period of college education indicate the recognition of this principle. The values of religion constitute some of the most fundamental needs for effective living. Religion assists one in developing desirable attitudes toward living, tolerance, respect for others, willingness to understand, and the integration of personality. The Christian outlook on life is in harmony with the basic institutions of society—the family, the system of law and justice, the school, our democratic ideals, and our concept of a good citizen.

A study of our history and cultural development will reveal that religion has been responsible for the progressive extension and reinterpretation of our ideals and goals from generation to generation. It is reasonable to expect that the culture will continue to contribute to and be influenced by religion. While this is true of the society in which we live, it is likewise true of the individual personality. Many individuals finding life difficult and void of meaning have never discovered what wonders religion can work. One does not need to travel far or to talk with many individuals to find examples of how religion has given new meaning to life and behavior. Religion is something to be kept alive, to be used frequently, to be extended and deepened.

Purdue Students Must Make "C"

Students at Purdue University now have to work harder to be recognized as a Distinguished Student. The faculty this year agreed to raise the index necessary for Distinguished to 5.5 and to put the stipulation in the code that the student must pass each course with a grade of C or better.

With the changes made in Paragraph 24.00 of the University Code, it now reads as follows: Distinguished Students: At the conclusion of each semester the Registrar shall indicate which regular undergraduate students were distinguished in their scholastic work as indicated by the grades they received at the close of the semester.

Suitable publicity shall be given to the names of these students. To be cited as a Distinguished Student in any semester one must:

(a) Complete successfully all the courses to which he has been assigned with a grade of C or better except any that may have been cancelled without a semester grade.

b) Have completed at least 14 semester hours.

(c) Attain a semester scholarship index of at least 5.50.

Originally, the practice of recognizing a student with 5.00 index was started to honor approximately the top 10 per cent of the students. Either due to harder work on the part of the students or to liberalized grading on the part of the faculty, or perhaps due to both, the number of students who were recognized as Distinguished has increased over the years until 23 to 24 per cent of the students received this honor.

It was felt that there should be something to honor those students who are receiving still better grades, so the new stipulations were added. In its new form, the code will disqualify any student who has an incomplete, an unsatisfactory in any zero credit course, or receive a D, E, or F in any course. However, it is still possible to be distinguished the following semester if the student gets excellent grades in the remainder of the subjects.

Powell Laboratory School Selects Teacher of the Year

Mrs. Eldora Marks, a teacher at Powell Laboratory School, was selected Teacher-of-the-year for the school year 1956-57. She earned her B. S. Degree from Savannah State College and the M. A. Degree from Columbia University.

The faculty and student body returned to school after the holidays eager and overjoyed to get back to their many activities. The Rhythm Band and Flute Chorus presented a program on WTOC-TV on the eleventh of January. The program was under the supervision of Mrs. D. C. Hamilton, Principal, assisted by Mr. E. Flowers and Mr James Wells.

Since there isn't a zoo in Savannah, the evening first grade class is busy making its own zoo. It will be located in the class room. They are learning many things; they are making animals, cages, and scrapbooks. The officers elected for the year are: President, Harriett Mason; Treasurer, Albertha Clemmons; Secretary, Thomas Lovett; Patrol, Michael Meyers and Flora Lee Robinson.

The second grades have devoted a great deal of time learning how to read more effectively. They are learning many purposeful and meaningful experiences through their center of interest, a continuation of "The Home" under Mrs. D. C. Hamilton.

The third and fourth grade classes are making plans for a trip in connection with their study on transportation. Mr. Trotman, of Chatham County Health Department, is coming next week to test the third grade learning. Mrs. E. D. Marks is the teacher.

The fourth and fifth grade students joined a "Pen Pal Club". Their first letters will go to a fourth grade class at Baton Rouge, Louisiana. The letters will be sent as a group in one large envelope. Mrs. Loretta Palmer is teacher of these students.

The fifth and sixth grade classes are having a wonderful time learning to use the dictionary. The pupils help plan, which probably accounts for their enthusiasm and the fact they are having in using the dictionary, is increasing their vocabularies because they consider dictionary study to be a recreational activity. They are getting this training in an atmosphere of freedom, relaxation and ease, all of which are conducive to real learning. These provide opportunity to observe more closely the speech habits of the pupils. Mrs. M. Wallace is the teacher of these grades.

The seventh grade class has organized a Citizenship Club. The officers: President, Ethel Robinson; Vice President, Arthur Cartright; Secretary, Betty Simmons; Treasurer, Fossie Williams; Clerk of Order, Tasheila Warren.

The Press Institute held at Savannah State in December was attended by some of the students under the supervision of Mrs. Luetta C. Upshur and Miss Mary Ella Clark.

A Salute To Ghana

J. Campbell

On March 6, 1957 the echoes from the sacred bells of liberty will reverberate throughout the world heralding the birth of a new, free and independent country. On that date the colorful Gold Coast Colony will cease its existence and in its place the new state of Ghana will emerge.

The Gold Coast — a British Colony since 1874 — will become the first Negro republic and the first black republic within the British Commonwealth of nations. On the vast African continent the new republic will become the seventh independent nation, a distinction now held only by Libya, Egypt, the Sudan, Ethiopia, Liberia ,and the Union of South Africa.

At the head of the government will be Kwame Nkrumah, the American-educated Prime Minister, who has labored indefatigably for the country's independence. Nkrumah's task of leading the new state is far from an easy one. His major job is that of appeasing the tribal chieftains who fear a loss of power, because the new government is to be a strong centralized one.

The potentialities of Ghana are tremendous. Economically, the country is stable, with cocoa accounting for most of the income. Manganese, gold, diamonds and lumber are some of the other money products which have led to the economic stabilization of the country, aiding it in its drive for independence.

The eyes of Africa and the world are centered on Ghana as it begins to prepare for the difficult job that lies ahead. That job consists of proving to the world that it is quite capable of self-government. Much of the future success of other independent-minded African territories, in their bid for freedom, will rest upon the ability of Nkrumah to successfully govern the new state along democratic lines.

The goal to freedom has been a tiring and extremely difficult one for Ghana; now that her freedom is assured, it is hoped by all the free world that she will become an example, and will act as a beacon, guiding the other colonial-dominated nations along the path to independence and freedom.

Hysteria Is Shocking

(ACP—Southern Methodist University's CAMPUS received and used this letter in its "letter-torials" column. It comments on a current Hollywood scene.)

Yesterday marked the Dallas opening of the late James Dean's last movie, "Giant," which is modestly being exploited in Hollywood publicity men. The surge of hysteria over this maladroit actor is shocking. Even Steve Allen and Ed Sullivan have stooped to hero worshipping of this rotten idol. Such unscrupulous propagandizing about the glories of reckless driving and cruelty to animals would be ludicrous, if it were not so grotesquely wrong.

Contrary to public thought Jimmy did not die a hero's death . . . No, he died as he lived, showing a wanton disregard of society, speeding down a California highway at 90 miles an hour, with a mind apparently bent on mischief. Such grossly antisocial behavior scarcely warrants the shedding of maudlin tears.

Actually Dean was emotionally immature, masochistic, uncouth, morose, surly and considered by his fellow actors as physically dirty . . .

It is shameful that this macabre personality can cause the vilification and perversion of the purportedly well-balanced emotions of American youth.

When the evil a man has done grows into a false myth this is ample reason to vitiate the validity of the revered maxim, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum"— speak nothing but good of the dead.

Both Sexes Robbed

Today's emphasis on "equality at any cost" is robbing men of their masculinity and women of their maternal femininity, warned anthropologist Margaret Mead in a talk at Wellesley, as reported by Wellesley College News.

We Worry and Wonder

American college students are thinking seriously about world affairs. In the rust of student days, there still is time for thought. A DAILY TROJAN editorial reflects this.

Seven o'clock in the evening. A breeze, crisp and sharp, shutters quietly through the campus. The night is clean and fresh.

Benny Morgan, 20 years old, gazes skyward and appraises the steel-like stars mounted in a sky of clear blackness. His pants are tan, buckle in back . . . He is a college student, a sophomore.

The loneliness of the night, the deserted walks and paths, the stillness . . . all these foster thinking. They probe the mind of young Mr. Morgan. He recalls the black screaming headlines of a tumultuous November. Headlines inspired on a foreign soil, mothered and nourished by a beserk mankind.

Headlines about a Communist-controlled people thirsting for liberation. The rape of Hungary.

Headlines about the Suez Canal as Israel and Egypt battle, Britain and France impose war. Blood-soaked hair mats thickly against smashed skulls.

Far away from Benny Morgan. A million miles from the cheering hysterical crowds of a Saturday gridiron battle. A million miles from the grammatical construction of an English composition. A million miles from a parade and a smiling queen who surveys her campus domain with happiness.

Headlines about the Suez Canal as Israel and Egypt battle, Britain and France impose war. Blood-soaked hair mats thickly against smashed skulls.

Far away from Benny Morgan. A million miles from the cheering hysterical crowds of a Saturday gridiron battle. A million miles from the grammatical construction of an English composition. A million miles from a parade and a smiling queen who surveys her campus domain with happiness.

But war pays no homage to distance. The far-stained fingers of a grasping Europe point to Benny Morgan. They beckon and say, "The time has come . . . the chumps are ready . . . you are young and strong . . . and you must help Uncle Sam save the world.

Not knowing when, not knowing where, the uncertain mind of Benny Morgan questions: When will I have to save the world? Will it be now? Tomorrow? Or is it possible that the time will never come?

Uncle Sam has a selective service board that will provide you with the proper notification.

When will the summons come? When will the postman stand in front of my house and deposit a letter that will take me from my home, my school, my friends?

No, Mr. Morgan, your question cannot be answered this night. You must sit and contemplate a world hungry for death. You must wait like a thousand other students . . .

Ford Foundation Grants Goucher $61,200

The Ford Foundation for the Advancement of Education has awarded Goucher a grant of $61,200 to be applied toward a graduate internship program in education. Under the grant, Goucher's fellowship program has been remodeled along the line of an "earn while you learn" plan.

During their second semester, graduate students will hold full-time teaching positions in the Baltimore city schools and will be paid $1,500 (equivalent to 45% of the yearly salary of a regular teacher.) The Baltimore Department of Education is cooperating with this program and will provide experienced teachers to supervise the graduate students.

A special feature of the program will be a six-week preession extending from mid-August to late September. This will provide the two weeks for orientation for all participants and four weeks for observation and participation in a number of city schools. Students begin their formal work course.

From October through February students will receive fifteen semester hours of instruction in courses on elementary school curriculum, child development, and the history of American education. An integrating seminar will correlate theory and practice.

In shifting from a fellowship to an internship program, costs to both the student and the institution will be considerably reduced. College officials believe that both the opportunity to be self-supporting and the chance to assume full-time teaching duties through the year will make the program an attractive one.

Two full-tuition scholarships will be awarded on the basis of need as well as a limited number ranging in amount from $300 to $600.

Motorcycle-Trucks Speed Asia Cargoes

As industrial development of South and South-east Asia speeds up, Japan's three-wheeled motorcycle trucks will probably bear the burden, according to the Japan External Trade Recovery Organization. Nimble as mountain goats, rugged as the rough-hewn roads they ride upon, economically priced and maintained, they carry from two-and-a-half to five tons of cargo for 35 miles on one gallon of gas. Over 500,000 of these versatile motorcycle trucks are in use in Japan alone, all products of a domestic industry which began forty years ago.

Roland James

I. McEVER

Roland James, a sophomore at Savannah State, and one of the most colorful performers, active on the gridiron or basketball court at Savannah has been one of the Tigers' mainstays in rubbing Savannah State to capture the 1956 Southeastern Conference gridiron crown and he is described by many as a terror to rivals in the S. E. A. C. cage world.

Roland is a graduate of Woodville High School of Savannah, Ga., where he served as captain of the football and basketball teams and president of the Varsity Club.

Upon entering Savannah State in 1955 Roland became Savannah State's first string quarterback as a freshman and has performed from this position for two years. While serving as quarterback for the Tigers during his freshman year he ran one of the longest touchdown runs in the history of the S. E. A. C. against Claflin University during the Annual Homecoming game and he repeated a similar feat against the Rams of Albany State College last season.

Aside from his accomplishments in football, Mr. James has also been a standout in basketball. He is currently the highest scorer on the squad with an average of eighteen points per game with only three games left to play.

At the beginning of the season he was plagued with an injury and was unable to perform. After the Christmas holidays he made his first appearance of the season and has been a consistent high scorer ever since. He reached his zenith in the February 9 Paine College game when he scored thirty-one points.

"I submitted to public pressure once, but I'll never do it again. I didn't want her to get married in the first place, and I wouldn't have done it if I hadn't had permission from the syndicate to kill him on the following Friday."

The Other Side Of The Story

By J. Campbell, Jr.

Much has been written, a great deal more has been said, concerning the plight of today's college student. There has been a constant volley of vituperative blasts aimed at his shortcomings, rebuking him for lack of seriousness, indifference, complacency, and a host of other unforgiveable evils. He has been severely castigated, denounced, and branded in language of no uncertain terms. He has been classified as a moron (high or low-grade) who cannot speak, or write the English language. His conduct and manners have been cited as more befitting a wild savage than a civilized person who is being educated. Finally he is led to believe that his generation in every aspect is positively the worst that has ever been allowed to grace the seats of any institution of higher learning.

That most of the criticism leveled at the student emits from the pens and mouths of college teachers is not in the least surprising, as they are constantly in contact with the student and in the position to observe and judge his performance, manners, actions, and conduct.

Doubtlessly much of what they write and say is true—perhaps all of it. But at the same time, teachers are human (contrary to what some students believe) and many of the shortcomings which characterize the student exist among them. The teacher has the right however, because of his superior learning and position, to publicly denounce the student. The shortcomings of the instructors are only discussed surreptitiously among students, for not even objective criticism can the student make without suffering.

The student in order that he may obtain a grade—a very relative item which varies so greatly among instructors and institutions until its value is greatly questioned—is made to endure all the idiosyncracies the instructor possesses. Day after day, the personal disapointments and fustrations of the instructor are thrust on the student, who finds it necessary to listen attentively for boredom must never manifest itself.

The conduct of the student is a perennial problem to the administration and all types of rules and regulations are set up for his guidance. But what regulates the conduct of instructors? In many instances their conduct leaves much to be desired.

Eventually the mediocre, poor, lazy student either flunks out or withdraws from school; if his conduct is too unbearable he is expelled. But not so with the indifferent or poor instructor, he remains and is an endless source of harassment to all students, good and poor.

"The Big Stick Policy"

By I. McIver

"Speak softly and carry a big stick" is a portion of one of the famous and familiar quotations that was used by Theodore Roosevelt, our twenty-sixth President, during his tenure as President of the United States.

The big stick statement comes from an old adage applied to Roosevelt's policy in Latin America. The President could afford to use the statement from the ancient Proverb because he was backed by a powerful American Navy.

Today the big stick doctrine is still being adhered to in many environments, especially the classrooms.

The precept has changed somewhat since Roosevelt's administration so that it now reads, "Speak loudly, carry a big stick, and make those suffer who openly attack my point of view."

To admit that students can be right and that individuals in all areas are capable of making mistakes is some thing that is as outmoded as bell-bottom trousers in many classrooms. The student, however, is and must be the only person who is susceptable to mistakes, if he is to "survive."

Such a statement as "If you do not concur with my policies, you may leave the classroom since I do not care to discuss the matter any further," is familiar to many students in institutions of higher learning. Students are aware that this is a revised modern classroom application of Roosevelt's policies. Very often students know who carry the big sticks and they accept the doctrine that they are always wrong.

Top officials of institutions of higher learning should be gratified, I am certain, of the fact that they can boast of employees who feel as though book learning or classroom participation or inhabitation is the only type of essential activity that college students should pursue in their attempts toward becoming well rounded. I must admit however, that classroom participation is the student's, or should be the student's, primary reason for attending college. Being a firm believer that variety is the spice of life, I cannot concur with those who would not provide any time for co-curricular activities. Being also of the opinion that America does advocate democracy to a certain extent, I am also of the belief that the classroom participation should not be one-sided.

Many students in our colleges and universities are hampered because of the application of the big stick policies in classrooms. When the classroom becomes a place of fear and uneasiness, the student cannot perform in a satisfactory manner. Some students never contribute to some of their classes because they have been intimidated by experienced students to fear certain individuals and the failure of the individuals who practice "the big stick policy" to cast aside "the big stick" makes the classrooms less inviting.

Attending assemblies, organizational meetings and other co-curricula functions of the college should be as much a part of the student's experience as classroom lectures. The lecturer frequently describes the ideal situation in his assignments are prepared, and often tiring lectures, whereas organizational functions enable the student to prepare himself for some of life's problems that cannot be solved by digesting one of the many published dissertations.

Roosevelt's famous policy is used in many ways other than to make individuals accept a desired attitude. It has and is frequently being used to satisfy ego, without considering the well-being of the suppressed.

The big stick policy advocated by Roosevelt during his stay in office was backed by military might. The classroom implementation of this policy does not have the type of support that Roosevelt enjoyed. Since the classroom doctrine is violent and has fewer adherents, it should be attacked and destroyed.

Disagreement has been one of the most effective and successful means of curing the crippling diseases that have plaqued environments. There are many who disagree with what is advocated by those who carry "the big stick." They, however, do not utter their disagreements in the right auricles loudly and frequently enough because the shadow of the "stick" is too frightening.

News of Industry

By Lenard Dawson

The author of this article feels that students at Savannah State College should be informed of the latest developments in industry. In an effort to achieve this, in the future this article will present such developments. It is felt of course that first of all you should know what the Division of Trades and Industries at Savannah State College has to offer. This initial article proposes to acquaint you with the offerings in this department.

The primary objective of the Division of Trades and Industries on our campus is to train the hands and hands of its students in such a manner that they may successfully pursue gainful employment in a specialized industry as well as in the teaching profession.

This Division offers two types of programs. One prepares students of the college level to teach Industrial Arts or Industrial Education in the secondary and elementary schools. The other program is under the auspices of the Division Trade School. Students who possess at least an 8th grade education are eligible to enter this program.

The college curriculum gives a strong and carefully planned sequence of courses in Industrial Arts, Industrial Education, and a comprehensive combination of

President's Message

When one attends college one learns many things which are not taught in the classroom. It is possible to compile a long list of the learnings which have been developed through extra-classroom contacts and observation. During the past five or six years, the college students have experienced the so-called "face-lifting" and "building booms" programs on their respective campuses. Not all college students have been fortunate enough to see a number of new facilities erected on a college campus during a single college generation. Few realize how much time is required to bring a building to the construction stage. Every building must be planned by an architect who must prepare the plans and specifications for every aspect of the building. This stage of development of a building generally requires several months or, in some instances, more than a year. After bids have been advert ised a contractor is secured. Another period is required for the actual construction of the building. Many contracters require a minimum of a year or more to construct an average-sized college building. Under ordinary circumstances the finished building which one sees at any time on a college campus represents continuous planning and working over a period of two or more years.

The students of Savannah State College have been fortunate to experience during the past six years the construction of several kinds of educational facilities. The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia has completed four new facilities and it has provided for a continuing program of major repairs and rehabilitation. The college is at present in the planning stage for two new buildings which are very important in the development of its educational program. The architects have completed plans for a new library which will be adequate to meet the expanding needs of the institution. The structure, costing approximately $550,000, will provide basic college library facilities. The building will linclude facilities for audio-visual education, seminar rooms, listening rooms for music collections. The building will be air conditioned so as to provide the best care for the 60,000 volumes to be deposited there and to provide the best temperature and humidity conditions for effective study and learning.

A second facility now under construction will include a group of units designed to constitute a center for technical education. Classrooms and laboratories will be provided in the $900,000 center for automotive engineering, building construction, electronics, radio and television, heating and air conditioning. In addition to the above, modern laboratories will be provided for the deparitments of chemistry and physics which are very closely related to all of the programs of technical education. The erection of this technical education center will be one of the first of its kind in this section of the country. It is expected to prepare individuals to enter industry where there is an unusual and increasing demand for individuals trained in the technological fields. This center and the library building will place the college in position to do a very superior educational program.

In addition to the above, the Board of Education of the City of Savannah and the County of Chatham in cooperation with the Board of Regents of the University System are constructing the first unit of a twelve-grade laboratory school. This unit when fully developed will provide for approximately 1,200 pupils from grade one through grade twelve. The facilities will be a part of the teacher education program of the college. Pupils will be able to enter nursery school and continue their education to the baccalaureate degree on the college campus under superior educational conditions.

No Student Rates On Airlines

The Civil Aeronautics Board says Capital Airlines has cancelled its controversial proposal to offer special low seven-day round-trip fares for groups of college students. The special tourist-class fares on first class flights would have applied for groups traveling from Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Pittsburgh and Rochester, N. Y. to New York City-Newark or Washington, and from New York-Newark to Buffalo or Washington, and from Washington to New York-Newark.

Four competing airlines—American, Eastern, TWA and United—had opposed Capital's plan.

In this confused world of ours, it is unusual and comforting to find a well-adjusted person. Iris Lee Parrish, a native of Woodbine, Georgia, is such a person. Iris, a Sophomore majoring in Business Education and minoring in mathematics, is a quiet, modest and respectable young lady who greets you on the cam-

The campus activities in which she participates include the Sunday School, the Business Club, the Dormitory Council, and Intra-mural sports.

Iris plans to work this summer, but the place is indefinite. Wherever you are Iris, always remember, THE SPOTLIGHT IS ON YOU.

Typing Workshop For Pre-High School Progress

The second Typing Workshop for pre-high school students is showing many signs of progress. Again the primary purposes of the Workshop are to enable students to do personal typing and to assist with mimeograph publications in their respective schools.

Among the "ettes" are JULIETTE Beaton, DANETTE Harden, PAULETTE Huff, and JEANETTE Isaac. The other members are: Daniel Blalock, David and Marian Butler, Joan Huff, Alice Murray, Albert and Pickens Patterson, Delano Holmes, Rosilyn Rydal, Gerald Stevens, Nelson Stringer, and Mary Wilson. These students hail from Florance, St. Mary's, Spencer, the Powell Laboratory, Cuyler, and Paulsen.

Of much distinction is the fact that last year's top-ranking members are serving as assistants this year; namely, Antionette Batiste, Grade 6, East Broad; Ruth Boston, Grade 7, DeRenne; Ezekiel and Morris Cooper, Grades 10 and 9 Thompkins; and Rosalie Holmes, Grade 9, Cuyler. Miss Albertha E. Boston, instructor in the Department of Business, is conducting the Workshop.

In fourth football last year, the freshmen took sophomores and the Trades and Industries finished second. The freshmen and the sophomores won first and second places respectively in volleyball, the seniors took top honors in softball and the juniors finished second and the sophomores and the juniors finished first and second in baseball.

In the track and field events first place was won by Louis Ford in the 100 yard dash, Lorenzo Griffin in the 1 mile run, the sophomores in the 440 yard relay, Willie N. Wright in the 440 yard dash, James Wallace in the 220 yard dash and the sophomores in the 880 yard relay.

Prince F. Wynn served as General chairman of the festival last year and Isaiah McIver was the general secretary. Mr. Nelson R. Freeman Dean of Men serves as advisor and coordinator of the program.

During April 24-25, 1948 the first festival was held at Savannah State. In its beginning, the Hill Hall Dormitory Council sponsored the program. Leadership in this initial endeavor was provided by Henry A. Johnson who was serving as president of the dormitory council and Harrison Miller served as chairman of the planning committee.

Since 1950 the festival's committees have been chosen from all students and organizations of the college and faculty members were and still are invited to serve as advisors of various committees.

In 1952 the "Man of the Year Award" was introduced and has been a part of the program ever since. The first festival lasted only two days and only four events were held. Today the celebration covers seven days and numerous other events have been a part of the celebration.

Who Is She?

Who is she? She's the smartest young lady in school. She's applying for the one month's summer training offered by the Army to qualified women college Juniors. This young woman knows where she is going—she's being "guided" right into the career of her dreams!

What is this "guided" program? Well, you might say its a prevue of a career picture to come. The program, in effect, is a trial assignment period to allow young women a chance to decide whether or not they would enjoy a career as a commissioned officer in the Women's Army Corps. In the last year of college, women who have successfully completed the month's training will be afforded an opportunity to qualify for a commission upon graduation. So our smart young lady leaves college wearing the bars of an army lieutenant — pretty good?

It's the chance of a lifetime! If on the other hand, circumstances do not permit her to apply for commission, our young lady is merely discharged from the Reserve. She has no service obligation beyond her summer training.

The successful applicant will be sent to Fort McClellan, Alabama, 14 July—19 August 1957. Transportation, meals, housing and appropriate uniform will be furnished. In addition, our college junior will be paid $122.39 (a corporal's pay) for the month's training. The army's guided Miss will not be a dull Jill for there will be play, as well as work, golf, tennis, swimming and dancing are only a few of the recreational advantages found on every Army Post.

This highly selective program is limited to sixty college juniors from the United States. Think of the fun of meeting sorority sisters from North, South, East and West! This alone will make WAC summer training a memorable experience — interested women must apply immediately — if applications are not in by May 1, 1957, an opportunity will be missed, an opportunity that, for the college junior, knocks only once.

Join a wonderful and exciting group of young women this summer. Be smart! Be sure! Be the Army's Guided Miss!

Evaluation Report Religious Emphasis

In evaluating the effectiveness of Religious Emphasis Week on the campus, it was thought by the evaluation committee that obtaining the opinion of the student body was the best manner in which to give the final evaluation. The week is only effective as it is able to instill in the hearts and minds of the students a greater awareness of the significant role that religion plays in the world, and a larger appreciation and understanding of the different types of religions in the world.

It was the opinion of most of the students that the seminars were well presented and that the speaker did a very good job in covering the subjects and in answering questions. Particularly impressive seemed to have been the frankness and unevasive responses that were given in answer to some of the difficult questions asked.

Concerning the classroom discussions there was a variety of opinions expressed. Some believed that the discussions were not prepared in advance and were therefore ineffective; others regretted the non-cooperation of a few of the instructors who did not hold the proposed discussions saying that they interferred with classroom work. In a few cases it was found that the topics were assigned to students and their reports were treated as a part of regular class work.

Many students thought their freedom was greatly restricted because of the week. Members of the intra-mural basketball teams were of the opinion that the scheduled games should have been played. They regretted the cancellation solely because of the activities connected with the week.

A major shortcoming was the restriction of all topics to the Christian Religion. The theme proposed religion as the hope of a confused world; yet no attempts were made to show in what way the major religions of the world would relieve the world of its confusion.

Another shortcoming was that of having only one speaker. Two would have been much more effective, particularly if they represented different faiths.

However, these shortcomings are comparatively small when viewed against the apparent success of the other phases of the week, such as the Little Chapel, the drama "The Bishop and the Convict," the House gatherings, and the Communion service.

For the speaker, Dr. Hughley, the committee overwhelmingly agree that he performed a tremendous job, and by far was one of the ablest speakers ever to appear on the campus in observance of Religious Emphasis Week.

Ladies' Home Journal Salutes Officer And Family

Today, the February Ladies' Home Journal proudly salutes the family of Lt. Col. Daniel (Chappie) James and pays tribute to his "Demonstrated Ability." A seven-page article by that title, written by Mary Elizabeth Vroman, Christopher-Award author, and Nelle Keyes Perry, a Journal Editor, presents the Jameses in the article series entitled, "How America Lives." This series, now in its 17th year, each month tells the story of an American family.

Lt. Col James is now stationed at Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Alabama, to which in June this year, he was transferred to Staff Command School. Previously, since 1953, he and his family lived at Otis Air Force Base, Cape Cod. There, he was commander of the 60th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, one of the jet squadrons on which depends the air security of the East Coast, and one of the few virtually all-white outfits in the Air Force.

"Promoted over more than 5000 majors who ranked him, he did it by just one thing" the authors comment—Demonstrated Ability.

"In the fourteen years of their marriage, Dorothy Watkins James has seen her husband rise from Air Force cadet to lieutenant colonel, commander of the squadron—the man who, voted the state's most outstanding young man of the year, received the Massachusetts Junior Chamber of Commerce Distinguished Service Award for 1955.

"Being a Negro and working up to commanding his own squadron was no easy job, as Chappie James readily admits. 'Of course I got the breaks,' he says, 'but I couldn't have done it without Dottie.'"

At this praise, "Dottie smiles tranquilly, with obvious pride in her children and her dynamic six-foot-four husband, who flew 101 aerial-combat missions in Korea, and won the Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary achievement."

BRICE-PRITCHARD DUO TO BE PRESENTED HERE APRIL 11

The Eugene Brlee-Robert Pritchard Duo will be presented in a joint recital in Meidrim Auditorium on Thursday evening, April 11, at 8:15 p.m. as the lyceum feature for the spring quarter according to an announcement from the lyceum committee.

Eugene Brice, the buss barritone of the duo is a well-known recitalist and voice teacher. He has appeared as soloist with the Juiliard Festival of Contemporary Music, the de Paur Infantry Chorus, the Margaret Hillis Concert Choir and the Collegiate Chorale. He appeared on Broadway in "Showboat" and in a road production of "Carmen Jones." Mr. Brice has also appeared on Godfrey's Talent Scout Show and Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town."

At an early age Eugene Brice sang with the Shaw Chorale. He was one of the first two Negro soloists to sing with the group on its nationwide tour. Brice is the only member of his race who made the historic tour with the Shaw Chorale to Europe and the Middle East in the spring of 1956.

Robert Pritchard, the pianist, is a native of North Carolina and he received his Bachelor's and Master's degree from Syracuse University where he graduated with highest honors.

Academic Freedom And The Student

"A student in an American school or college is subject to authority and at the same time is being educated towards freedom." The moral responsibility facing both the college and student in the problem of academic freedom has been brought into focus with the publication Academic Freedom & Civil Liberties of the Student, the pamphlet published recently by the American Civil Liberties Union. It is the first statement by the ACLU to deal solely with activities.

The 12 page pamphlet covers five problem areas: student organizations, student publications on campus and abroad, student speeches and forum participation, general disciplinary methods of college administration, and the educational institution and its public relations. The student's responsibility as a campus citizen and as an off-campus citizen is discussed and a series of problems are posed. This publication will be included in the Academic Freedom Week Kit now being prepared for distribution to member schools. Additional copies may be obtained through the American Civil Liberties Union, 170 Fifth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.

All of his piano studies in New York have been under scholarship. His teachers were Carl Friedberg and Robert Goldsond and he is presently under the tutelage of Hans Neumann.

In 1953 he toured the Midwest and made appearances in Europe in 1955 where he was successful personally and musically.

Aside from playing Mr. Pritchard also lectures. In the winter of 1956 he presented lecture-recitals at Barnard College in New York.

His tours of the South in the spring of 1957 will be the first in this area.

General Motors Presents Science Show

"Previews of Progress," the world-famous General Motors stage show which spotlights science in action, was presented in Meldrim Auditorium on Friday, March 8 at 11:40 a.m.

The forty-minute show featured for the first time the General Motors Sunmobile, the miniature car that actually runs on the power of the sun. The program was also packed with other demonstrations depicting the role that science plays in industrial progress.

Other features of the non-commercial free show which seeks through previews to inspire more students to enter science and engineering were the demonstrations showing how synthetic rubber could be produced in 60 seconds, an action history of the jet engine, the flying of a egg on a stove that remained cold and a demonstration of the micro-wave relay that sends long distance telephone conversations and television programs across the country.

Each year more than three million students and adults view these previews. The previews were presented by a two-man team and were narrated in understandable, non-technical language.

"Previews of Progress" has been seen by 13 million students and adults in the United States. There are now twelve two-man teams operating in this country who cover 180,000 miles a year. There are another twelve units touring Canada, Europe, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

Approximately 3,000,000 foreigners have attended these previews and the show has won wide acclaim from educators and civic and fraternal organizations for its success in awakening individuals to the importance of science.

Sigma Kappa Council Takes Action

By a 12 to 5 vote of the Student Government Council of the University of Michigan, Sigma Kappa Sorority was found to have violated the conditions prescribed for the recognition of an organization by the University. This question is also being considered by a number of other universities as a result of the suspension of local chapters at Cornell and Tufts by the Sigma Kappa National Council after both colleges pledged Negro women.

The decision was made by the Michigan Student Council after a forty page document was presented to all council members and Sigma Kappa representatives. It contained the area of SGC responsibility, letters from the local and national chapters explaining their position, from the local and national Pan-Hellenic and corresponding deans and sorority members from Cornell and Tufts explaining their action. Special emphasis was put on the presence of the consideration by the SGC and all interested parties were allowed to present pertinent information. A lawyer was employed to clear up any judicial questions. Taken from the Michigan Student Government Council Newsletter.)

age 12, 10-year-old Danny (Spike) and two-year-old Claude Andrew (Spud) have been trained to accept the frequent moves and their father's necessary absences and irregular hours. Sometimes missions keep him out from early morning until midnight or more, but he is able to be home during the birth of a child—the last one, Spud's.

A lieutenant colonel with fourteen years in service, he gets $825 per month, not counting flight pay. Nearly every pay day Mrs. James add to the college fund for the children which they started several years ago. Dottie handles all the bills and the joint bank account. They own two cars, a '52 Cadillac and a new red Thunderbird. Since he must have a separate transportation available, they consider the two cars a necessity.

The Jameses like people, make friends easily and love to entertain. At Clear Air Force Base, Chapple's regiment was a close-knit, friendly group, the article relates. Social life ranged from informal stag-and-drag to occasional formal parties at the club. Almost any Saturday night someone gave a party. For her own parties, Dottie likes to serve buffet dinners centered around the family's favorite creole gumbo but sometimes she serves a Southern menu of fried chicken and grits. Her guests excellent cook, the authors observe. In an accompanying article, entitled, "Main Disher with a Southern Accent," by Dorothy James, she shares her favorite recipes with readers.

Chapple's drive and talent she attributes to his mother, and Colonel says of his mother, "She has the most indomitable spirit I've ever seen. My mother believes that the eventual end of segregation depends on Negro achievement. Prove to the world that you can compete on an equal basis. Show by your accomplishments that you are good and intelligent. Don't whine. I don't say don't fight it with legislation or with any proper means, but I don't say you'll do much good that either. Achievement will do it." More than fifty years ago Mrs. James established the L. A. James Private School next door to their home. She taught all her children through the eight grade and though now in her late seventies and crippled with painful rheumatism, she is still teaching from a wheel chair.

A New Development In Music

A new development in music—The School of Jazz, staffed by top ranking jazz musicians, will start its first session next summer, at the Berkshire Music Barn, in Lenox, Mass., according to John Lewis, executive director of the school. Mr. Lewis is also musical director of the Modern Jazz Quartet. The School of Jazz is being incorporated as a non-profit organization and is located next to Tanglewood, home of the Boston Symphony summer festival and school.

Enrollment in the intensive three week session, which starts August 12th, will be limited to forty musicians and twenty auditors (non-playing students). Musicians will be required to pass audition or to submit attested tapes or recordings to qualify for entrance.

Instruction will include rehearsal in both a large ensemble and in small groups in composition, arrangement and history of jazz. Each musician will also be required to take a minimum of two hours a week of individual instruction in his instrument. The number of students for each instrument will be strictly limited to make a desirable balance in the ensemble groups.

In addition to the regular courses and the jazz concerts scheduled at the Music Barn, there will be special demonstrations by musicians of interesting schools of jazz and representative folk musicians from other parts of the world. Also scheduled are talks by jazz leaders and lecturers such as Duke Ellington, Wilbur de Paris, Lennie Tristano, Joachim Berendt, German jazz critic and author; Norman Granz, founder of "Jazz at the Philharmonic"; Langston Hughes, poet and authority on jazz; Professor Willis James, musicologist; Harry Partch, composer; Gunther Schuller, first French horn player at the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra and composer in both jazz and classical idioms. Panels of working representatives and musicians will discuss the practical problems facing the jazz musician today.

Living quarters for men will be at Wheatieigh, the estate of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, where men students attending the Symphonic Workshop at the school are housed. The symphonic students leave on the 11th of August and the jazz students will move in on the 12th. Arrangements for the use of the Dormitory were made through Mr. Thomas D. Perry, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the School of Jazz will be Philip Barber. Other trustees will be Whitney North Wilman Coss, Jr., Nesuhi Ertegun, George Avakian, John B. (Dizzy) Gillespie, Stephanie Barber, Jimmy Guiffre, Nat Hentoff, Andre Hodeir and Gunther Schuller; J. J. Johnson, Willis James, John Lewis, Horst Lippmann, Wilbur de Paris, Oscar Peterson, Max Roach, William Russo, Jr., Gunther Schuller, Jack Tracy, Barry Ulanov, Marshall W. Stearns and John S. Wilson.

Announcement of the faculty will be made within the next month, Mr. Lewis said.

The School of Jazz, Incorporated, is an outgrowth of the seven years of "Folk and Jazz Roundtables" held at Music Inn since 1950, at which panels of anthoropologists, jazz historians, sociologists, folklorists and many of the top jazz musicians studied the origins, development and styles of jazz and their relation to other folk musics of the world.

Much of the material formerly covered by the Roundtables will be covered in the special evening programs.

New Legislation Affecting Students in Higher Education

There have been several resolutions introduced recently in the U.S. Senate which directly affect all students in higher education. These measures have been introduced by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas. Below is a brief description of these bills.

S 31 (Introduced by Sen. Humphrey as part of his "Youth Opportunity Program.")

Student Aid Act of 1957: Providing scholarships for gifted high school students unable to attend college because of lack of funds; offer grants to institutions of higher learning accepting such scholarship students to enable them to expand facilities; and providing tax credits to encourage parents to send young people to college; establishing a long-term, low-interest student-loan program to be repaid only after students graduate from college and enter higher income brackets. (Referred to the committee on Labor and Public Welfare.)

S 432 (Introduced by Sen. Fulbright):

A bill to allow additional income tax exemptions for a taxpayer or a spouse, or a dependent child under 23 years of age, who is a fulltime student at any educational institution above the secondary level. (Referred to the Committee on Finance.)

S 433 (Introduced by Sen. Fulbright):

A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 so as to allow a taxpayer to deduct certain expenses incurred by him in obtaining a higher education. (Referred to the committe on finance.)

The Legislative Affairs Sub-Commission located at the Catholic University in Washington, D. C. and chaired by Harry Lunn can furnish complete texts of these bills. The purpose of the Sub-Commission, established by the 9th National Student Congress, is to gather information on all pending legislation which affects students as students" and dissiminate this information to member schools. Students interested in these bills are urged to communicate their opinions to their congressmen and senators.

Rushees Open House

Durham, N. C.—(I.P.)— The two and a half week period of formal rushing for freshmen and upperclass girls at the University of New Hampshire, which began on Monday, February 4, with an open house and guided tour of sororities, is now underway here.

In preparation for rushing, the members of the Pan-Hellenic Council visited the dorms after Christmas vacation to answer any questions that rushees might have. They also gave informal talks to acquaint the girls with the process. The revised rush booklet for the 1957 season was also made available after Christmas.

In order to aid the rushees in any difficulties which might occur during the rush season, members of City Girls Association and of College Pan-Hellenic will be in Commons on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights of this week between 4 and 5:30. A receptionist will be available to help the girl decide whether she should see an older woman or a friend.

For the benefit of sorority girls the parties have been scheduled a day apart so that they will have time to prepare for them and still keep up their school work.

A rushee may accept no more than four invitations to an informal party on any one night. She may accept only three conclusive party invitations. The 1957 formal rush schedule follows:

Monday—sign-up, guided tour, and open house. Tuesday—informal open house. Thursday—informal party by invitation. Monday—informal party by invitation. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday—conclusive parties, two per night. Monday—day of silence. Tuesday—Pledging.

SSC To Lose 3 Star Players

By O. Nathaniel Weaver

Three of Savannah State's most colorful basketball players, Noel Wright, Robert (Robbie) Lewis, and Clevon Johnson, have played their final season for the Tigers. The Tigers finished the season with top honors three of the four years that they were members of the team and were runners-up only once.

Noel (Snuffy) Wright was a member of the All-Conference Team for all his four years. His speed, accurate shooting and superb dribbling proved very helpful to the squad. He gained the recognition of being one of the most colorful players in the S.E.A.C. Conference and of this basketball region.

ROBERT LEWIS

Robert (Robbie) Lewis was selected to the All-Conference Team on three occasions. He was one of the most effective and accurate long-shot artists seen in this section of the country. Being selected to the All-S.E.A.C. Team was nothing new for Lewis since he made the All-Army where competition was much greater.

Clevon Johnson had his best seasons during his freshman and sophomore years. His ability to score when goals were needed most and his rebounding ability were some of the abilities he possessed that enabled the Tigers to be the top S.E.A.C. team three of the four years he participated.

There are many dissatisfied individuals following elections. Many of the dissatisfied individuals become this way because of the shock received when they discovered, after elections, that the expected support did not really exist.

The defeated candidates, along with their supporters, are positive that they were not given justice. It is astounding to see, after elections, so many individuals who are unaware that justice is the only thing that can be meted out after an election. Should mercy be replaced by justice, every candidate would be a winner. When some candidates lose an election that they consider important, many of them compensate by saying that the individuals who conducted the election cheated or they give various other excuses to compensate for the inability to accept a defeat.

Defeat is, I must admit, one of the bitter pills that must be swallowed. The individuals who can take defeat in stride are few. Therefore, election officials consider it unusual when there is an election and there are no accusations made.

I imagine that it is an individual's perogative to suspect everyone when the most wanted and sought after positions in a given situation are at stake. Those who never trust cannot be trusted. Inorder for an individual to have faith in himself, he must have faith in others.

There are, and will always be, those who will be disappointed over the selections that are made. There is, however, the majority who is satisfied. Environments in which disagreement and dissatisfaction exist are our healthiest areas. Without disagreement and dissatisfaction, there would never be progress or attempts made to correct existing weaknesses.

If there are any among us who are going to acquire some gray strands because your candidates did not win, I am hoping that you will remember that spilled milk cannot be recovered. If your dissatisfaction was real, you would have campaigned in a more vigorous manner for the candidates which you favored and it is very possible that the election headlines would have read different.

Many of us fail to realize that the masses do not select their leaders. Leaders, for the most part, emerge into prominence, and the people merely go through the formality of nominating and casting votes.

The election is over. The winners have been announced, and the ballots have been counted. The winners and the losers are either happy or sad, and you have, I am certain, elected the persons that you considered to be best qualified for the key positions that are to be filled during the 1957-58 school year.

If there were mistakes made, they cannot be erased until another election unless there are those among us who know the implications of the term "impeachment." Impeachment, however, is not proper unless there is a mistake or after the elected have had an opportunity to prove their worth. The only thing left for the unhappy minority to do is to accept the fact that the election is over and remember that ballots, not complaints, win elections.

A Salute To The Tigers

I. McIver

The Savannah State Tigers were the undefeated and undisputed champions of the South Eastern Athletic Conference this term. They were foremost in every sport that was sponsored by the S.E.A.C., during the 1956-57 school term.

The football, basketball and track championships were all won by the Tigers who attend the school located by the sea. The Tigers can boast that in 1957, Savannah State, aside from being the school where grassy plains and palms abound, is also the school where all of the first place trophies given by the S.E.A.C. during 1956-57 can be found.

Winning the football crown was more significant than all of the others, because it was Savannah State's first grid title in several seasons.

The athletes and the coaches should be commended for the excellent performances that were made on the gridiron, the basketball court and the track field during the past school term. The athletes and other members of the student body should be proud of Savannah State's 1956-57 record. This year for the first time in several years, Savannah State completely dominated the S.E.A.C.

Being champions requires a great amount of training, coaching, endurance, patience, equipment and a burning desire to be

Gleanings From Magazines

Last month the spotlight was on the periodicals and newspapers received in your library. Perhaps you have formulated a plan that would permit wider reading of these materials. If you haven't decided on a course of action, look through Bete's Passport to Knowledge. The author of this scriptographic booklet has worked out a formula that might solve some of your reading-time problems. Although the book is used as the unit of measurement, the ideas are even more applicable to magazine and news paper articles as they are brief and do not call for sustained reading.

The formula: If you read only 15 minutes a day you would read one-half book a week, two books a month, twenty-four books a year, one thousand books in forty. Its equivalent to going through college five times, making you an authority on any subject you choose, taking a trip around the world.

To help you test this theory we have listed below several magazine articles that are provocative, informative, or humorous. Choose one for reading—let it be the first step in your expanded reading program.

President Charles W. Cole of Amherst College writes respectfully, if not solemnly, about the monogamous mores of youth in the lead articles of the March issue of Harper's Magazine—the article, "American Youth Goes Monogamous."

"How to make an Impression In a Discussion Group without actually Saying Anything" is the overly long but descriptive title of a 2-page article covering eleven easy lessons that should lead to your becoming chairman of almost any group discussion. You'll find this humorous presentation in the Phi Delta Kappan for March. The writer is Ken-

The Voice of a Southern Negro

Carl J. Falson

We all know the evils of the south
From what we read and see.
But let me tell you
About the south and me.
I was born in the south,
But not of my choice.
Concerning that matter
I didn't have a voice.
Each of my grandparents
Was born a slave.
But their souls remained free
Even to the grave.
Northerners ask,
"Why stay in the south?
You've got to be careful
Of your actions and mouth.
You were born poor,
And you'll die poor;
You'll never have anything to show."
But I say in 1685
My grandparents were freed;
They were put on their own
To acquire their every need.
If they survived in the south,
Why can't I?
I will fight to make things better
Until the day I die.
I was born during the depression
When the struggle for life
Was the only obsession.
I was raised in poverty
But today I live;
I have learned to take
As well as give.
Now I'm a man,
And I'll take my stand,
And mould my future
With my own two hands.

on top. These are only a few of the many prerequisites that champions must possess or to which they must have access. Evidentally the Tigers because of their performances possessed the essential prerequisites this term.

President's Message

The month of May to the College student may mean any one or a number of things to those who are looking forward to graduation in June. It represents the last mile in the achievement of an important goal. As candidates for graduation near the completion of their undergraduate work, they often look at their records and evaluate their collegiate experiences. In their preparation to leave college the candidates plan and think about the future. Those who have already made decisions become anxious over the new goals that they have set. Those who have not made up their minds have a tendency to worry about their prospective future. The decisions which they must make are important and they bear a definite relationship to the role which the individual will play in an adult society. Some candidates will prolong their period of dependency by entering graduate school which will allow them another year or two in which to find themselves.

To the undergraduate who plans to continue his education in the fall many questions arise. Some will wish to continue school during the summer quarter in order to reduce the time required for the baccalaureate degree or to enrich and extend their formal education. A few will use the summer as a time to make up work that has not been completed satisfactorily during the past year. Generally the largest group of students will be leaving the institution for the summer session. In most instances they will seek employment for the purpose of earning funds to continue their education. Summer employment has been the most important single source through which students have been able to finance their education. Students who value education will seek employment during the summer vacation period. It is believed by many that much of the experience gained by students through summer employment has considerable educational values—thus summer employment becomes an opportunity for the extension of one's education as well as the financial basis for the baccalaureate program. Students who practice thrift and wise expenditure of their funds gain training in proper budgeting and planning.

The students of Savannah State College are now in the midst of the process of making decisions. The decisions made will be influential in determining their careers. The College possesses many resources for individuals who find themselves faced with making choices. The library with its books, magazines, newspapers, and guides will provide information needed to arrive at a solution. In addition to the material resources, the student will find human resources that are abundant in the members of the faculty. Their training, experience, outlook and vision place them in a position of unusual value during this period. In the student's search for such assistance, he must select the sources in a manner similar to the way in which he chooses his books or periodicals. The decision, however, to be of value must be one that the student makes on the basis of his own thinking.

Among other problems the question of religion in the new nation of Ghana is discussed in the short, vivid account of the country's freedom celebration written by Homer A. Jack, a minister of the Unitarian Church of Evanston, Illinois. "Eyewitness in Ghana" appears in the April 3 issue of Christian Century.

"When historians come to assess the America of World War II, the period from 1946 on will have to be written down—or off —as the Era of Fear." So writes Henry Lee, in "This Age of Fear" for The American Mercury, May 1957. You might not see yourself mirrored here, but you will find it provocative reading that you can recommend to a friend.

More than 300 student leaders from 50 colleges in seven regions were represented at the meeting chaired by Reginald Green. Provost Edward Eddy of the University of New Hampshire addressed delegates on "Rising Enrollments and Changing Campus Patterns," emphasizing in his keynote speech the need for more active and responsible student participation in meeting problems created by the pressures of increased enrollments, citing self-discipline and orientation as two critical areas. Columbia University's Associate Provost William Fels stressed similar points in his address. Two panels of faculty and USNSA officers considered alternative approaches to the problems of rising enrollments and the probable future of student government programming in the face of this problem.

Loans to Teachers

In a move to meet the expanding need for teachers and scientists, Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D. Wash.) has introduced legislation setting up a loan program available to students in the higher educational institutions of the nation.

Young men and women planning careers in teaching, engineering, scientific and medical fields could borrow up to $750 a year, or $5,000 for an entire college career, under the Magnuson bill presented to the Senate of the Eighty-Fifth Congress.

Loans would come from a $250,000,000 revolving fund created by the measure, with students being given 15 years for repayment. The loans would bear the same interest rates as other government obligations.

Tri Semester Plan

Unless some other method is found to alleviate the crowded conditions existing at Florida State University, students may be faced with the prospects of more night and Saturday classes.

Instead of the future, Dr. Hugh Stickler, head of the educational research department, admitted the possibility of a trisemester plan. The scholastic year would be divided into three 16-week semesters. According to this plan, 48 weeks would be equivalent to a regular scholastic year.

Dr. Stickler noted the possibilities and limitations of such a plan:

It would serve more students with less equipment.

Graduation would be possible in three years instead of the regular four.

Vacations would be only four weeks a year.

The plan is not part of the present day educational culture pattern.

Summer work would be impossible.

It would cause a lack of time for maturing factors of a student in college.

Before a loan could be made, however, certification would be necessary from the educational institution that it has found the applicant qualified for such course of study or training and that it is willing to admit him."

International Correspondence Urged

The Foreign Exchange Sub-Commission under the chairmanship of Gloria Stuart is sponsoring a program of international correspondence. Since the main goal of this sub-commission is to further international understanding through the exchange of ideas between American and foreign students, the chairman has requested that interested American students submit a brief resume including name, address, age, interests, and other relevant information to assist the chairman and her group in "matching" potential correspondents. Direct resumes to College of St. Rose, Albany, N. Y.

East Still Bastion Of Foreign Languages

A survey of 971 American colleges and universities reveals that the East remains a bastion of modern foreign languages teaching, particularly in the numbers of different languages offered students. Of the top 11 collegiate language centers in the nation, six were found to be in the East, three in the Mid-west, and two in the Far West.

Far in front is Columbia University where 41 languages were being taught during the 1954-55 period of the unique survey. Second and third ranking institutions were Harvard, teaching 29 different modern languages, and Yale, teaching 25.

The survey was conducted by the Foreign Language Program of the Modern Language Association of America which set out four years ago to make the most intensive language fact-finding survey in the history of the United States. The survey unearthed many other interesting facts about languages in American institutions of higher learning, some confirming existing beliefs, others quite startling to educators.

Perhaps most startling of all was the fact that 38 institutions reported they offer no modern foreign language instruction at all, while 493—almost exactly half of the 971 reporting—said they offer no other foreign language instruction than in French, Spanish, and German.

The survey confirmed the fact that French remains the most favored foreign language in America. A total of 905 institutions of the 971 reported instruction in French. However, Spanish had climbed to a close second by the 1954-55 academic year, being taught in 807 institutions, a scant 38 schools behind French. German stood third with 825 schools, and Italian fourth with 212.

The influence of the Soviet Union's position in the modern world is clearly reflected in the fact that Russian is now taught in 183 schools, making it the fifth-ranking modern language taught in the U.S. After Russian the number of institutions offering each individual language fell off sharply. Portuguese running a weak sixth with 69 centers, and Swedish with 31.

In a survey prologue, Professor William R. Parker, recently resigned as Executive Secretary of the MLA and now on the Indiana University English faculty, notes that 72 per cent of the world's total population—some one billion, nine hundred million persons—speak as natives a language other than "those usually taught in American colleges and universities."

The survey gives graphic evidence of this. Chinese, spoken by some 500,000,000 persons, for example, is taught in only 29 schools. Japanese, spoken by 100,000,000, is offered by only 22 institutions, Korean (with 32,-000,000 speakers) by only 20. Hindu-Urdu, spoken by 150,000,-000 persons in India, is listed by only six institutions, and Malay, spoken by another 70,000,000, by only five institutions.

In fact, the survey—listing 76 world languages spoken by a million or more speakers natively—shows that 58 languages are taught by five or fewer schools. Of this 56, a total of 27—including such great tongues as Javanese (41 million speakers), Marathi (28 millions(, Gujarati (20 million), Kavarese (15 millions, Hausa (nine millions), Swahili (eight millions), and others—are taught nowhere at all in the United States.

The top 11 collegiate language centers, according to the survey, are Columbia, 41; Harvard, 26;

After spending approximately two hours exploring each shop at the Trade Area School in Demark, South Carolina, the group journeyed to Lucy Laney High School in Augusta, Georgia.

Tigers Defeat Scats 11-7; 6-3

By Julius Browning

The Savannah State College "Tigers" won their second and third game of the season by beating South Carolina Area Trade School 11-7 and 6-3 in Denmark, South Carolina. The tigers displayed their hitting power in the first game with Louis Ford and Ray Fuller supplying the power. Ray Fuller collected with a triple in the first inning with a mate aboard and Louis Ford hit his first home-run of the season in the third with a man on base. Willie Ludden won his second game of the season without a defeat.

The Tigers were never in serious trouble in the second game, because the ace of the mound staff, Moses King, could do nothing wrong. King struck out the first five men to face him and the hitting of Albert Lee, Robert Porter, Ray Fuller, Earl Nelson, and Louis Ford completely subdued the opposition. King helped his own cause by collecting three singles and struck out fourteen batters, the highest for a "Tiger" pitcher this season.

The Spotlight

By Ernestine Hall

This picture of Jeannette Miriam Baker was taken a year ago when she graduated from Evans County High School, Claxton, Georgia. I feel that this picture is appropriate in that all over the United States other High school seniors are preparing to make this all-important step.

Let us look into the life of one of the many young ladies who felt that a high school education was not enough. What she has accomplished should inspire other young people to follow in her footsteps.

In a year's time at Savannah State College, Jeannette has been accepted as a member of the Arconean Club of the Rho Beta Chapter, Zeta Phi Sorority, was voted financial secretary of the Freshman class, and elected treasurer of the Camilla Hubert Hall House Council.

Jeannette M. Baker

It was not surprising to me to hear a fellow classmate of Jeannette's remark that, "When that girl speaks in dormitory council meetings, everybody listens". Jeannette has a dynamic personality and she is one of the persons you can put on your list of names of people who are "going places".

Jeannette's hobbies are cooking, sewing, and meeting all kinds of people. While interviewing Jennette she said, "I like to participate in all sports and campus activities in which I can contribute something. I particularly like public speaking and church activities". After she made this statement no doubt was left in any mind as to the fine person she is.

Jennette plans to major in home economics, specializing in foods and nutrition, which will prepare her for being a dietitian.

This summer Jeannette will work at the Parkway Child Care Center in New York City. Wherever you may go Jeannette, remember that THE SPOTLIGHT IS ON YOU.

Leading Jazz Men On New School Of Jazz

Announcement of faculty appointments to the new School of Jazz in Lenox, Mass., was made by John Lewis, Executive Director of the school.

Some of the most important names in modern jazz will head the faculty of the new school which will take over the musical leadership of the Tanglewood area in western Massachusetts when the Boston Symphony departs on August 11th.

John "Dizzy" Gillespie, who, with the late Charlie Parker, is considered one of the key creative influences in modern jazz, will teach trumpet. Oscar Peterson, Canadian born pianist and one of the stars of "Jazz at the Philharmonic," will teach piano as will John Lewis who is pianist and musical director of the Modern Jazz Quartet. Ray Brown, many-time poll winner as the top jazz bass man, will teach that instrument; Max Roach, for a half dozen years accorded a place among the best jazz drummers, and leader of his own group, will instruct in drums. Herb Ellis, of the Oscar Peterson Trio, will teach guitar, and Milt Jackson, recording artist and member of the Modern Jazz Quartet, will be in charge of vibraharp. Capital Airlines Maintains Proposal

Mr. James W Austin, Vice President, Traffic and Sales of Capital Airlines, will testify before the Civil Aeronautics Board on or about March 10, concerning their proposal for special student rates. The USNSA News (See No. 6) erroneously announced that Capital had given up its proposal in the face of formal protest by other airlines.

USNSA has communicated with Mr. Austin to state its position regarding low-cost student travel in this country and its concern for student economic welfare. Student governments who desire to express their opinions on this proposal should write directly to Capital Airlines.

YOU'VE PROBABLY HEARD of torch songs (music to cry by), Air Force songs (music to fly by), and Aloha songs (music to bye-bye). The Lucky Strike song is music to buy by: it's a pretty ditty that's devoted strictly to Luckies. Naturally, that makes it a Cheerful Earful! It reminds you that Luckies are tops and that better taste is the pleasin' reason. Luckies' taste comes from fine tobacco—mild, good-tasting tobacco that's TOASTED to taste even better. So, as the jingle says, "Light up a Lucky, it's light-up time!" You'll say it's the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked!

STUDENT ELECTION DAY—Shown above are a few of the approximately 600 voters who came to the polls on Thursday, April 25 to elect Robert Tindal, Carl Roberts and Dorothy Davis as President of the Student Council, Vice-president of the Student Council and Miss Savannah State respectively on election day, April 25. Standing behind the table are Isiah McIver and Eugene Hagan who are the vice-president and treasurer of the Student Council.

"The American Student—Profile and Promise," the Tenth National Student Congress, will be held on the University of Michigan campus August 30-30. More than 1000 delegates, who have been duly selected to represent their student bodies by the democratically elected student governments or their certified alternates with voting privileges, will attend the annual Congress to discuss, debate, and vote on policies of the Association, which will mandate a framework of action for the ensuing academic year. Besides helping to formulate the objectives of the Association for 1957-58, delegates will elect national officers to carry out the legislation enacted by student government representatives.

Sponsored by the United States National Student Association, the Congress provides facilities for the student leaders of this country to meet and discuss mutual problems, programs and plans in workshop settings. The Association, which represents over 720,000 students in 326 colleges and universities joined together by their elected student governments, establishes, through the democratic processes of the Congress, the policies and programs of USNSA.

Keynoting the 10th Congress will be Dr. Buell Gallagher, President, City College of New York. Accompanying Dr. Gallagher on the speaker's platform will be other prominent statesmen, educators, and world leaders.

Providing for complete and intelligent consideration of all issues affecting students as students, the Congress is organized on three levels of activity. Participants attend preliminary orientation sessions and meet in groups of 20-25 to discuss proposals of the sub-commissions; convene to further discuss proposals of the sub-commissions in the latter commission meetings where some are formulated into reports and resolutions; and finally, attend the plenary sessions of the Congress during which they vote officially upon those resolutions.

9th Congress delegates were greeted by President Eisenhower, who stated: "Throught your leadership in the field of student government and through campus opinion you have a great opportunity to make your significant contribution to higher education. I know your deliberations during the Congress will develop new approaches to meeting today's problems and you will not lack vigor in suggesting them when you return home."

Focusing attention on the student leaders of foreign countries who are invited by USNSA to observe the democratic processes manifested by the Congress, the President continued: "As you exchange ideas with your guests from other national unions, you will discover new ways of bringing into our social and cultural life the 35,000 students from other nations overseas currently studying in American colleges. This will promote international understanding and bring us closer to our goal of dynamic peace."

Students who take the opportunity to participate in the Congress will join in the 10th anniversary celebration of USNSA's service to the educational community and the beginning of a second decade of student leadership.

Carnegie Institute To Improve Student Body

Student Congress at Carnegie Institute of Technology recently took three positive steps toward improving the Congress' function as a truly representative student body.

Individual committee reports will hereafter be asked for at each meeting for greater student participation. Congress decided that from now on any representative who misses two consecutive meetings will automatically lose his vote, and thus the vote of the people or group which he is representing. Congress also discussed the controversial question of the student activities fee. The committee which sent out questionaires to various colleges and universities asking for information on similar fees reported on its findings.

The general trend of answers showed that twenty-six colleges paid a fee which was managed by a student-faculty set up. The average fee was thirteen dollars per semester, the high being fifty dollars per semester and the twenty-five cents per semester.

From discussion on these results another possibility for the use of an activities fee here has been proposed. This plan would set up scholarships to be awarded to deserving campus activities leaders.

Such scholarships would not only reward activities leaders for their efforts, but also it would encourage more students to be interested in extra-curricular work and promote better quality work in all campus organizations.

However, the original idea of an activities fee to help various

Recently under fire was the USNSA petition opposing "apartheid" in the "open" universities of South Africa, according to Neville Rubin of the National Union of South African Students in a letter to Reginald Green of the sponsoring NER. Said Rubin: "You might be interested to know that a story on your petition and the efforts of NSNSA received front page coverage in the largest English-language daily in Cape Town and was accorded the distinction of a reply in the first leader of the Government's local organ "Die Burger," which attacked NUSAS . . . and criticized USNSA for having taken action."

Reading Clinic Part Of The Summer Program

Under the direction of Robert Holt, assistant professor in the Department of Languages and Literature, Savannah State College's Reading Clinic is extending its activities throughout the summer months as a regular part of the school's program.

Since the need of students and teachers to read and interpret material effectively has become apparent to many educators as a vital problem that needs looking into, programs such as the one functioning at Savannah State have proven to be of great help to many students and teachers.

The program is supervised by an instructor in the English Department who has been trained to do this specialized work. Many students attend the clinic and they are derived from three sources: (1) students are recommended by the office of General Education; (2) students are recommended by teachers who recognize weaknesses of students; (3) students who desire to improve their reading ability volunteer to come.

The clinic offers many opportunities for self-improvement as well as supervised improvement. The clinic attempts to work out any type problem which the students might have. Speed, comprehension, and vocabulary building are emphasized to improve the ability on the student's part to do study-type work. Students are given test upon entering the clinic to find out their abilities to determine their weaknesses; after this is done the program is individualized to meet the need of each student. The total program is essentially bookcentered, but some use of mechanical devices are employed.

At present there are twenty students taking advantage of the opportunity that awaits all students at Savannah State College. The clinic is open five days a week, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays the clinic is open at the 3rd period (10:20-11:10); Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the 4th period (11:10-12:10); and Wednesdays and Thursdays at the 5th Period (12:00-1:10).

VISITING PROFESSOR—John A. Springs, dean of men at Cheyney State Teachers College, Cheyney, Pennsylvania, is the summer school director of the workshop in Methods and Materials of Teaching the Mentally Retarded Children.

Jason Is Member Language Staff

Speaking with a pronounced Spanish accent, Howard McLean Jason, new instructor of foreign languages, made the following statement about Savannah State College in an interview yesterday:

"It reminds me of Hampton because it's on the waterfront. It also reminds me of Southern Puerto Rico. It's flat, dry and sandy with lots of mosquitoes. The only difference is I don't hear any Spanish and don't see any sugar cane growing."

Born of American parents in Puerto Rico, Mr. Jason came to the United States at the age of 19. He entered Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, and received the B. A. degree in 1929. In 1932, he received the M.A. degree from Columbia University and has also done further study there.

His major field is Romance Languages (Spanish and French), and his minor is English.

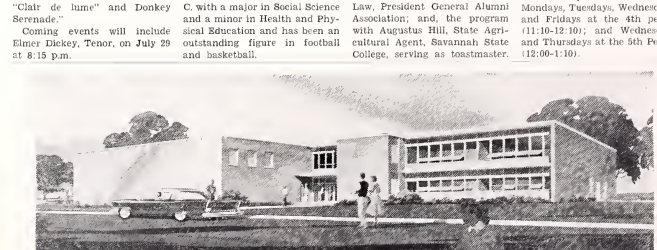
For one year he taught at Mary Allen Seminary, Crockett, Texas, an all-girls' school. It was quite a change after spending four years at Lincoln, said Mr. Jason

He has taught at West Kentucky Industrial College and Kentucky State College. He worked as a translator for almost two years in the Office of Censorship, Washington, D. C., and served three years in the Armed Forces.

Mr. Jason makes his home in Tuscumbia, Alabama, with his wife and daughter.

During the many years spent in America, after associating the winter season with snow on the ground from pictures on Christmas cards, Mr. Jason said he has not yet become accustomed to the long winters. In his comment on the weather conditions he seemed a little distressed because in December there is snow on the ground and it is cold. In January there is a little snow; and, in February and March there is no snow, but it is still cold, he said.

Because the campus affords so many fair away memories, Mr. Jason said, "I makes me feel as though I'm at home."



The proposed $500,000 library is pictured above. The half-million dollar structure will house a Librarian's Office, Lobby, Stack and Processing Room, Receiving Room, Staff Lounge, Audio-Visual Department, Seminar Room and Heating and Air Conditioning Room. The entire building is of fireproof construction.

Developing Responsibility

By H. V. Nevels, Jr.

Charles Darwin, a late 19th century scientist, established a doctrine respecting the origin of species as derived by descent, with variation from parent forms through the natural selection of those best adapted to survive in the struggle for existence. This theory simply means that the individual who is better prepared to meet the demands of nature and the modern problems of the world will live and survive while the unprepared will falter under pressure.

Our colleges were established for the purpose of preparing young men and women for the great and grave task of competing in society. The prepared individual can enter the varied fields of society with the background of a college education and experience. Our colleges seek to develop the individual's personality, knowledge of the accumulative facts of life, both spiritual and material, and most of all preparedness for life in the raw. These are the things students expect out of college. "To face the world as experienced adults and not as children is our aim," is a phrase often heard on the campus.

If these are the things students expect out of college then this is what they should get. But these prerequisites that are needed can only be given when adults are treated as adults and not as children. This is one of the most important aspects of the growth and development of the individual, for it leads the college student gradually into the adult world.

Some colleges do not feel that college students should be treated as adults. Why? I do not know. But two years ago an article appeared in a leading magazine telling how a college Dean of Women, in a mid-western college, fought for the right to treat the senior women of the college as adults should be treated. She explained that the dormitory council that if within a year these women are going to graduate and go out into life alone, they should be given the chance to understand and find out what adulthood is like. They cannot find out if they are treated like children. As a result the senior women were given the freedom to stay out as late as they desire, and many restrictions were lifted to give them the freedom they needed. If this was good or bad, I cannot say but I know for myself as an individual in college I want to be treated as an adult and not as a child.

The average student feels this way and wants to be prepared for this responsibility not in an idealistic sense but in a realistic sense. The increasing complexity of society and cultural advances demands realism of men and women. Until these needs are met and fulfilled, no college graduate can honestly say "I am ready."

A Student's Dream

When plans for the half-million dollar library were released by Dr. William R. Payne, president, the dream of the entire student body seemed nearer in becoming a reality.

Among the students seeking varied avenues to higher education, the new library will afford all the modern facilities necessary, in satisfying their demand for knowledge.

Not only will the building provide an added beauty to the campus, but new experiences, opportunities, and comfort await within its walls.

A new spirit will reign among students who exalt in the beauty and progress of their campus—a spirit vital to the moral of the institution.

This half-million dollar library is a student's dream. When that dream becomes a reality, a new Savannah State will be born.

Hungary Students Write Impression

Recent events in Hungary have focused attention on the role of students in the fight for freedom. For this reason, we are sending you a series of seven autobiographical sketches written by Hungarian student escapees, which were compiled by our NSA coordinator at Hunter College. These students are currently participating in the language training program at Bard College with which USNSA has cooperated closely. We believe that you will find this series timely as well as informative to your readers, who can gain a personalized perspective into the thoughts and feelings of this cross section of student freedom fighters

BOY

I was asked to write a short composition about what happened to me and about my first impressions of the United States. It is very difficult to really answer such a question because my experiences and feelings are so many and widespread that I could not describe them within the frame of a short story.

People are different. All have different ideas, and perhaps this difference of opinion promotes world development, and pushes our life forward. But there are special circumstances in which Austria and Hungary, I started alone from Budapest and after four days of marching, I arrived at the frontier. It was at night; I could only guess the direction of the border. My left shoe, on which I wear a machine, was bloody by the end of the long march. I thought, I felt I could not go on. Finally, I perceived the border sign meaning life to me. After a few more steps, I was standing on Austrian soil. The Austrian border patrols carried me in their hands to the nearest community. Here I met more exhausted, tired, and torn people . . . both men and women. They were lying on straw prepared for them in a hurry. We waited for the morning to see what was going to happen to us.

And perhaps the same thoughts were on everybody's mind and perhaps everybody would give a similar answer to an occasional un-asked question If someone had asked me what I felt right I knew in advance that a month later I'd learn the English language in one of the most beautiful colleges as a result of a scholarship, in relatively the greatest luxury, and surely have cried from happiness. And now as I think back, I am convinced that we would have been all very happy to be in advance what has happened to us since, there at the Austrian border in a situation without perspective, in uncertainty and fearing the future.

And why do I describe all this? Just to remind many, many Hungarian youngsters and perhaps adults too, of something that happened to us not so long ago. Sometimes it is useful to remember past events and learn what we owe to ourselves in the first place and to many others like us.

Nobody can build his or her future life on what he or she did or did not do in Hungary. We have shown and still can show how much we are worth and to show who we are. Let us not save our efforts to do what we have to do, because we shall enjoy the fruits of our efforts.

President's Message

As one senses the situation in our country today, one is faced with many statements indicating the swift movement of affairs. Everywhere people are talking about the rapidity of change. As the discussion continues, one often wonders what things are permanent and enduring. Perhaps it is meant that the changes are not all complete and fundamental in nature. The variety and number of changes often give the illusion that everything is changing.

Among the enduring or permanent things needed in our society is the ability to think. In all societies of the past, the ability to think clearly has been the chief means by which progress has been made. Many of the societies and cultures non-existent today became so because the peoples were unable to think properly. In mass media communication an unusual premium has been placed on thinking ability. Wherever there are many choices to be made, thinking becomes the principal means of making the right choice. As one makes use of the radio, television, aeroplane, camera and other devices such as the newspaper, magazine, recordings, and books, he can find many answers to every question generated in his mind.

To arrive at an adequate solution to a problem it is necessary to weigh evidence as a part of a system of values. The values which one develops as he matures are related to his society and education, both formal and informal. Students who enter college often feel that a four-year program is too long to wait before becoming active in adult life have a different set of values from those who see the four years of college as a basis for a profession which they would like to pursue. It is often necessary to decide whether one will have a more certain material comfort and luxuries now or at a period five or ten years later. To think through a problem one may need in addition to studies, books, newspapers, and other materials, personal conference with some one prepared to assist in the thinking—a counselor, teacher, psychologist, or psychiatrist. The decision, however, is one only the individual himself can make. Usually when its made it will be satisfactory if it is thought through carefully in terms of the student's background, resources, ideals, and aspirations.

The ability to think like any other characteristic or trait can be developed in terms of each individual. The schools, elementary, high school and college, can play an important part in this development. The opportunities to think presented students at all levels will provide training in this area. Methods of teaching and learning utilized by the school and the teacher will become important factors in this development process. Teachers at all levels in the schools are beginning to provide better training in this area. The emphasis here is not being put on the teacher alone. Pupils and students are assuming larger and larger roles in their own education by recognizing the fact that one educates himself. This tendency toward the development of abilities to think, promises to be the major factor in the continuation of progress individually and collectively in our society.

A REVIEW OF SPORTS

By Thomas Jones

The subject most frequently discussed on the campus is—which team will win the pennant in the National and American Leagues. Presently the races in both are very heatedly contested.

In the American League the contest is between the New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox, with the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox following closely in third and fourth places, respectively.

The Yankees, who were odds-on favorites to run away with the American League pennant, find the White Sox giving stiff competition The Yankees do not appear to have the punch and steam as in former years.

The question of what happened to the Yankees can be answered by stating that their mainstay, "Yogi" Berra, is having the worst season of his career. He is batting .225 and is not hitting homers and in the clutch as expected of him. The Yankee's ace pitcher, "Whitey" Ford, has been out most of the season with numerous injuries. Their reserves on the bench are not coming through in the clutch when needed.

On the whole the American League appears to be somewhat stronger than it was last year. In years gone by the Yankees would win an aggregate of 60 or 70 games from the second division clubs, the worse than an even split with the first division clubs and breeze in with the pennant. But this year the Yankees are taking their lumps from the second division clubs and as a result are not running away with the pennant.

From this quarter the Yankees will be in the World Series come October, but if they should stumble along the way, if Berra and Ford do not pick up the slack and if the White Sox get a little more hitting—just watch out for those White Sox.

Over in the National League it is the same old story: a dog eat dog affair and it would be foolhardy for anyone to attempt to predict the outcome.

At the season's beginning it was a pick your choice between the Brooklyn Dodgers, Milwaukee Braves and Cincinnati Redlegs. But now the Philadelphia Phillies, New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals are making the fight for the National League pennant a six-team race. The teams in the National League are so evenly balanced that no one team can build up a substantial lead. As evidence of this the sixth place New York Giants are only seven games out of first place. Any team that can win five or six straight games is the team to beat out.

From this quarter the prediction is that the New York Yankees will be fighting the Dodgers in the World Series come October.

Post Mortem . . . In the National League Stan Musial will win the batting, runs-batted-in and runs scored titles. Duke Snyder will win the home-run title and the winningest pitcher will be Bob Buhl of the Braves.

In the American League, Ted Williams will win the batting title; Mickey Mantle the runs scored, run-batted-in and home run titles.

Now what's your guess ds to how the Major Leagues will wind up at the season's end?

Knock! Knock!
Oscar.
Oscar who?
Oscar if she loves me.

Excise Tax Exemption Clears Another Hurdle , Approaches House Vote

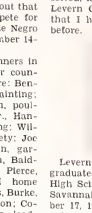
The House Rules Committee has cleared for House floor action H. R. 7125, reported by the Ways and Means Committee, several weeks ago. See this Bulletin Vol VI, No. 17, May 15, 1957). Among other things, the bill provides exemption from excise taxes for non-profit educational institutions. When the bill comes up for House vote about the middle of this month, it will be under a procedure barring floor amendment.

The late date for House action on the excise bill could delay Senate consideration until next year. But Senator Byrd, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has been quoted as saying he thought his Committee could complete action on the bill quickly this session if it did not prove too controversial.

THE SPOTLIGHT

By Ernestine Hill

While walking across the campus sometime ago, I was wondering who would be my Spotlight subject for this month. Without realizing it, I was crossing the street as a truck came very near me. My problem was solved, for driving the truck was Levern Carter. It surprised me that I had not thought of him before.



Levern, from Baxley, Georgia, graduated from Appling County High School in 1955. He entered Savannah State College September 17, 1955 studying Radio and Television the first two quarters and in the Spring quarter starting his academic work in the field of industrial Education.

There is hardly a student attending Savannah State who does not know Levern. Working for the Building and Grounds Maintenance group, he is often seen driving one of the school trucks around the campus. He is always busy, but never too occupied to give you a bright smile. He is the type of person whom when you meet makes the day more cheerful. He is an intelligent, polite, and handsome young man who has a way of making every girl he is around feel that she is something special.

Levern's hobbies are working on all kinds of electrical appliances, and enjoying all kinds of music. His plans after graduation are to teach for a few years and then work in some large corporation, specializing in electronics.

This writer predicts a great future ahead of you, Lavern, and always remember that "The Spotlight Is On You."

"The Drift"

I. Aloysius McIver

Freshmen are, for the most part, religious enthusiasts during their first quarter or semester at many of our institutions of higher learning. They, however, loose this religious desire before the spring season commences and they frequently never, during their college careers, reunite the yearning to attend or participate in religious functions.

It is both sad and amazing to observe students lose, in such a short period, the characteristics that parents, in many instances, have devoted the greater portion of their lives attempting to instill.

In private schools, religion is emphasized to a greater extent than in state supported schools. Religion for the most part is a required subject in private schools, whereas in state schools, if it is offered it is an elective.

It is quite possible that the absence of religions from many of our curricula tends to do its share in de-emphasizing the necessity of religion in many of our colleges and universities.

There are, however, other reasons why more students do not support, as they do other activities, the religious programs of their institutions of higher learning.

There is a strong possibility that this drift is due to the fact that the individuals who are employed to instill and teach students very seldom or never frequent the religious programs of the institutions in which they are employed. This observed failure can be a more crippling disease than many of the other explanations that we may consider as primary.

As much as many individuals would like to disagree, they, however, must concede that students are influenced by, in some instances, the individuals who are hired to prepare them to encounter and remove the obstacles they will eventually encounter in life.

Tomorrow's world will, I must admit, be a sad predicament if many of our present leaders weild a great amount of influence on our aspiring leaders.

Many of our leaders are never seen at our educational and religious functions. The student gets the impression that attending these programs is not essential since the individuals who are leading do not consider them worth their precious moments.

Coming to college is supposed to strengthen individuals. For the most part, many become weaker, especially in their religious heritage. Even though teachers constantly contend that their primary aim is to attempt to mold matured, competent, well-rounded citizens, they fail to realize that an individual could not be considered well-rounded if he is not taught or encouraged to revere a supreme being. In most cases the church or some other meeting place is considered the proper place to revere this being.

Being treated as an infant does not foster maturity. If students are not to be treated as matured individuals, then the adults should take advantage of this prolonged infancy and train the infants to walk the right paths in his infancy so that when he becomes mature and must be counted with the strong, he will not be stranded at the crossroads where survival is an impossibility.

Too frequently we remind our comrades that action speaks louder than words. It has also been a custom for us to encourage individuals to practice their preachings. The presence of our leaders at religious functions and their daily conduct does much to influence many. The drift from religion in college cannot be curbed by persuasive lectures. People will listen to almost anyone if he can speak well and has something to say. Individuals do not spend all of their time listening. A great portion of the listener's time is spent observing to see whether those who are trying to teach believe and abide by their teachings.

Standards

I. Aloysious McIver

In an environment where the supremacy of the presonality is stressed, it is very discomforting to hear colleagues cite instances where certain individuals must always pay the penalty or adhere to the standards, whereas "favorites" can get special favors. If this accusation is true, somewhere along the path someone has or is disregarding a fundamental moral principle—human personality.

Standards are set in many instances to foster uniformity and to prevent chaos. Standards however, vary in different environments, but be what they may, standards do prevent confusion and elliminate many problems.

If rules are to be effective and just, they must apply to everyone concerned. Yet, contrary to this conception, we have seen many instances where certain individuals are given "breaks" or permitted to "slide" while others suffer.

Individuals who grant special favors and permit certain individuals to slide, fail to realize that "sliding" is not one of the accepted practices that will endear individuals to others in the many obstacles that will be encountered in environments where "sliding" is not tolerated. As soon as we realize that we have to make our "breaks" and that they are not given, much of favor granting and sliding will cease to cripple the fortunate unfortunates who seek the easy road to the top.

The adhering to standards and the curbing of sliding have been an impossibility for many responsible individuals. Maybe it would be better if we eliminated the term "standard" from our vocabulary since there are those among us who believe that, in many instances, the word has lost its true meaning. To some the word denotes favors while it denotes to others unpleasantness.

The proposing, establishing and writing of standards, be they requirements for a degree or the laws governing traffic violations, have in many instances been a waste of precious time and paper. Many laws no longer serve their purposes because there are too many who have enough "pull" to be exempted from the standards that were supposedly set up to govern everyone concerned.

Becoming A Full-Fledged Member

By J. Campbell, Jr.

For good or evil, "groupism" has become firmly entrenched in our American society, and the old rugged individualism, like the frontier, has all but disappeared. The tendency of individuals to join groups has been more pronounced in America than in any other country. We are more concerned with the problems of groups, group participation, and group belongingness, than we are with the individual and his problems.

The vast number of clubs, fraternities, sororities, honorary societies, and other types of organizations found on our college campus furnish evidence of the prevalence of "groupism" in our society. The membership roster of these organizations hold many names, but few of them can boast of full participation from their members in the form of attendance, cooperation, and the carrying out of specific assignments.

Somehow "getting in" the group seems to be the most important thing. The fact that every group or organization exists for some expressed purpose or function escapes too many of us. Once "in" we all too soon forget the purpose of the organization; forget to pay our dues, to attend meetings; in point of fact, we forget everything except that somehow we are members.

The work of the organization is performed by a few industrious, conscientious members. If they succeed in so doing the majority bask in the limelight; if the project is a failure, the majority disclaim any attachment to it, sometimes even to the organization.

Membership in most organizations is a voluntary deed. No individual is forced to join the types of clubs and organizations which are found on college campuses. Therefore, if an individual is not willing to work toward the goals of the organization, he should refrain from joining. Every organization has rules by which to expel members for non-cooperation, but few have the courage to actually do so. If this privilege were exercised by the organization more frequently, a tremendous amount of "dead weight" could be thrust aside.

Being a member of an organization is not enough. One must become a full-pledged member—must cooperate—must attend meetings, pay dues, and participate in discussions and debates. And most important, one must learn to accept the failures of the organizations as well as the successes.

For those who wish to belong to an organization but are unwilling to become full-pledged members, I suggest that you band together in the formation of a "Do Nothing" Club. As the name implies, the members would have nothing to do—no meetings to attend, no dues to pay, no goals to achieve, no standards to uphold. Incidentally, if you're seeking a president, my hat's in the ring.

President's Message

American communities are in the midst of the year-long celebration of the centennial of the National Education Association. During the celebration many opportunities will appear to study and evaluate the activities and achievements of the organization during its first hundred years. The goals which were selected during the early years of the organization have continued to be re-established in terms of the changes that have been taking place in American life.

Since the beginning of our first schools in this country, Americans have been concerned about reducing the illiteracy rate. Remarkable progress has been made in the decrease of illiteracy, if the ability to read and to write one's name is considered a minimum standard. In most American communities today there are few people who have not achieved this minimum goal. The concept of literacy, however, has developed to a point where much more is required of the literate person. The recognition of the need for the participation of each individual for the greater good of the community places a premium on intelligent action and well-developed personality. It is reasonable to predict that the concept of literacy will grow as long as man continues to make progress.

In our society today Americans are faced with the problems of developing abilities required in thinking, evaluating, appreciating and understanding. Although millions are reading, writing, and ciphering, there is evidence that the number who can make decisions on the basis of their reading, listening, and viewing is not large. American education will be concerned with the development on a large scale of abilities to discriminate, evaluate, and to make decisions. The multiple media of communication which would include printed and written material, pictures, radio, television, and telephone present a complex world in which individuals need special abilities to live adequately. The goals of education today and in the future will be centered about improvement of the individual's abilities to live in a complex society. The ability to live and to make progress in such a society will continue to be conditioned by the self-direction of the individual members. Students in high schools and colleges will be expected to build into their personalities the elements necessary for charting paths that lead to established and desirable goals. As individuals advance on the educational ladder, they will be expected to assume progressively more responsibility for the quality and quantity of their education.

What's An Editor's Job?

As the college year neared the midway point, many editors found themselves seriously thinking and writing about their proper functions on a campus. Should a paper take sides or shouldn't it? Is it an honest paper if it accepts censorship from anyone? Here are a few views:

University of Kansas' "Daily Kansan" reprinted an editorial from the "Wichita Beacon" on the college paper and its role.

Burton W. Marvin, dean of the William Allen White School of journalism and public information, has declared that it is absolutely essential that the "Daily Kansan" remain neutral in all political situations.

We wonder what the great Emporia editor, who was seldom neutral about anything, would think of such a dictum.

It is easy to understand Dean Marvin's point of view. He is in a ticklish spot because the university is a tax-supported institution. If a student journalist whipped out some sophomoric bit of political writing that offended powerful persons, the dean would take the rap.

And yet surely the philosophy of neutrality is a subject that should not be taught in any institution of high learning. This is not a neutral world.

A neutral campus newspaper is a poor laboratory for training reporters and editors. American newspapers have a noble tradition of championing the cause of good government and social reform and freedom . . . The his-

Joyce Bryant Visits Campus

When a few of the students were going around telling everybody that Joyce Bryant was here, everyone thought it was an April Fool's joke. However it was not, and many of the students did not see her because they thought it was a joke.

Miss Bryant after appearing in Jacksonville, Florida stopped on our campus April 1, 1957. Those who heard her were thrilled. Miss Bryant sang two selections, "My Soul's Been Anchored In De'Lord" and "Because."

Traveling with Miss Bryant were two other students from Oakwood College.

Ella Marie Taylor, who sings soprano and is a Junior majoring in Secretarial Science and Saundra Chandler a Freshman who plays the piano, and is an Elementary major were the Oakwood students who accompanied Miss Bryant, who is a sophomore at Oakwood College majoring in Elementary Education.

These young ladies were house guests of Harriet Miller while they were in Savannah.

Oliver Swaby extended the invitation to Miss Bryant, to visit our campus.

Those who missed her on April 1, may have an opportunity to see her when she comes here for the Spring Arts Festival.

That every student should repeat courses in which he has earned deficient grades if such courses are in his major or minor or if they are special subject requirements?

That it is the student's responsibility to see that incomplete grades are made up and reported to the registrar before the incomplete grades are converted to failures?

That a student who incurs excessive absences should submit to the Dean of Faculty a conclusive official statement setting forth a valid reason for the absences and that the statement should state the precise days and dates when the student was absent?

The Curriculum Laboratory Room is part of a long-range plan to improve the teacher education procedures. It will be temporarily located in Meldrim Hall.

The Press And You

Did you know that your library subscribes to more than 200 periodicals and 20 newspapers and that every day a goodly number of them—still unread—are taken down and replaced by new issues that will in their turn be taken down unopened and unread? Statistics assure us that so far TV's impact on magazines has been surprisingly small. They say that in less than 10 years, TV has become practically universal, but the magazines have gained too. They assure us, too, that newspapers are still considered by the public at their main source of information since radio and TV give little more than bulletins and capsule comments on a few issues.

These findings should give comfort to all who are trying to dispel the wide-spread notion that Johnny can't read. They would too, if factual observation supported the figures. Take a number from five to ten and you will have the number of magazines and newspapers that actually pay their way in most college libraries. In our library the calls are for: Pittsburgh Courier, Ebony, Life, Look, Time, Newsweek, the local and hometown papers. That's all. Except, of course, the ones assigned for class reading and the fashion group.

There is, of course, nothing wrong with reading—or looking at (since a number of titles are of the picture-story type) the newspapers or magazines listed above. This is no campaign for curtailing the reading of these popular periodicals; but one for extended coverage of the news and the thinking of the day. Why not try adding one magazine a month to your established reading list? Glance sometime at the editorials in the newspapers now read. Add from time to time, some material from the New York Times and the perennial Pulitizer prize winning St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Facts About The Negro

The Negro arrived in the New World free from Tuberculosis, and syphilis, or other venereal disease. Livingstone, the famous African missionary and medical doctor, says, Syphilis "dies out in the African interior. It seems incapable of permanence in any form in persons of pure African blood." Syphilis originated in Europe in 1494, when there was a great epidemic of it. As this was two years after the discovery of the New World, it was erroneously believed to have been brought back by the sailors of Columbus.

The Negro was the first artist. The oldest drawings and carvings yet discovered were executed by the Negro people over 15,000 years ago in Southern France, Northern Spain, Palestine, South Africa, and India. The drawings are on rocks, the carvings on bone basalt and ivory.

The Spotlight

By Ernestine Hill

Whenever you see Albert Wheeler walking across the campus, you will find that he hardly ever has time to stop and chat. He could very well be discribed at the campus gadabout because he is always busy and seems to know exactly what he is doing.

Albert, a freshman from Dublin, Georgia, is a graduate of Oconee High School.

Albert's hobbies are reading and collecting and listening to modern jazz records.

The campus activities in which he participates include the Choir and the Newspaper staff. Most of us heard him sing beautifully in chapel not too long ago.

Albert, a very serious minded young man, has definite plans for the future. He intends to major in chemistry, and after finishing college, he plans to join the Air Force and become an officer. During the summer he will be working at the Dublin Veteran Hospital.

Whatever life has in store for you Albert, always remember that the SPOT LIGHT IS ON YOU.

The Dean's List Announced

With the launching of the first satellite, we can readily see the need for brilliant minds —minds capable of competing with even greater minds.

In order for our country to survive, we need you, as college students, to prepare yourselves for the race ahead with scholars all over the world.

Today, much emphasis is being placed on extra-curricular activities and less on the importance of becoming a great scholar. Colleges are turning out some of the greatest athletes of our time, but few scientists, engineers, and chemists.

Scholastic abilities deserve a form of recognition that will challenge all students to set-up as one of their quarterly goals, the Honor Roll.

For those students who excel in their courses and complete any quarter with an average of 2.50 or better, the college has set aside a list of distinction—the Dean's List.

According to Dean Timothy C. Meyers, the following students made the Dean's List for the Spring Quarter: Delores Atterbury, 2.50; Margaret Bing, 2.66; Gladys Brown, 2.55; Arnett B. Carroll, 2.84; Commodore Conyers, 3.00; Evelyn Irene Davis, 2.64; Juanita L. Davis, 2.81; Nathaniel Davis, 2.52; Emmett Denerson, 3.00; Arthur Fluellen, 3.00.

SSC Sets Plans For Homecoming; Gridiron Classic November 23

According to information received from Frank Tharpe, General Chairman, Savannah State College Homecoming Committee, Homecoming will be celebrated on Saturday, November 23, with the gridiron classic between Savannah State and Claflin University. Features of the day will include a parade, alumni meeting and dance.

The display of "Costumes Through The Ages" (theme of this year's parade) is expected to be one of the most elaborate the College has staged in recent years. Floats and cars of class groups, student organizations and alumni chapters will form the main body of the parade. Each will depict some mode of dress through the ages.

Highlights of the parade will be the float bearing "Miss Savannah State" and her attendants. Reigning over this year's festivities will be Dorothy D. Davis, senior, Savannah; with Shirley Thomas, senior, Savannah and Rose M Manigault, senior, Savannah as attendants.

The Savannah State College band and several high school bands will furnish music for the parade.

The College Athletic Field will be decorated with an array of pennants and streamers in the orange and blue of Savannah State and purple and gold of Clafin. A special section of the bleachers will be converted into a private box for the class and organizational queens and their attendants who will make up the court of "Miss Savannah State", and the queen and her attendants will be presented to the public during a special halftime ceremony. "Miss Claflin" and her attendants, as visiting royalty, will be presented along with "Miss General Alumni" and her attendants. The half-time activities will feature music and band formations by the College band.

Immediately following the game, the alumni are scheduled to meet in the College Center, Leonard Law, president of the Savannah State College General Alumni Association will preside. The Savannah Alumni Chapter will serve as the traditional host Chapter.

The Homecoming Dance in Wilcox Gymnasium will mark the close of the festivities.

Prominent Savannahians, qualified by virtue of their occupations or their semi-professional interests in art and music, will be asked to serve as parade judges. Trophies will be awarded for the three best floats, cars and bands. Each float will be judged for appropriateness of theme, uniqueness of idea, and artistry of execution. Campus buildings decorated in keeping with the theme will be judged also.

833 Enrolled Fall Quarter

According to Ben Ingersoll, Registrar at Savannah State College, there are 833 students enrolled at the College for the 1957 fall quarter. This is a decrease of 292 from the 1957 spring quarter. There were 1125 students enrolled during the 1957 spring quarter.

The President's Message

Most of the students enrolled in each of the four classes of the undergraduate college appear to be in a hurry. One often wonders why students enrolled in college feel the fleeting of time. In some instances this feeling is generated by financial pressure and the need to become self-supporting. Sometimes, the haste is generated because the individual has a well-organized plan developed for the achievement of goals within and beyond the college course. If the feeling of haste were generated by the student's goals beyond college, learning might take on a different character. When one knows that he is acquiring techniques, skills, knowledge, understandings, and appreciations for specific achievement, he will take time to acquire these items with his highest degree of perfection. Learning in college would then come to mean more than the completion of courses of study and the passing of examinations. Students would attempt to evaluate the depth and breadth of their own learning. If one knows the things to be used in arriving at his goal, he recruits the best means and tools required to perform the task.

It is unfortunate that many college students decrease the value of their college education by failing to establish objectives and goals that lead beyond the bachelor's degree. One often hears a student say that he would like to have changed his major before he graduated. A further explanation is given that a change in major would mean a longer period in college. Since the student desires to graduate on time, he will continue to pursue a program which he does not like and does not intend to follow. In all probability, the selection of the program of major concentration was made on the basis of expediency. Too many students receive the coveted diploma and have no idea concerning the direction they expect to take. They find themselves forced to make hasty decisions. Such procedures tend to reduce to a bare minimum intellectual and other types of growth generally expected of the bachelor's program.

Changes in modern life and the early participation of youth in all aspects of our culture require that choices for careers be made early. In a society of literate and educated people where vocations are numerous and on a rapid increase, individuals are encouraged to make plans for careers at an early age. Many vocations require choices to be made early in the secondary school. Some programs in college require that freshmen come with prerequisites in specific areas. At whatever level one may decide to make a decision for a career, there is justifications for taking the time required. To be in a hurry does not mean one would enter a field for which he had no interest or aptitude. It does mean that one would not waste time, energy, and effort by racing to have a certain date placed on the college diploma. In many vocations the general education program of the freshman and sophomore years provides prerequisites and background sufficient for concentration programs or major programs. The thoughtful and serious students are never in such a hurry that they fail to attain their achievements according to their highest respective potentialities.

Dr. W. K. Payne.

Religion With Science — By Harry V. Nevels

Children are taught at an early age to believe in someone or something. During their early lives their views on religion are molded to living a Christian life as written in the Bible. They are taught to believe in the Bible of the Christian faith and to accept no other theories except those advocated in the Bible as to the creation of the earth.

The chapter to which I refer states that God created heaven and earth; the fish of the sea; the fowl of the air, and the beast of the land and then He created man. This is belief. This is faith and it is to be taken seriously. It is to be taken as part of life itself.

But in many college courses there are two theories that seem to falsify the teachings of the Bible. The "Theory of Dynamic Encounter" states that the earth and all its phenomena were created through a series of gradual changes which take longer than seven days according to our conception of time today. Also there is a theory that states man descended from a primate —that somewhere man broke away from the primate species and evolved to what we know as modern man today.

Many students find it difficult to face this problem objectively and many times it shakes them in their faith. They face this problem of what a textbook relates and what they have been taught to believe all their lives. Many students have left their classes contemplating over what has passed in class. And they are in doubt as to what to believe.

But what the student must learn to understand is that theories are not proven facts. They must be accepted as supposition, as part of a learning process. When looked at in this fashion, one can objectively understand the touching of the sciences and remain a Christian.

The Periscope

By Robert Tindal

Space Flight

As the periscope makes its wide swing around our globe it comes to focus on the Iron Curtain and what may be the greatest scientific achievement of man in the twentieth century. The world was both shocked and bewildered to hear that the Russians had successfully launched the first man-made satellite. This astounding accomplishment by the Communists had a resounding effect on the countries that make up the free world. The full effect, however, cannot be known until it is clearly determined how far advanced the Russians are in the field of outer-space travel. The United States has reported since the launching of the Russian man-made moon that it will start the launching of its earth satellite in December of this year.

With the successful launching of Sputnik I, as it has been named by the Russians, there is no doubt in the minds of the great powers that her claim of over a month ago of successfully firing an Intercontinetal Ballistic Missile is true. What effect this will have on the rest of the world no one will chance a guess. Here in the United States it has caused numerous discussions and investigations to try to determine where we fell behind Russia in this project and how she was able to win this race for outer-space invasion

The Middle East

Continuing its swing the periscope settles now on the Middle East where it is being said the west is suffering another set back. The incident that many claim was the beginning of the west falling from favor among the middle eastern nations was the refusal of the United States and England to lend Egypt the money to build the Aswan Dam. The truth of this statement can only be proved or disapproved by the men who head the governments in this troubled area.

Here At Home

As the periscope comes closer to home it settles on Miami, Florida, where the International Brotherhood of Teamsters are holding the convention to elect a new President. All the eyes of the country were focused on this convention to see whether or not the delegates from the locals were going to support the proposed candidate James Hoffa in the face of the late Congressional investigations which have indicted Mr. Hoffa for improper handling of union affairs. Needless to report Mr. Hoffa won an almost unanimous vote. What are the indications of such action. Is the Teamsters Union declaring war?

The periscope now rests on Little Rock, Ark., and Central High School, where the President of these United States sent federal troops to carry out the law of the land as interpreted by the Supreme Court. How long will they remain? The President says as long as necessary. A fact that may be interesting. It is costing the United States $100,000 dollars per day to maintain these troops in Little Rock. This could become very expensive.

Greenyears

By Yvonne Hooks

Now as I was young and happy with playmates in the greenyears of childhood, time moved forth—in cachusiastic spurts of restless sleeps, in impatient mouthfuls of food, in the weary walk of a harrassed mother, in full-bodied leaps to playmates and playtime.

The day, rolling from the dark abyss of night as overheated broth surges forth from its hot receptacle, lighted and dawned on several children scantily clothed against the summer heat. I, among them, housewife in a restless brood of many—husband, mother-in-law, sister-in-law, distant cousin, dog, cat, rabbit, and four grass roots —based myself by making palatable camphor leaves and sycamore shavings and wet, smooth mud. Served from flat tin pans of old metal, the "vitals" made a gruesome dish. After hopeful hours of doing hair—the grass roots like silent sufferers moved spinelessly in the hands—I and my playmates, browned by sun and weary from busyness and doing fell soundlessly asleep.

The Party

By Frances J Carter

It was my sixth year in a garden of summer roses. The darling buds of May sang to their stems as the golden touches of the speechless candles danced above the honey-breathed cake.

Noon, like an untroubled brook, brought many youthful smiles. The summer sun winked her eye and smiled at the laughter-filled roses dashing about the boundless garden. The unwasted moments ran swiftly away and I, the fairest of all roses, found myself dreaming of unfading flashes of happiness.

The Trip That Never Was

By Robert Tindal

How vivid is the memory of the day of my first trip on a choo-choo. I arose with the sun to prepare to leave, happy as a lark in early spring. I gulped my breakfast and guzzled my milk.

I remember my mother's saying, "You look like a young calf around the mouth." As she wiped my face and hands, I clamored to be dressed so that I would be ready to leave when time came, which was not until the dark shadows fell across the porch. To me all the world was bright and shiny.

Swiftly and from out of nowhere it suddenly began to grow dark and claps of thunder rumbled and streaks of light flashed into the room and the sound of small stones hitting the roof resounded in my ears. The drops began slowly at their birth but grew to manhood with the hour.

My mother reminded me that if the rain continued we would have to postpone the trip. On hearing this, I uttered a silent prayer that the rain would soon cease. But the rain continued to fall in torrents, and soon the street was not visible. And thus the dream of a trip died with the death of the day.

Ford Grants New Program

Grinnell, Ia.—(I.P.) — A Ford Foundation grant of $28,000 for a new program to train business leaders within the context of a liberal arts education was announced here recently by President Howard R. Bowen of Grinnell College. Appeal of the new program will not be limited to students planning to enter business careers.

Commenting on the function of the independent liberal arts college in training future business men, Dr. Bowen said, "Modern business organizations are showing much less interest in narrowly specialized undergraduates whose preparation fits them to fill only one or two kinds of jobs.

"Instead, they want the kind of versatile, creative, and re-

Jungle Reign

By Rosa Lee Boles

The air was fresh and filled with the scent of crushed greenery. And just as the greenery was crushed, so was my pride because I could not soar across the huge stone structure that rose out of the ground between thickly set trees.

These stone structures, in different shapes and sizes, appeared to me as a pyramid would to an ant. A sturdy pole and a little force on my part was all that was needed for me to sail through the air from one structure to another.

To those who were more experienced at this art, I was green, because of my lack of know-how, and yellow, because of my being afraid. My mind finally made up, I faced the problem squarely and took the first leap. I made it. Hours passed, but I could not feel the touch of weariness. Fear had been conquered and self-assurance was at its peak. I was queen and ruler of my childhood jungle.

A Yearbook Letter

Dear Katie,

While down in your fair city last weekend, I went to State's football game with some friends.

I received a note in the mail the other day from Savannah and I thought it was a letter from you until I read the address and found it was from the editor of the yearbook at Savannah State.

I met her during the half and she promised me some material on the publication of a college yearbook. Mrs. Nichols stated in her letter that the cost of the book was most important.

To help with the cost this year the staff is working on some new plans in which everyone can share. It seems that everyone helped Savannah State's yearbook.

Have you subscribed yet? Don't forget to reserve one for me. I'm sure you can spare $1.00! I am enclosing $2.50 plus your dollar deposit.

Thanks for your kindness.

Your friend,
Emma Lou Jordan.

Schools For Young Get Underway; Powell Lab in New Building

By Daniel Washington

Powell Laboratory School and the College Nursery School have made some improvements during the past year—Powell Lab in form of a new building and the nursery in the form of a well-developed program for the coming year.

Powell Laboratory School, under the principalship of Mrs Dorothy Hamilton, formerly located on the west end of the College campus, moved into a new building at the beginning of the 1957-58 school year. The new building is located on the right hand side of Taylor Road entering from Victory Drive. It has eight classrooms and an average enrollment of thirty students per class. On the right wing is located the cafetorium. Here lunch is served and as the name implies, this part of the building is also used for entertainment. The new cafetorium affords an opportunity for the children to become well versed in the social aspect of the school program, according to Mrs. Hamilton.

In its new location Powell Lab runs on the same level as other elementary schools do throughout the county. The classes range from the first to the seventh grade with approximately eight teachers to give instruction.

The College Nursery, under the direction of Miss Zella Owens, has begun its fall instruction in child development.

In an Interview Miss Owens had this to say, "Under a controlled program the nursery tries to develop the social, emotional, physical, mental, and intellectual characteristics of the child."

Most of this is accomplished through group activities. Play and other group activities are supervised, either by the director or by students who are enrolled in Child Development Classes. Upon entering the nursery physical examinations are given the children.

The Nursery has been in operation for several years at Savannah State College as a part of the total program of the institution. The children attending the nursery are children of faculty members and other personnel on the college campus, along with the children of the parents in the immediate college community.

"Wall Street Wizard" Possible For Campus

Some lucky Savannah State student may get to be a "Wall Street Wizard" before the semester is over.

All it takes is an entry blank for Remington Rand's "Share of America" contest, in which the winner gets stocks of his or her choice equal in value to a share of every common stock on the New York Stock Exchange. Remington Rand will pay all brokerage fees. In addition to the first prize, there are 504 other stock prizes.

If the winner has purchased a Remington Electric Shaver during the contest period, from September 30 until December 1, all prizes double. First prize then becomes equivalent to two shares of every common stock on the Exchange.

Entry blanks are at any Remington sales counter and will also be found in advertisements in Life, Saturday Evening Post, Parade and in newspaper supplements and comics.

Higher Standards Set At Ohio

Columbus, O. — (I.P.) — Ohio State University has raised its academic standards for students. The University's Board of Trustees recently enacted new academic standards by giving formal approval to a series of five faculty rule changes, which had been recommended by the Faculty Council and were presented to the board by Ohio State President Novice G. Fawcett.

In brief, the revised rules will require a higher scholastic average for graduation and better performance from the first quarter on. Admission requirements to the University were not changed, so that, generally speaking, any graduate of a first-grade high school still may enroll. But under the new rules, a freshman ranking scholastically in the lowest third of his high school class will be admitted under "special warning."

Students Form New Committee

Gettysburg, Pa.—(I.P.)—A Student Committee on Conduct and Activities has been formed on the campus of Gettysburg College at the suggestion of President Willard S. Paul to handle all discipline cases involving violations of school policy and to discuss current campus problems.

This committee will replace the Student-Faculty Discipline Committee. The new student body will handle all cases involving violations of school policy—drinking, cheating, and immorality—and all cases involving violations of town, state or federal laws, which shall be called major violations. If an honor system is instituted, the student body will choose the method of hearing cheating cases.

Another function of the committe will be to discuss current campus problems and to suggest ideas for improving Gettysburg College. This committee shall function on a trial basis for a period of one semester, after which the student body would vote on its retention.

This committee will follow the same procedure used by the Student-Faculty Committee on Discipline, and will abide by minimum and maximum penalties set down by the Faculty Committee on Student Conduct.

Results of cases handled will not be revealed until the case has been reviewed and passed. The Dean of Men or Dean of Women will be present at all trials to represent the defendant and will have no vote.

The committee's deliberations on cheating will be reviewed by President Paul and his faculty's advisers. Action taken on other major violations will be reviewed by the president and the deans.

Interesting Seniors

By Shirley Thomas

I was walking around the campus enoying our beautiful scenery, when the idea entered my mind of interviewing some of our prospective '58 graduates. Naturally, I looked for our more outstanding ones — that is the ones that have made and are still making worthwhile contributions to our college life.

As I circled the campus from the College Center, I had the privilege of talking with the following persons:

Peter J. Baker is a senior from Kingsland, Georgia, majoring in business administration. Before entering Savannah State, Baker was graduated from Ralph Bunche High School in Woodbine, Georgia.

Upon entering Savannah State College, he was chosen by the members of the Freshman class as their president. He is now active in the Y. M. C. A., Band, Pianist of the Sunday School, Dean of Pledges, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Treasurer and Student Council representatives for the Senior Class and has served as a Collegiate Counselor.

Baker says that upon his graduation from college he plans to teach for a while, after which he would like to do graduate study at the University of Pennsylvania.

Betty Stephens is a senior from Jesup, Georgia, majoring in business education. She is a graduate of the Wayne County Training School, Jesup.

Betty has taken an active part in many of the organizations of the college, she is Basileus of Rho Beta Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, a member of the Yearbook Staff, Sunday School, Business Club and has taken an active part in our Religious Emphasis Week celebration.

Upon graduating Betty plans to teach and further her education as soon as possible. She is interested in attending the University of Wisconsin for her graduate study.

Johnnie Campbell is a native Savannahian and has a major in the area of economics. He is a graduate of Alfred E Beach High School.

Campbell is known throughout our campus and community for his outstanding scholastic work. He has been initiated in Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society, having maintained a cumulative 2.88 average, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity and is a member of the Economides club.

Upon graduating, he plans to further his education at one of our leading universities.

At the end of each of my conversations with these persons I asked them to describe their three years of study at Savannah State College. Surprisingly, they all gave about the same answers. Each person explained that his three years had been informational, interesting, and enjoyable. They all enjoy being a part of the college and its numerous activities, and are proud that they chose Savannah State College for their undergraduate work.

I am sure that if you meet these interesting seniors you will agree that they are assets to our college community and life.

Fashion Review

By Emma Lou Jordan

Ahoy there! You are at the helm of Fall Fashions.

You can sum up the fashion trends for this Fall in one word —The Costume. This is the 19th-century look in clothes. It cuts down the dressing problem (what goes with what) to a minimum.

Well fitted dresses—no more! There are dresses that don't make you look overly dressed. They make you feel pulled together and all in one piece. Add a draw string blouse or rolled up sleeve to a white wool skirt anywhere. You'll have quite an outfit.

For action or attraction there's nothing like the new look in shoes. The pointed look in suede, patent or kid shoes is everywhere

The swing to casual hair styles like the fetching round and V-Bobs is still high on the list in fashions. It's the shorter hair-do for all smart girls because it's much easier to tend. There's a royal charm in the hair-do.

Are you going to connect with Fashion?

Law School Admission Test Given Four Times This Year

Princton, N. J., September 13: The Law School Admission Test required of applicants for admission to a number of leading American law schools, will be given at more than 100 centers throughout the United States on the mornings of November 9, 1957, February 15, April 19, and August 2, 1958. During 1956-57 over 12,000 applicants took this test, and their scores were sent to over 100 law schools.

A candidate must make separate application for admission to each law school of his choice and should inquire of each whether it wishes him to take the Law School Admission Test and when. Since many law schools select their freshmen classes in the spring preceding their entrance, candidates for admission to next year's classes are advised ordinarily to take either the November or the February test, if possible.

The Law School Admission Test, prepared and administered by Educational Testing Service, features objective questions measuring verbal aptitudes and reasoning ability rather than acquired information It cannot be "crammed" for. Sample questions and information regarding registration for and administration of the test are given in a Bulletin of Information.

The Bulletin (in which an application for the test is inserted) should be obtained four to six weeks in advance of the desired testing date from Law School Admission Test, Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, New Jersey. Completed applications must be received at least two weeks before the desired testing date in order to allow ETS time to complete the necessary testing arrangements for each candidate.

By Ernestine Hill

Mildred W. Glover is the type of young lady who stands out among other women. She is a quiet, soft-spoken person who makes people feel warm and contented being around her. She seems to defy the fast modern trend of our life today by her slow, quiet, but accurate actions in her work, the activities in which she participates, and her everyday life All these things may make her appear to the readers of Spotlight who do not know Miss Glover as a dull person to be around, but you could never be so wrong. Anyone who attended the Delta Rush Party last year can tell you differently when they recall how she had the guests roaring with laughter as she did a comical rendition of a song.

Neat and petite, Mildred is a native of Savannah, Georgia, and a graduate of Alfred E. Beach High School of the same city.

She is a senior, majoring in Business Education and minoring in English. Mildred, who is very active in extra-curricular activities, holds office and is a

Reading Clinic Meets Student Needs; Offers Opportunities for Self-Help

Under the direction of Robert Holt, assistant professor in the Department of Languages and Literature, the Savannah State College Reading Clinic begins the 1957-58 year of instruction at the college.

Since the need of students and teachers to read and interpret material effectively has become apparent to many educators as a vital problem that needs looking into, programs such as the one functioning at Savannah State have proven to be of great help to many students and teachers.

The program is supervised by an instructor in the English Department who has been trained to do this specialized work. Many students attend the Clinic and they are derived from three sources; (1) students are recommended by the Office of General Education; (2) students are recommended by teachers who recognize weaknesses of students; (3) students who desire to improve their reading ability volunteer to come.

The Clinic offers many opportunities for self-improvement as well as supervised improvement. The Clinic attempts to work out any type problem which the student might have. Speed, comprehension, and vocabulary building are emphasized to improve the ability on the students' part to do study-type work. Students are given tests upon entering the Clinic to find out their weaknesses; after this is done the program is individualized to meet the need of each student. The total program is essentially book - centered, but some use of mechanical devices is employed.

The Clinic is open four days a week and no registration is required. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays the Clinic is open at the third and fifth periods (10:20-11:10, 1:30-2:20); Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the sixth period (2:30-3:30).

Graduate Record Examinations At Four Nationwide Sessions During 1957-58

Princeton, N. J., September 13: The Graduate Record Examinations, required of applicants for admission to a number of graduate schools, will be administered at examination centers throughout the country four times in the coming year, Educational Testing Service has announced. During 1956-57 more than 12,000 students took the GRE in partial fulfillment of admission requirements of graduate schools which prescribed it.

This fall candidates may take the GRE on Saturday, November 16. In 1958, the dates are January 18, April 26, and July 12. ETS advises each applicant to inquire of the graduate school of his choice which of the examinations he should take and on which dates. Applicants for graduate school fellowships should ordinarily take the designated examinations in the fall administration.

The GRE tests offered in these nationwide programs include a

Savannah State Plays 6-6 Tie

Edward Waters College of Jacksonville set up a touchdown with a 53-yard pass on a long-shot gamble and went on to a come-from-behind 6-6 tie with Savannah State College in the Tigers season opener before about 2,100 October 5.

The bullet-like passing of quarterback Allen Sistrunk and fine catches by ends Bart Thornton and Vince Taylor were responsible for the third quarter strike into the end zone by the Floridians.

Willie Batchelor, the Quitman whiz and 1956 SEAC all-conference halfback, scored 15 yards on a pitchout from quarterback Sammy White in the second quarter to put the Tigers ahead but fumbles and interceptions halted their offense in the second half.

Edward Waters was at its own 45 in the fourth period and succeeded in a gamble on a fourth down and nine to go play. Sistrunk fired to Thronton at the Savannah 40 and the big end raced to the two before he was dropped. Two running plays failed so Sistrunk fired another strike to Taylor who pulled it in for six points. A bad snap prevented the conversion and the game stood at 6-6, where it remained the rest of the way.

Halfback Ulysses Stanley went 15 yards for a first half Savannah State touchdown but a penalty nullified the score. Batchelor on another occasion ran 40 yards to the Jacksonville 15 but the ball went over on a fumble during a succeeding play.

The Savannah scoring drive was helped by a 30-yard pass from Sammy White, playing his first game on offense after first-stringer Roland James was hurt in a practice session.

Football Facts

By Emma Lue Jordan

Did you know that:

Football is one of the most popular college sports in the United States.

The first football game in the United States was played in November, 1869. Rutgers defeated Princeton playing Soccer rules.

Before the game starts, the referee tosses a coin in the presence of the field captains of the two teams. The captain winning the toss chooses one of the following privileges. The loser has the other privilege:

1—To choose whether his team will kick or receive.

2—To choose the goal his team will defend.

Each team has eleven men, seven in the line and four in the backfield.

The game starts with the kick off.

The ball can be advanced in four different ways:

1—The player can run with the ball.

2—The ball can be thrown or passed.

3—The ball may be advanced because a player is penalized.

4—A kick, or punt, may advance the ball.

A team can lose the ball four ways:

1—It can fail to make ten yards in four downs.

2—The ball carrier can drop, or fumble the ball.

3—A defensive player can catch, or intercept, a pass.

4—The offensive team can punt the ball.

A touchdown, or six points, is scored when the team to which the ball legally belongs completes a down, and any part of the ball is on, above, or behind the other team's goal line.

Champs Retired

The old feeling of the World Series rang home again

The victorious Milwaukee Braves shocked the nation. The New York Yankees were chosen 2-1 favorites over the Braves, but in the end they went down fighting as losers.

Lew Burdette shall always be remembered by the Braves and her fans, because the great Burdette in three series victories and two shutouts over the Yanks made for the Braves her first National League pennant and World Series triumph.

It was about time for the National and American Leagues to see other contenders in this widely known event. The Yankee and Dodgers in the World Series were about to become a routine affair each October 1.

Program Study Underway At NYU

New York, N. Y.—(I.P.)—The first thorough revision of NYU's University College curriculum since 1914, based on recommendations of the Special Commission on Curriculum, requires careful study and a corresponding delay before implementation into the arts program, according to Dean William B. Baer.

Major recommendations include basic revision of degree prerequisites, expansion of the honors program, institution of permanent term grades, instead of year grades, area majors, four-hour language courses, a committee to supervise required studies, and elimination of point credit from the basic ROTC program.

The Commission set its requirements for the degree as demonstrated knowledge or proficiency in oral and written English, the history and literature of Western civilization, two social sciences, one natural science and completion of basic ROTC or physical training. But no points of credit are to be allowed for basic ROTC and physical training, in which the only grades will be Pass and Failure.

A new course in the Literature of the Western World will be offered as an option to English Literature. Although a language of 30-40 course or its equivalent is still required, the second language requirement has been eliminated, and the first two years of modern language classes will meet four times a week.

Placement will be allowed to take only fifteen credits except under special conditions. The required mathematics course has been abolished to satisfy this proposal.

New courses which combine half a year of earth science with a semester of biology or a course combining physics and chemistry may be used to satisfy the requirement for one year of a natural science.

The Death Of "Mr. Football"

By Johnny Campbell, Jr.

Few will remember, but not long ago, across the beautiful moss-laden campus of Savannah State College, there strolled a fellow of tremendous physical power who could run, block with precision, pass and kick an oval-shaped ball with the greatest of ease. The fellow's name?—"Mr. Football." He was not noted for his intellect — not acquainted with Sophocles, G. B. Shaw, and the like; the concept of the marginal propensity to consume completely baffled him; but nevertheless, "Mr. Football" was one of the most popular fellows on the campus.

Because of his peculiar gifts, "Mr. Football" was well loved and respected by the students, including the few "eggheads." On Saturdays when he displayed his wealth of talents, the stands would overflow with spectators who came from far and near to watch "Mr. Football" in action. Seldom were they disappointed. Scintillating broken field running, long spiral kicks, "impossible" pass-catching, perfectly executed line plays, beautiful downfield blocking—these were but a few of the many treats which the fans enjoyed.

In victory the fans rejoiced wildly; in defeat they were magnanimous, for they knew "Mr. Football" had performed an excellent job, and the cheers were as long and loud as in victory. That almost indefinable phenomenon, called by many "school spirit" was present in abundance among the student body, for "Mr. Football" brought fame, honor, and glory to his beloved school.

Then suddenly, without warning, some culprit dealt a mortal blow to "Mr. Football." No one knows the real reason for the unwarranted attack, but it is whispered that "Mr. Football" had become too big a man. Actually he is not dead, but as far as the students are concerned, he may as well be. Late at night he can be seen limping sadly across the campus soliloquizing about the wondrous days before his downfall. With deep nostalgia he faces the Athletic Field nightly, wondering if he will ever rid himself of the terrible malady which now plagues him.

Today fans no longer come from afar, and those who are near seldom venture out when "Mr. Football" hobbles on the field, for in their hearts they love him deeply, and knowing that he is seriously ill, they would rather stay at home than to see him trampled by foes he used to crush. Small consolation is gained by the fans when he meets a foe who is as ill as he, and ekes out a victory or manages a tie.

His decline in stature has brought about profound changes. No longer is the "school spirit" the same. It has undergone a great metamorphosis, leaving in its place a general feeling of indifference and apathy.

Perhaps the culprit responsible for the death of "Mr. Football" can be caught and punished. Perhaps "Mr. Football" can be nourished and nursed to regain his vigor, vitality, and strength. Perhaps the fans will once more overflow the stands. Perhaps this is hoping for too much. Perhaps so — but we the students of Savannah State College, long deeply for the resurrection of "Mr. Football".

Freshmen Give Views On College Problems

By Daniel Washington
and Emma Lue Jordan

Throughout America today, high school graduates are entering institutions of higher learning. As the dawn of their college careers begins, they find themselves being oriented into an environment which is completely different from the one they had known previously.

These students come from different towns and cities. Each brings with him his own peculiar characteristics and ideas. Expressing these ideas is one of the main objectives of the students. Teachers attempt to emphasize expression of ideas in their classes. They want to know what a student thinks, how he thinks, and whether his thoughts are important enough to share with other people.

To find out some of the answers to these questions, two staff reporters interviewed several members of the Freshman class about their reactions to college life. Below are some of their responses.

Elise Bryant said, "Being in college is a learning experience and the teachers are very helpful in trying to get us (the freshmen) adjusted to college life."

"College life is wonderful and challenging," stated Laura Garvin. "Teachers and upperclassmen are very helpful."

Closely conected with the academic side of the college is the social life.

Lula Bell Chance expressed her views on the social aspect of college life by saying, "I feel as if I have more freedom here at Savannah State College than I had at my high school. There are more things to do here and more places to go. Since I've been here I've made many friends, both upperclassmen and freshmen. The atmosphere is very pleasant."

One unidentified interviewee declared, "I don't believe the social program here is as organized as it should be. When I was in high school, we gave quite a number of dances and other activities. Since I've been here, only two dances have been given. Now that we are in college, I believe we should be treated like adults."

Out of every group of individuals there are some who are able to lend others. Concerning leadership, vice president of the class, Alfonso McLain, said, "Leadership is essential for any striving organization in order to become successful in its work."

These are some thoughts of the freshmen who have looked into their minds and tried to express their opinions about some problems they have met and some experiences they have had thus far.

For some, it was too early to give a definite answer; for others, the orientation period is challenging, a learning experience, a process of growing up, a time to accept responsibility and leadership.

Mendenhall Talks On Radio Waves

By Shirley C. McAllister and Johnnie L. Mitchell

"Radio Waves in the Air" was the topic for discussion on Sunday, October 14, 1957, when the College Library Committee sponsored its initial program of Forums and Book Reviews for the school year.

Marion Mendenhall, instructor in the Chemistry department and director of Wright Hall, was the discussion leader. He very ably presented background material concerning the satellite launched by the Russians on October 4.

Mr. Mendenhall received the B. S. Degree in Chemistry from South Carolina State College. He taught at Claflin University one year, served two years in the Armed Service and did research in plastic in the chemistry industry, New York City.

He explored the subject from a military, economic, scientific and political view. The satellite program in the United States is termed as project "Vanguard" and, in Russia termed "Sputnik". Mr. Mendenhall stated the launching of "Sputnik" was an event centered around the I G Y (International Geophysical Year), the period of time from July, 1957, to December 31, 1958. During the I G Y a group of nations were to attempt the launching of a satellite.

Russia, on October 4, 1957, sent an earth satellite, the first satellite, spinning through space. It weighs 184 pounds, has a speed of 18,000 miles an hour, and altitude of 560 miles. Mr. Mendenhall stated that the launching of "Sputnik" could mean control of the Earth. How much technical data Russia has, it is not known, but, he stated, in the launching of this satellite, Russia is a jump ahead of the United States." The types of information obtained were listed as temperature, objects in contact, measure of cosmic rays, corrosion and measurement of pressure. Pressure as the greatest disadvantage of sending human sinto space was further cited in the talk. A suit has been completed by the Navy but its tightness made it undesirable for human wearing. Mr. Mendenhall cited another hazard in human space travel, the possibility of returning.

In stating some of the possible reasons the United States lost the satellite race, he stated the three stages necessary to set a satellite spinning in space. They were: (1) maintenance of a vehicle; (2) adequate energy. (3) high enough altitude. Difficulty seems to be in the maintenance of adequate energy to orbit the satellite. He further stated the other possible reasons for delay in "Project Vanguard" as being political, the secondizing of the project, and the competition made existing possibly in the separate branches of the military forces.

The attending students and faculty members listened intently to the statements concerning the "Artificial fellow traveler around the earth." In the faces of each of them, was an expression hoped never to be seen in these rich United States. As the question and answer period progressed, tones of desperation seeped into the voices of the audience. Yet, our fears can not imagine the fears of our allies, who found hope and a measure of security in alliance with us.

The library is to be commended for making the initial step toward broadening campus activity after class hours. The talk was thoroughly enjoyed and we look forward to many enriching talks in the future.

Try New Demerit System At Colby

Waterville, Me.—(I.P.)—The Women's Student League on the campus of Colby College has adopted a new simplified demerit system. By this revised system, offenses, which previously have been treated singularly, are now put on a cumulative basis

In this system, the women will have much more leeway regarding petty offenses, since no action can now be taken against them until they have been fined ten demerits. The Women's League felt that "campusing" was beginning to lose its effectiveness. The revised demerit system will give a more positive attitude toward penalties, and an opportunity for individual improvement.

Furthermore, the "repeated offenders" of dormitory regulations will now appear before interdorm council when they have accumulated ten demerits, while girls who have forgotten only two or three minor regulations will be more fairly treated.

This system will allow the dorm councils to function as house governing bodies, instead of as penalty courts. The entire system, it was emphasized here, is an adult approach to the violations which occur most frequently and is an equitable system for college women.

DANFORTH FOUNDATION INVITES CANDIDATES FOR FELLOWSHIP

The Danforth Foundation, an educational foundation located in St. Louis, Missouri, invites applications for the seventh class (1958) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college seniors and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching, and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1958, for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President W. K. Payne has named John B. Clemmons, chairman of the mathematics department, as the Liason Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these 1958 Fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout the years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need. The maximum annual grant for single Fellows is $1400 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students; for married Fellows, $2400 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students with an additional stipend of $350 for children. STUDENTS WITH OR WITHOUT FINANCIAL NEED ARE INVITED TO APPLY. A Danforth Fellow is allowed to carry other scholarship appointments, such as Rhodes, Fulbright, Woodrow Wilson, Marshall, etc., concurrently with his Danforth Fellowship, and applicants for these appointments are cordially invited to apply at the same time for a Danforth Fellowship. If a man receives the Danforth Appointment, together with a Rhodes Scholarship, Fulbright Scholarship, or Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, he becomes a Danforth Fellow without stipend, until these other relationships are completed.

All Danforth Fellows will participate in the annual Danforth Foundation Conference on Teaching, to be held at Camp Miniwanca in Michigan next September.

The qualifications of the candidates as listed in the announcement from the Foundation are: men of outstanding academic ability, personality congenial to the classroom, and integrity and character, including serious inquiry within the Christian tradition.

All applications, including the recommendations, must be completed by January 37, 1958. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with our Liaison Officer.

Iowa State Works To Erase Cheating

Ames, Ia.—(I. P.)—Until an honor system can be worked out that would be satisfactory, Dr. Roy Kottman, associate dean of agriculture at Iowa State College, suggests several things that instructors here can do to eliminate cheating in their classes.

1. Alternate tests for alternate rows.

2. One or more monitors in the room at all times during the test—these monitors to actually patrol the room and not read a newspaper while the exam is held.

3. Old exams available to all students in classes so that all

Soprano, Pianist Appear On Lyceum Program

Graciela Faulkner, famous Caribbean soprano, and Lionel Belasco, eminent pianist and recording star, appeared on the second lyceum presentation, Wednesday, November 13, in Meldrim Auditorium.

Miss Faulkner, acclaimed for possessing "a voice of remarkable purity and true quality," has received ovations from audiences in North America, South America, England and the West Indies. Most of her program was devoted to the folk music of the Caribbean. West Indian chants, ballads, and calypso melodies from Jamaica, British Guiana, the Bahamas, Trinidad, and Grenada were also included.

Mr. Belasco was heard in several piano solos, including a Trinidadian dance, a Venezuelan waltz, and Latin American works. For more than twenty years, he has recorded for Victor, Columbia, and Decca, and has conducted his own orchestras throughout England and France.

Changes In Rules Made At Trinity

Hartford, Conn. (IP.)—Faculty members at Trinity College have approved an unlimited cuts proposal for the 1957-58 academic year. Absence privileges do not apply to the attendance requirement for Chapel and Physical Education.

Two other changes in the academic rules were promulgated: Effective with the class entering in September, 1957, any student who has not received at the end of a term passing grades in four courses with grades of at least seventy in two of these courses will be placed on probation for the following term.

The faculty also voted to tighten the "D" rule. In order to enter his junior year, a student must have grades of 70 in at least five full courses or the equivalent in one semester course.

In another local move to strengthen the scholarship picture, the Inter-fraternity Council has voted to raise the average for pledging to 70. The motion states that no man shall be pledged to a fraternity after the entrance of the Class of '61 unless he shall have a 70 average at the conclusion of the semester prior to his pledging.

Commenting on the status of fraternities on this campus, Dean of Students Joseph C. Clarke stated that "the faculty and the administration are in favor of fraternities"

Choosing A Career

By Johnny Campbell, Jr.

It is an obvious fact that virtually every student who enters college does so with the purpose of preparing himself for a career. The choice of a suitable career is one of the most important, and at the same time, one of the most difficult decisions that an individual is called upon to make. Much frustration, disappointment, and bitterness arise in later life because of an unwise career choice made while in college.

Not too long ago, there was practically but a single career that was open to a Negro college graduate in the South That career was teaching. But in recent years, there has been a startling reversal of that trend. Our economy today is highly developed, calling for skills and technical knowhow without much regard to who possesses them. This has greatly aided the Negro, opening to him many opportunities in industry and business, which previously were sealed.

A great deal of counselling and orientation is given to entering students today. But many still cling to the old careers instead of branching out into the vast technical world. The economic emancipation of the Negro seems to lie in the field of technology, where knowledge and ability are the prime requirements for employment.

Two of the foremost motives for choosing any career are the pecuniary benefits that are reaped, and the degree of freedom that is granted to the individual in the performance of his job.

Teachers' salaries lag pitifully when compared with those in other fields, and raises are slow and infrequent. Bonuses and other incentives for efficiency and top-rate performances are entirely lacking. And recently academic freedom has taken a severe punishment. With the numerous loyalty oaths, pledges to uphold particular institutions, restrictions on membership in certain organizations, and many other legislative impositions, it is difficult to see how one can teach the truth without transgressing a statute and or jeopardizing his job.

It would be quite wise for one who is just entering college to reexamine his career choice in light of recent developments, and if a choice has not as yet been made, to inquire into the numerous job opportunities that are available in other fields

Thanksgiving

By Harry V. Nevels

The Pilgrims, despite the hardships they had endured during their first, trying year in America, gathered together in their respective settlements to thank and give praise to God. This is considered by many as the first Thanksgiving. There is a story that even the Indians joined in this thanksgiving.

It is fitting that we today pause to give praise and thanksgiving to God for the many blessings we have received.

Responsibility Of Students In Maintaining Campus

By Carl J. Falson

Each student enrolled at Savannah State College is equally responsible for maintaining the campus and its facilities. Pride in one's campus should be the enforcing agency.

A school is usually judged by the type of people it produces, but very often it is judged by appearance. For the benefit of those who do not know, Savannah State College's campus possesses a stantly used; so, why do some of us take short cuts across the grass? In the country. Which of you would choose to mar the beauty of our moss-laden oaks with trash? Tourists are often riding about our campus. Would you have them leave with a picture distorted by litter which should have been put in one of the receptacles distributed about the campus?

We all know that grass will not grow in a path which is constantly used, so, why do some of us take short cuts across the grass?

Most of us who drive automobiles are guilty of disfiguring the campus. Yes, we are as guilty as the "litter-bug" and the "grass crusher." We should park in designated parking areas only, and not give the impression of disorganization by parking in front of buildings and blocking driveways. Remember, our campus represents each of us.

It is hoped that when this article is read, each student will develop a new pride in his campus and make himself personally responsible for maintaining it.

THE PERISCOPE

By Robert Tindal

As the periscope focuses on the international picture, it brings into relief many incidents of undetermined influence on the nervous peace and tranquility of our mid-century world.

Probably the most astounding is the firing of the second earth satellite by Russia. Sputnik II is whirling around in outer space at the phenomenal rate of over 17,840 miles per hour, 1,656 miles out in space. Along with its multitude of electronic gadgets, Sputnik II has a live dog inside. An effort to gain data on the effects of outer space travel on living animals is being made. Data such as a record of the breathing, heart beat and blood pressure of Curly (the dog's name in English) are being collected for future use in man's invasion of space. The military significance of this satellite is said by some to lie in its weight, which might be taken as an indication that Russia has developed a new version of the dreaded intercontinental ballistic missile.

NATO MEETING

The periscope now swings to the West and NATO, a summit meeting which is planned for Paris in December The purpose of this meeting is to evaluate the West's position in the light of the recent Russian advances in the field of space travel and the military significance of these advances. One of the topics that will receive a great deal of attention is the suggestion that the U.S. and the other western nations pool their scientific resources in an effort to speed up their programs and catch up with the Russians.

U. S. IN VIEW

The periscope moves swiftly across the Atlantic Ocean which has shrunk to the size of a small pond in these times of outer-space invasion. At present the country is involved in discussions of American stereotyping and anti-intellectualism, said by some to be the real reason for our failure to keep pace with a fast-changing scientific world.

These discussions are highlighted in the case of one Private Ernie Schultz, 24-year old mathematician, who was inducted into the Army and assigned duties as clerk typist at Fort Lee, Virginia. This situation was brought to the attention of defense department officials by Pvt. Schultz's former professor, Dr. Linderman, who reported that Schultz had invented his own system of algebra to work certain problems that could not be worked any other way. Dr Linderman called Schultz the greatest mathematical brain he has ever encountered.

THE THING???

Moving southwest to Texas, the periscope hears reports of a mysterious, brightly lighted phantom object squatting in roadways and then taking to the air just as mysteriously as it appears. Dozens of people have told of witnessing this phenomenon which is said to be about 200 feet long and egg-shaped. No adverse effects have been noted, except that it causes power failure in motor vehicles and that it has caused several people to faint at the sight of it. Are we to believe that while we are invading space, spacemen are also invading earth? First flying saucers and now the Phantom Thing. This writer can remember when Buck Rogers was considered fantastic. Can you?

To Sail Beyond The Sunset

Lovers' Love

By Johnnie Lee Mitchell

Far away a velvet blanket,
Sparked with gleaming, twinkling starlight,
Runs delightful rays in droplets;
Lovers' love's so soft and tender
Lovers' love's so rich and so bright.

Far away a distant drummer
Beats love notes to grant love sight;
Fills the night with peaceful slumber.
Lovers' love's so soft and warming,
Lovers' love's so rich and so bright.

No Thing Stays

By Mary Jean Lester

In the gay bright weather of sharing Spring,
The flowers winked their eyes as they began to sing.
For they were happy and their hearts were gay,
And the sun shone brightly to the birth of the day.

The flowers thought Spring would lust forever,
And they would only know the joy of fair weather.
But Autumn came, slowly, dressed serenly in gold
And grasped the joy which they strived to hold.

The flowers hushed their singing and lowered their eyes,
And drooped their faces is it to hide.
To their surprise Autumn had frightened
The fragrance and beauty which Spring had brightened.

Secret

By Emma Lue Jordan

When everyone turns you down,
And everything goes wrong,
She will keep a secret for you.

When you feel that you can trust no one.
Just look at her shining face
Makes you know
She will keep a secret for you.

Though the night may seem so dark,
Then her starry face peeks
Through the fold
Just to say, "There is someone waiting
To keep a secret for you."

The showers go when comes the month of May.
The silver night is pushed aside by day.
But love, true love, is lasting; it will stay.

A child is born; he lives but for a day.
His hair, so soft, will soon be turned to grey;
Much cherished youth will then have passed away.
But love, true love, is lasting; it will stay.

American Education Week

This month we celebrate American Education Week. Schools and colleges, parent teacher associations, civic and lay groups will turn their special attention to American schools. Effort will be made to do some evaluation of the efficiency of the schools, to clarify purposes of education, to project present-day needs and future trends.

The celebration this year will be observed under conditions quite different from those of former years. During the last month, events have moved rapidly enough to get a clearer picture of the immediate present and the not too distant future. Recent achievements in the development of earth satellites will have a special bearing on education and schools everywhere. In one aspect, the trend of recent years toward the inclusion and improvement of the teaching of science and mathematics will receive added implementation and provision. Concentration and training in these areas will be required to participate adequately in the conquering of outer space.

It may well be expected that exploits and ventures in this area will tend to divert attention of nations from war and human destruction which occupied the stage for the past two decades. The relaxing of strife among nations may permit collaboration and cooperation impossible to envision before. The trend of cooperative participation required to explore other bodies in the universe will place emphasis on other fields than the natural sciences and mathematics. The social sciences and the humanities will receive new orientations in terms of world collaboration rather than limited national or hemispheric emphasis.

This year attention will be given to the early impacts created by the launching of Sputniks I and II. The American schools will be looked at critically in terms of national participation in this new venture. Students of today represent the advance guard of the revolutionary new era that is dawning. The boys and the girls now enrolled in our colleges and universities will be the ones whom history will label as the pioneers of outer space. The saturation points expected in employment may disappear under these new and absorbing exploits.

Students at all levels of the college will find it necessary to consider additional points of orientation for their training and development. Man everywhere on earth will be provided with a new outlook on life and the universe. For many years to come college students will be expected to participate earlier and longer in man's conquest of outer space and planets that lie beyond the earth.

W. K. PAYNE,
President.

There once was a maiden of Siam
Who said to her lover, young Kiam,
"If you kiss me of course,
You will have to use force—
But goodness knows, you are stronger than I am."

Editorial Examination

(ACP)—Editors of the Southern Illinois university's EGYPTIAN began the year by stating their view of what a newspaper is.

What is a newspaper?

A disseminator of happenings, an advertising medium for business houses.

A newspaper is both of these, plus a number of things But above all, it is a free voice.

People may disagree as to what a paper should do, but most will agree that a paper must be free. No one denies that freedom can be abused. Nevertheless, freedom must be qualified, if it need be, by truth, decency and high ideals.

FASHIONS

New Fashions In Hair Styling

By Katie M. Williams

Fashion tells us this Fall is the season of the relaxed look . . . Eased elegance . . . A la Chanel . . . comes to the fore in a galaxy of fluid fabrics, bloused and draped into soft lines.

To complement this feeling, fashions in hairstyling have become relaxed too. The new coiffures never look elaborately contrived or stiff . . . but rather are noted for their fluid, natural lines. The bouffant is now modified to a soft, fluffy halo with half moon curls framing the face. If hair is swept back from the face, it is done so in graceful waves and dips, never skinned tightly into a severe knot.

Of course, to keep your coiffure impeccably in fashion, your beauty schedule should include a generous and fastidious amount of hair-care . . . Beautiful hair is always clean and shining.

Fashion Notes

By Emma Lue Jordan

The "Best Dressed Look" is the pass word for this edition in fashion.

It's what choices a woman makes that gives individuality to her dress.

Some DO's for smart campus outfits:

1. Keep in style—adopt the new look to your individuality.

2. Blend your colors or use a single color in various tones.

3. Fold in a scarf for that different look

4. Decide on one jewel—simple in form.

5. Wear a dark neutral shoe (It wil go well with all your outfits).

The Denison University Faculty Approves Revised Core Program

Granville, O.—(I. P.)—The faculty at Denison University has passed a revised version of the core program which had been recommended by the Curriculum Committee. Faculty passage culminates the Curriculum Committee recommendation, endorsement by the Committee on General Education and Senate approval.

According to Dr. Parker Lichtenstein, dean of the college, "The adopted program has attempted to introduce an element of flexibility into the general education program." A year of foreign language and six hours of literature are required under the new system.

Other core requirements remain the same making a total of 60 or 62 hours of general education depending on whether the student takes a beginning or intermediate language course. However, a student with the permission of his major adviser, may waive up to eight hours of the 60-62 with the exception of Core 11-12, 18, 21-22, and one science. Thus the minimum general education requirement becomes 52-54 hours.

Under the new system, major advisers may . . . only waive courses with the approval of the department chairman or by department policy. Dr. Lichtenstein said that waiver cases would be considered on an individual basis according to individual needs. The revised core program will be effective with the Class of 1961.

The new program is essentially a compromise of faculty opinions on the purpose and aims of a general education program. Four main areas were considered in the revision of the present program, according to Dean Lichtenstein.

FOUR MAIN AREAS

1. It was felt that the adopted program combined with the proficiency exams would create a more flexible and workable program. By utilizing proficiency examinations, capable students may waive courses in addition to the eight waivable hours of the core program.

2. Foreign language was made part of the program as a result of a survey which revealed that Denison was one of the 136 schools out of 830 surveyed that did not require a foreign language for the A.B. degree. Consequently the program incorporated the language requirement without substitutes or alternates into the core system.

Because the faculty was not overwhelmingly disposed to add the language requirement only one year has been made compulsory. However, it is hoped that students will be motivated to take the second year as an elective.

3. Introduction of the new requirements seems to make the proposed Bachelor of Fine Arts degree unnecessary at the present time.

4. With specific waiver provisions, the new program would make it less necessary to grant special exemptions for students involved in 3-2 plans, ROTC and education.

students will have equal opportunity to study old tests.

4. Departmental committees to review tests before they are given so as to make sure that questions cover the principles involved, not mere trivia.

Albany State Ties Savannah State, 6-6

A large crowd on Saturday, November 2, witnessed the third conference game of the season for the Tigers.

Savannah State, 2-1 underdogs, was sparked by Moses King, who in the second quarter, intercepted Ram quarterback Frank Feulles' pass and ran 80 yards to score. The Tigers failed to get the extra point, putting them out front 6-0.

The Tigers and the Rams failed to score until John Smith of the Rams broke through the Tiger's defense to block Moses King's kick on a third down, and the ball was then brought down on the five yard line. Smith on the next play rammed over from the five for the touchdown with only a few minutes remaining in the game.

The Rams then failed to score their extra point, evening the score 6-6. A fumble on the eighth gave Savannah State possession of the ball but the Tigers failed to pick up a first down, losing all hopes for winning the game.

Nathaniel Davis, SSC sophomore led the SEAC Conference Champions to an upset victory over the Hornets of Alabama State College, 13-7 to earn its first victory of the season.

With only seven minutes of play in the last quarter, Davis raced across the Hornets goal line and scored the winning touchdown plus the extra point to give the Tigers the victory, 13-7.

SSC scored their first touchdown when John Price intercepted a pass on his 28-yard line and on the next play Ray Howard, raced 25 yards to Alabama's 3-yard line.

Moses (Walk the Water) King carried the ball to the 2-yard line and fullback John Price bucked his way through for 2 yards and the first touchdown of the game was scored. King missed the extra point when he received a bad pass from center.

The Hornets took to the air (like Sputnik) in the second quarter on the passing of their quarterback Julius Rope to halfback John Ransaw to tie the score 6-6. Ransaw ran the extra point to give the Hornets a 7-6 lead at halftime.

The third quarter was scoreless, with both teams exchanging punts.

On the opening of the fourth quarter, the Hornets received a punt on its 40-yard line and ran the ball to the Tiger's 18, before they were forced to give up the ball on downs.

After trying two running plays, the Tigers then kicked to the Hornets 35-yard line. On the next play, the Hornets were thrown for a loss of ten yards.

The Tigers clinched the game when Nathaniel Davis ran 32 yards to the Hornets one-yard line. Moses King tried off tackle for no gain and Davis ran up the middle to score. Davis again was given the ball as he went around end for the extra point to give the Tigers a 13-7 victory

And wish to spend eternally.

Pop Music Views

(ACP) — Columnist Jean-Paul Richard surveys the pop music scene for NORTHEASTERN NEWS, Northeastern University, Boston, and comes up with these views:

Let's look at what happened to "pop" music in the last few months. Some changes have occurred.

Rock and roll is still with us. It may have lost a bit of its popularity, but not enough to indicate that it is on its way out as some people have predicted. A good beat still seems to be what a lot of listeners want.

The last six months have seen the rapid rise and the even more rapid downfall of Calypso. The Caribbean sound was the rage for a while, but it has now faded out of the picture almost completely . . .

The lack of enough authentic material and the poor job of imitation probably cut the calypso craze short more than anything else. When the demand for calypso tunes arose, the market was flooded with poor imitations.

Calypso may be going out, but Hawaiian music seems to be on the way in. At present there are several songs with sounds from the islands which are rapidly gaining popularity . . .

The latest and most welcome addition to the music scene are the "comeback" songs. These old standards have been freshened up with the new arrangements and have caught the public ear.

College Admissions Requirements Examined

The Admissions Officers and Registrars for the fifteen state-supported colleges and universities have just completed a two-day conference in Atlanta. The purpose of the meeting was to consider how students would be selected, as the number of applicants for college grow in the next decade. The group met jointly with representatives of the public schools, the State Department of Education, and the College Entrance Examination Board

Last year, the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test, part of a nation-wide testing program for college admission, was required for all entering students in state colleges and universities. Test scores were not used to select students, but were filed away to determine later if students with different test scores make different grades.

The comparison of scores versus grades will be made separately for each of the 15 colleges in the System. Dr. J. A. Davis, Director of Research for the Board of Regents of the University System, stated: "It is quite likely that tests which predict grades accurately in an institution may not work for a second college."

The Admissions officials also made plans for testing the value of other information about the applicant for use in selection of freshmen. It has already been noted that applicants with good high school records and high test scores do better than applicants with the same test score but with poor high school record.

The group felt that only actual experience would show how much weight can be put on the high school transcript, principal's recommendations, and other devices used in selecting students. "Only when this information is known," Dr. Davis stated, "and after it has been tested by admitting all applicants anyway to see if predictions made on this basis would work out, will tests or other data be used in screening out poor college risks."

The group also noted the importance of college entrance testing for the high schools and the need for exchanging information and ideas with teachers and principals. Mr. W N Danner, Jr., Registrar at the University of Georgia, was elected to represent the group at the Spring meeting of the Georgia Education Association, and Mr. Ben Ingersol, Registrar at Savannah State College was elected to represent the Negro colleges in the Georgia Teachers and Education Assn. These men will explore ways and means of sharing information derived from study now in progress of reasons for success in college.

Applicants for state colleges again this year will be required to submit scores on the SAT before admission. Applications for the tests may be obtained by writing Educational Test Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

The Rude Awakening

By J. Campbell, Jr.

Frequently in life an individual chooses to follow a path which can only lead to self-annihilation. Despite the pleas and advice of those who are able to judge that the path he has chosen is the wrong one, he oftentimes continues to walk down the path to self-destruction. A nation being composed of but an aggregation of individuals with a common language and other identifying characteristics is subject to the same pitfalls as the individual.

However salvation often comes to the individual in the guise of an unfavorable contingency which awakens the individual, enabling him to see that he has been traveling down the wrong path. Then he is able to retrace his steps until he reaches the path which leads to the full and proper utilization of his creative abilities thereby enriching and making more meaningful his own life and the lives of others.

Nations are often saved from destruction by the same process. An ominous event which portends grave consequences for the ultimate welfare of the nation often pinpoints long neglected ills that have been hallowed to exist despite the caustic and vociferous cries of an unheeded few.

The full consequences of Sputniks I and II upon American customs and institutions cannot at this time be fully appraised. But the impact of the Sputniks has already focused attention on the American educational system and on the country's traditional attitude toward the intellectuals.

For years a small minority has been vigorously criticizing our schools and colleges for their failure to maintain rigid academic standards. The diluted curriculums, the distortions of Dewey's pragmatism, and a host of other ills, were in their words, producing a mass of uneducated individuals, totally unable to think.

In vain were their cries. Then along came the Sputniks. Now one hears a vast concerted cry to tighten up, for the survival of the country may depend on the caliber of the thinkers that must be produced to meet the challenge with which we are now confronted.

The intellectual (one not interested in what Detroit is cooking up for the next year), has always found America to be hostile and cold. Viewed with suspicion and distrust, the intellectual in America has become an outsider, an alien. With the emphasis on practicality, thinking rapidly became un-fashionable, and the thinker became a liability—one unable to act. The intellectuals were made the laughing stock of America by humorists and cartoonists. Scientists and professors were caricatured to the extent that two well-known stereotyped figures have emerged, to wit, the mad scientist and the absent-minded professor.

Since the advent of the Sputniks, there have been some favorable signs that perhaps the old traditional antipathy towards egg-heads is being lessened. It is hoped hoped that such signs are not temporary, but will continue to grow until the intellectual is as firmly entrenched in American society as holdogs and football

Fear: Man's Commonest Enemy

By H. V. Nevels

The most ordinary thing for any human being to have wrong with him, next to the common cold, is some kind of morbid fear. Just about everybody has one or more of these neuroses and he knows he has it; he knows it's utterly foolish and makes him ridiculous; he feels completely baffled as to how to cope with the thing.

We're not going to discuss the ordinary fears that most of us have at one time or other, usually in childhood. Such fears as fear of the dark, of strange animals, of heights, of loud noises—these are not morbid fears, because most of us get rid of them in the process of growing up. Of course, if we keep them and nurse them along and suffer with them when we are adults, they become morbid fears, but that's another story.

No, we're talking about the funny little eccentric fears that just about everybody has, like a woman we read of once who could walk into a lion's cage and never turned a hair, but an ordinary little piece of fuzzy cotton wool would send her right off into a fit of the the shakes. A psychologist found out what was the matter with her: years before, she'd reached out in the dark when she was half asleep and put her hand on something soft and fluffy and it turned out to be a mouse. Then of course the psychologist had to go back still further and find out why she was afraid of mice, but he finally got her all straightened out.

Now probably you aren't afraid of wool, but it's a lead-pipe cinch you're afraid of something. These neurotic fears are legion; one small dictionary lists seventy-six of them, all with fancy Greek and Latin names. Claustrophobia is one of the most common fears —that's fear of being in confined places. A fine way to insure your kids having that one when they grow up is to shut them up in a dark closes as a punishment. Then there's agoraphobia, or fear of wide-open spaces. You've heard about these people who never ven-

President's Message

Evaluation Of Excellence Needed

Recently our attention has been called to the status of the United States in the field of scientific achievement. Many Americans are trying to explain how it happened that the Russians were able to launch satellites ahead of the United States. Since scientific achievement depends upon the quality and extent of education and training, this shock and the resulting confusion centered attention on education.

In some instances it has been said that too few American college students are being educated in the scientific fields. Others have said that there is not only a shortage of students but even a greater shortage of teachers who can direct the learning activities. The shortage of teachers has been attributed to meager salaries and the prestige of the profession. Salaries and monetary rewards can be increased at a very rapid rate, but the status of the teaching profession will move at a very much slower rate.

It is possible that the system of values possessed by many Americans has not encouraged those with superior abilities to do their best. In many high schools and colleges will be found indications of low regard for excellence in scholarship, leadership, character, and creative ability. One needs only to study the officers of student groups—classes, clubs, sororities, fraternities, and other activities—to discover that the individuals best qualified have not been in many instances elected to office.

In too many organizations the nominations and elections go to individuals who are known to be weak in scholarship, character, integrity, vision, and leadership. Slowly we get into the habit of thinking that everyone is equally qualified for all positions. Individuals vary widely in abilities and achievement at all levels of growth. Recognition and utilization of the best in the group for the purpose to be served provide for progress and growth. This is necessary for excellence in student body, and personality favors the development of cultural mediocrity. A society which does not make the best use of the gifted individuals will find itself losing status and limiting progress.

It is reasonable to suppose that the values developed in high school and college will continue to be the values of men and women after they have left the campus. It is likely that shortages which have appeared in the scientific fields may well appear in the humanities and the social sciences. Leadership in all fields develops best and contributes most when it operates in a medium that encourages progress.

Class groups, clubs, societies, and fraternities which make use of the talented and the gifted make a distinct contribution to the perpetuation of able leadership. Every individual is able to evaluate the group or groups in which he holds membership in terms of the extent to which proper values are placed upon the quality of excellence in individuals. A study made by a committee might reveal what the students think of excellence as it is exhibited in the various organizations.

A New Word

Here is a suggested addition to our dictionary:

Sput'nik v.t. -niked; -niking. 1. To outsmart. 2. To steal a march. To surpass in cunning. —As in: He sputniked me and got a date with June Syn., see Frustrate

The Student Council Speaks

By Robert Tindal

Now that homecoming is over and the excitement generated by it has left, we find the college atmosphere returning once more to the apathetic state. During the homecoming celebration all activities were attended by the students very religiously. How grand it would be if all activities here at the college were attended with equal vigor.

Possibly the lack of school spirit exhibited by the students is due to dissatisfaction by them with certain problems that confront them. If so the Student Council would like very much to know about these dissatisfactions and will endeavor to eradicate them. We realize that there are problems confronting the students of our college and all of the problems have answers and can be corrected where necessary. Each student has the responsibility to himself and to the school to search relentlessly for the answers and to work unceasingly for the correction of those that need correcting. Your Student Council is very much aware of the dissatisfaction of the student body with certain practices and procedures here at the College. We are aware also that some of these dissatisfactions are valid and some are invalid. We are concerned with both for various reasons but most of all because we are here to serve you, but the hands of the Council are tied unless the student body and the students as individuals voice their grievances and support your Council whole heartedly in its effort to relieve these situations that are causing the dissatisfaction.

The Council wishes to serve you but it cannot if you make your criticism out on the campus and make your grievances only to your friends and form small cliques among yourselves and then proceed to work against the school rather than for it, to the detriment of the school and yourself. We are interested and will work for the things right and deserving for you as mature adults. But if you as others before you have done persist in divorcing yourself from the issues that you are opposed to, then there is nothing that we can do to relieve the situation.

If you have a legitimate problem the only mature way to seek an answer is to bring the problem to the attention of your Council representative or any member of the Council, supplying him with the necessary information and giving him evidence to support your contention. Remember no one knows your problems if you keep them to yourself and therefore nothing can be done about them.

We, the Council, believe that everyone affiliated with the college is interested in you and your welfare. It has been said by persons here that our students just don't want anything. We don't believe this and want you to prove this statement is false.

The Periscope

By Robert Tindal

The periscope shifted swiftly from the troubled continents of Afrien and Europe to the U.S. upon hearing of sudden illness of President Eisenhower, suffering from what was initially diagnosed as a chill and finally as a light stroke. The president's stroke caused many and varied repercussions throughout the world; echoes from the man on the street in England that he should return to his Gettysburg from to fast drops on the stock market on Wall Street. Sputnik was even removed from the headlines. No one can agree as to the total effect this latest illness of the President, the third in two years, will have on him but his doctors and that is it will leave no lasting impairments of his faculties.

Now back to Africa and Europe where the situations governing the peace of the world are magnified in the struggle of the West to contain communism within its present curtain.

The Periscope finds the competent Dag Hammarskjold in Ammon attempting to calm the latest uprising between Israel and the Arabs which has flared up over charges by Israel of border incidents. Also chief among the agenda of items to be discussed is the effectiveness of the UN truce machinery and the dispute over Israel convoys to Mount Seopus and Israeli enclave held by her inside Jordan territory.

Moving the Periscope comes to Spain, where the Spanish are reported mapping the remnants of rebel Moroccan troops who attacked the Spanish Garrison at Ifni. There is very little to report from Ifni because the Spaniards have cast a blackout on all news from this small Garrison.

The Periscope observes, as it sails back to America a rare occurrence. The solicitation of the Democratic candidate for president in the last election Mr. Adlai E. Stevenson as a foreign policy consultant. Mr. Stevenson was originally scheduled to accompany the President an dadvise him at the Paris conference of NATO, to be held this month, but due to the illness of the President, who may send Mr. Nixon, the Vice President, in his place. Some Republicans are reluctant to send Mr. Stevenson with Mr. Nixon for political reasons.

Ahead For College

By Emma Lue Jordan

In fashion with dress. Having your hair done today? Why not get a new look—a new hair style.

The soft uncurled look is popular with the college set everywhere.

The suggested hair style of the month:

A subtle delicate arrangement with a charmingly feminine appearance. The hair is parted low on one side and the sides are quite long — four inches but curled and combed wide to seem shorter. The back in beautiful, a series of waves swirled. This is a wonderful way for black hair to look— The cut planned to make it catch the light. This is the contour, a great look for fashions.

New Dimensions

This season's richer and handsomer tweeds are handled with a new unfitted look

The young college lady has seevral ways she likes to dress for her day on the campus. They are:

Coordinated separates which are still stepping strong this season. Suggested styles and colors are wool-and-full blend pull over with a V neck outlined in the giant tweed of the gored hip-pocketed skirt. The second coordinated separate is Tomato red in simple lines. The first separate in Gray tweed with black sweater or brown with beige.

The sweatered suit look is also popular this winter but at the top of the fashion list for tall girls, we find the unfitted look for special occasions. The suggested colors are baby blue and apple green.

Ladies don't forget the password for smart head wear . . . "Leopard" the French look.

Fear: Man's Commonest Enemy

ture more than a block or so from home. That's what they've got. The average person who has agoraphobia just feels mildly uncomfortable and doesn't know why, if he's out in a wide flat space

Related to these two fears are fear of being aloft in the air, fear of tunnels and basements, fear of mountains, of the ocean, etc And you probably know somebody who just can't stay alone two minutes. He had to be with somebody all the time, either he's rushing from one engagement to another or friends come to see him, and the minute they leave he's on the telephone trying to scare up somebody else to spend an hour or so with. He has monophobia, or fear of being alone. It's not that he's being sociable—he just can't stand being alone.

Then there's pantophobia, or fear of being in a crowd, and xenphobia, which is fear of meeting strangers. There are morbid fears of being in the company of men or women. There are fears of being contaminated by dirt or germs, of catching some particular disease; fear of certain colors, or fear of blood, of dogs or cats or horses or snakes or spiders. Some people are even afraid of sunlight or cold wind or rain and of course thunder storms. There is the fear of death, of water, of fire and of being poisoned.

But one fear that many people of this modern age have, and especially college students, is the fear of not being able to succeed in life. We as college students face this problem today because these are hectic times and it seems to take more to succeed in life than it used to. We enter college with the conviction that this will help. College to many students is what the psychologist is to an extreme neurotic. It helps him to combat these fears.

But in the end it does one well to remember that he is not the only one with fears. And man's worst enemy is fear.

Basketball Facts

By Emma Lou Jordon

As the football season comes to a close the fans of Savannah State and neighboring schools and colleges are preparing themselves for the opening of the Basketball season.

Basketball in the United States was invented in 1891 by James Naismith, an instructor at the Young's Men's Christian Association College in Springfield, Massachusetts.

1—The game starts, when the referee tosses the ball into the air above the circle marked in the center of the playing court The two opposing centers jump for the ball; each attempts to tap it to a member of his own team.

2—Each team has five men—one center, two guards and two forwards.

3—The object of the game is to throw the ball through the basket the opposing team is defending.

4—The ball may be advanced by the following methods:

a. The ball can be thrown or passed.

b. The ball can be dribbled or bounced.

5—Each ball thrown through the basket counts for two points, this is called a field throw.

6—A second means of scoring is the free throw for which one point is given.

7—A basketball game (adults) lasts forty minutes. It is usually divided into two twenty minute halves, which are sometimes divided into four ten minute periods.

Are You A Bumble-Puppy?

(ACP)—In addition to putting out the DAILY CAMPUS, journalists at University of Connecticut are busy helping organize a Centrifugal Bumble - puppy league. From a small beginning at Uconn's New Haven hall, the Bumble-puppy idea is spreading over eastern schools

Mark Hawthorne, DAILY CAMPUS managing editor, reported first on the league in his "Shoes, Ships and Sealing Wax" column. He explains, "The idea came from Aldous Huxley's flowed BRAVE NEW WORLD."

Hawthorne even used a picture of an Official Centrifugal Bumble-puppy Machine, which is used in the game. Powered by solar energy, it is nine feet tall, shiny and has a base with eight holes in it through which the ball, called a "round," is thrown by the spinning centrifugal disk.

"Above all," says Hawthorne, "a team must keep its CBP machine shiny." He invites inquiries about organizing teams at other schools Letters to him at the DAILY CAMPUS, Student Union, University of Connecticut, Stores, will get replies.

Concern Over Control

(ACP)—Similar concern about the freedom of a responsible student is reflected in Dave Maney's "View Point" column in the AUBURN PLAINSMAN, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala. Here he develops his idea that "the morals of a student are his own."

I've often wondered about the set up of the university with regard to their control of the private lives of students. There seems to be a tendency in many states, including Alabama, for the university to lessen their influence on the extra-curricular life of the student. If the church school, which was once Auburn, could be compared with the university that is Auburn today, the change would be quite evident.

At Auburn, however, the relinquishing of this control has rolled to a halt. Many of the faculty and administrative personnel here still cling to the belief that it is the duty of the university to not only train and educate minds and bodies but also to regulate and govern the moral standards of the students. This may be well and good. It does seem never the less that such control is carried to unneeded extremes.

Is such extraneous control actually necessary? A person while attending college is generally considered an adult by society. He is considered an adult capable of making his own decisions regarding both his personal morality and his status as a student. If as a student, he fails to make the correct decision and fails scholastically, the university has exerted a negative control in foreing him to make a decision between success or failure as a student. The control of the university thus has on a student should be sufficient.

The morals of a student are his own. They were formed through parental and other influences many years before his arrival at a university. His morals may or may not be satisfactory as judged. Why, though, should it be the function of the university to try to govern the morality of the students? Adults everywhere find the laws of the land adequate for their private lives.

Were this a church school, with its restricted viewpoints in many matters, the very beliefs upon which such a school would be founded would demand that there be a method for the forming and shaping of morals at the college level. But this is not a church school. Nor is it some set in corm how new moral norms of society. This is a state university, existing at the pleasure of the state, supported by the state, and attended by students of all religions, beliefs, and morals. Auburn is an institution to provide a center of knowledge where the eligible citizen may continue to learn.

way affect the certification of undergraduates, but it will increase the courses in literature, language, and cultural subjects that candidates for teaching certificates will be expected to take. It is the feeling of the board that teachers should have as broad cultural background as students preparing for other professions, and this step will decidely improve the quality of the program offered to prospective teachers.

The board also gave its approval to a faculty recommendation that candidates for admission be required to present scores from the Scholastic Aptitude Test, both verbal and mathematical sections. In pas years, Wilmington has conducted its own pre-testing.

Is a college paper a newspaper or a house organ for the college? What part should the newspaper play in politics—campus, local, state and national, and should the newspaper report crimes, disciplinary actions, suicides, scandals and the like, or be critical of college regulations or enterprises? Forums were held with the college newspaper and yearbook advisors.

The All-American yearbooks, newspapers and magazines were displayed in the Ballroom Balcony of Hotel New Yorker, and highlighted all American student writers for the year.

Alpha Kappa Mu Induction Ceremony

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, Dean, Atlanta University, School of Education, was the guest speaker of the induction ceremony of Alpha Nu chapter of Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society held in Meldrim Auditorium, January 22, 1958. Seven students were inducted into this society and recognition was given to high school honor students and tutors of the college.

"The Negro Scholar—a Continuum," was the topic of Dr. Bond's speech. He pointed out that all men who would be scholars are a continuum. A recent survey by Dr. Bond revealed that most Negro educators' forefathers had little or no education.

Making a comparison with Russia, he brought out the fact that all thirty-two who helped with Russian satellites, finished school before the Revolution. Concluding his speech, Dr. Bond said, "Character, ambition, faith in learning, and thoroughness are the aspects of a scholar. These are great aspects of a continuum."

The candidates of Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society were introduced by Johnny Campbell.

The Reverend P. A Patterson, pastor of Butler Presbyterian Church, of Savannah, was the guest speaker at the annual chapel program of Alpha Gamma chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, held January 30, in Meidrim Auditorium.

Reverend Patterson spoke on the subject of "Make the Most of Your Time." He stated, "What you will become, you are becoming now." The most important thing of college is to lose very little time There are many things that can distract a student's attention, namely cards and ping pong. All these things are nice but the main essence of

Dr. Gordon's Poem Published

Dr. Joan L. Gordon, associate professor of Social Science, has recently had a poem published entitled "Immortality". The poem was accepted and published by the National Anthology of Poetry. She wrote "Immortality" after having been inspired by the reading of Spencer's Theory of Immortality.

Dr. Gordon recently earned her doctorate degree at the University of Pennsylvania. When asked how she feels about her degree she replied that the degree is not in itself an end, but as Aristotle says, "it leads from an unconscious ignorance to a conscious ignorance."

Crazy College Customs

(ACP)—Fun and games on campus get some editorial consideration. This from the Fresno, Fal., junior college "Rampage":

The youth of today is probably the group which is most heavily attacked by public criticism and censure. The younger college generation is not excluded from this category.

During the 1920's and 30's college campuses in this country saw widespread outbreaks of radical behavior. Communist groups were springing up on various campuses along with the soapbox speakers who voiced their radical opinions. Also, bathtub gin parties and swallowing goldfish were the rage in college life.

Today's college student is far less apt to express himself or his inner tendencies through such unconventional methods as those practiced 20 and 30 years ago.

While it may be good that the college student of today has become far less explosive in his mannerisms, the aura of conformity he has assumed may be considered final.

This situation may be considered far more dangerous than a riotous student outbreak over the outcome of a football game.

With today's stress on social acceptance and security many students have been rendered either fearful or incapable of formulating opinions and ideas of their own.

REACTIONS OF ALPHA KAPPA MU CANDIDATES

By M. B. Jones

Student reactions prompted by the induction ceremony of Alpha Kappa Mu, Thursday, November 23, at Savannah State College were expressed in informal interviews with three students: Willie Hamilton, a science major, Betty Cumbess, an elementary education major, and Margaret Bing, a business major. Dr. E. K. Williams, advisor of AKM, disclosed information regarding the tutorial system of Savannah State.

Willie Hamilton stated that he felt proud to become a member of the honor society, but he insisted, "the general reaction is difficult to explain". He said that he had been inspired by teachers and students and he held several places open for his classmates to follow.

Betty Cumbess said, "I saw the induction ceremony in the spring quarter of 1957, and I felt that I would never become a member of a group like this." Betty Cumbess was notified of her eligibility by Dr. E. K. Williams. She also stated that the speech by Dr. Bond, guest speaker at the induction ceremony, was meant to inspire.

Margaret Bing, a business education major, expressed her reactions in one word—"proud." Margaret commented that the two selections from the choir at the induction ceremony were beautifully sung.

A short interview with Dr. E. K. Williams, the advisor to Alpha Kappa Mu, revealed that the tutorial system at Savannah State College, began in 1954-55. This system is primarily under the direction of Alpha Mu chapter. Each department head assists in planning the program and suggests students who are suited to tutor for each department, Dr. Williams stated.

According to Dr. Williams, the purpose of the tutorial system is to stimulate scholarship, to decrease the number of students failing and to promote better relationship between teachers and students.

Dr. Williams further said tutors have accomplished much with many students.

Student Book of Codification Released

All the existing policies and statements of principles of the USNSA have been compiled in a 13-page manuscript titled "Condification of Basic Policy Declarations, Resolutions, Special Resolutions and Mandates". During the five months since the 10th National Student Congress, the staff of USNSA, all of whom are students on a year's leave from their studies, has worked on the preparation of this codification. It was drawn up from the resolutions passed over the past ten years by delegates from colleges and universities affiliated with USNSA, which is the largest representative intercollegiate student organization in the country.

Students have expressed themselves on subjects ranging from intercollegiate athletics to academic freedom, from federal scholarships to the problems of commuting students. While most of the resolutions reflect student reaction to problems they face daily on the campus, such as student health, relations with faculty and administration and the effects of classroom overcrowding, other resolutions show the influence of the national and international programs of USNSA which have brought a new dimension to the American student community.

Of particular interest, both as historical landmarks in student

Debating Club Organized During Winter Quarter

The Savannah State College Debating Club was organized during the month of January under the advisorship of B. E. Black, assistant professor of social science and H. M. Jason, associate professor of languages and literature. With the ever-increasing problems that confront American society today, many students were prompt to participate in the organization of the club.

The club has as its three-fold purpose: (1) to give the students an opportunity to develop their ability as public speakers; (2) to give the students an opportunity to discuss questions of current interest; and (3) to give the students an opportunity to match their intellectual powers with students of other institutions.

With these purposes in mind it is hoped that the student will become more interested in public and national affairs which will enable them to deal with problems in this society.

At present the debate question being studied is: "Be it resolved that the requirement of membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment should be illegal."

The following persons were elected to office: President, Grover Thornton; Vice President, Eugene J. Johnson; Secretary, Yvonne Williams; Assistant Secretary, Kay Frances Stripling; Publicity Director, Daniel Washington; Assistants to the Publicity Director, Thurnell Johnson, Benjamin Harris.

Work, Study, Travel Abroad

Reprinted from National Student News

"The great majority of students appear unabashedly self-centered and aspire for material gratification for themselves and their families. They intend to look out for themselves first and expect others to do likewise." This indictment of United States student attitudes summaries the findings of Professor Philip Jacob's current study, Changing Values in College.

Community awareness, social consciousness, operational moral standards, and political responsibility are notable more by their absence than their presence. Uncritical acceptance of majority positions or goals totally divorced from any feeling of personal commitment for their support or achievement and a semi-fatalistic writing off of such commitment as useless characterizes many if not most campuses and students.

Even in terms of their own campuses students show little genuine concern for anything other than their own immediate welfare. The Student Activities Research study not only documented the exceptional nature of meaningful student government activity but also revealed that student participation in freshman orientation, leadership training, campus charity drives and similar services to fellow students are looked upon with more favour by administrators than by "student leaders." While setting forth the existence of outstanding exceptions to the SARS generalizations, The Students' Role in College Policy Making and Administration equally demonstrates the scarcity of real achievement and the wide gap between it and the mediocrity typical of the vast majority of campuses.

We cannot afford to remain "unabashedly self-centered" ourselves nor to view the prevalence of such an attitude among our fellow students with complacency or mild concern. "Student apathy" as a phrase may be a worn joke but student apathy as a state of mind is an appalling reality.

Adapting education to meet the increasing and changing demands of modern technology while still serving the individual's desire for self-development; meeting the problems of inadequate funds, facilities, and faculties; creating the public awareness and understanding vital to a sound educational system—these are our responsibilities today as students as well as tomorrow as graduates.

"The strength of a democracy lies in its grass roots leadership." In this statement by former Economic Cooperation Administrator Professor Milton Gutz lies the explanation both of the importance and the urgency of broader development of political awareness, community consciousness, and a feeling of commitment to serve local voluntary and civic groups. The United States will not act wisely to meet the opportunities and obstacles confronting her in the areas of human rights, civil liberties, equality of opportunity, individual value, and intergroup relations both nationally and internationally unless we make it our business to consider these problems and to help in providing the local level leadership that will arouse constructive consideration and comment leading to a grass roots demand for new and considered action based on criteria more fundamental than the line of least resistance or lowest dollar costs.

The Revival of Schoolism

By Harry V. Nevels

Patriotism has always been the mark of a democratic country and here in America we treasure our national pride. Anything that's American has the whole of the United States behind it. Americans are thought by Europeans to be egoists.

We Americans are proud of ourselves and our heritage. This spirit of patriotism is evident in every phase of our lives. This spirit is a part of America itself.

At Savannah State College, we too have that spirit of patriotism for our country, and we once had pride for our school. But for some reason or other we have lost some of that school pride that we once had. Some people call it lack of school spirit but we say it is lack of SCHOOLISM. (Schoolism means love of school, and devotion to the welfare of one's school). This spirit should and must be revived. And this can only be accomplished when we as students are aware of the needs of our school. We should not wait for the president of our institution to tell us about the needs of Savannah State; we should have seen what was needed long ago.

Perhaps in looking for something to do we cannot see what's to be done. Here are some things that would greatly improve our campus.

Each organization could take it upon itself to keep our campus free of litter by volunteering to keep the campus clean one week at a time. During this week this organization could pick up paper, post non-litter signs and anything else that would make students try to keep the campus clean.

There is the old college park that could be revived by planting flowers and cleaning the grounds and repairing the dock.

There is the old fish pond that could be cleaned out and used as a shrine for some organization.

And there is the liberty bell, though it is very seldom used, that could be cleaned out and flowers could be planted around it to make it more attractive. And perhaps in the near future it will be used.

These are a few of the many things that could be fixed up around our campus. Not only would the repairing of these few things on our campus make it more beautiful but it would also revive that old Schoolism that has been lost for so long. So let's make the next four weeks "The Revival of Schoolism" month.

Self-centeredness is no novelty on the American campus. When the United States National Student Association's 1947 Constitutional Convention called for academic freedom, better educational standards, equal educational opportunity for all intellectually qualified students, and recognition of student responsibility to campus, community, nation, and God it spoke for U. S. student desires but not for anything a majority were willing to work or sacrifice to bring about.

The Association now has a decade of experience in trying to secure greater commitment and more realistic programming directed toward the realization of these goals. The results can best be described as encouraging but inadequate. January, 1958, finds on going programs, developed channels of communication, idealistic plans for implementation in a new year. Whether they will be accomplished or not depends more on you than on us.

We can—and have—developed programming kits and working papers to provide a basis for and to assist campus efforts to implement the report of President Eisenhower's Committee on Education Beyond the High School. Only you can hold the discussions and plan the efforts necessary to help evaluate curricula and teaching methods, raise faculty salaries and eliminate unnecessary clerical leads, arouse public interest in and support for higher education, advance student responsibility for self-learning and preserve individuality on expanding campuses.

The International Commission can report on the threat to academic freedom and human dignity in South African education—it is your protests which hearten those who oppose these measures the gives and government grounds for pause. At home, the impetus for seminars to consider the problems of desegregation on campus or small conferences to evaluate intergroup relations and the selection of social group members on the basis of personal worth and character must come from the campus—perhaps in response to experiences and material the Association can provide but created and run by those most directly effected.

Our horizon must expand beyond the campus level—whether local, regional, national or international—to include the entire scope of higher education as a minimum. We passed a series of resolutions at the 10th Congress last Augst outlining a definite program of assistance to education for the Association to support by legislative activity and publicity. The National Executive Committee and Staff are fulfilling the mandates, but how effective this will be depends largely on whether individual campuses contact their legislators on the same measures.

Unfortunately, rising enrollments, racial and religious prejudice, curricular inadequacies, proposals for educational legislation, and the confusion of next year's freshmen as to why they came to college and what they should seek will not wait—can we?

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

I have written a spiritual letter with all sincerity, which you will find enclosed.

Thank you for your kind consideration.

Sincerely yours,
(Miss) Drucilla Moore

Dear God,

Thank You for Your unspeakable gift. It was the most precious, most meaningful and most useful gift that I have ever received.

I say precious, for only would such a holy gift be given through an eternal love as Yours. Meaningful, because it is pre-eminent of all Thy miracles . . . in that Thou would humiliate Thy Spirit in the form and place of man. Useful, for if properly used, it can afford peace, and goodwill, and a pattern to live by.

Not only was Your gift superlative to all others, but it came at the most unique time of the year, before the beginning of a new journey. At such a time, when I am confused, discouraged, and uncertain from passed days, I can find in Your gift a guiding light.

I must not think for a selfish moment, that this wonderful gift was given to me alone, for the gift was a Savior, Jesus Christ who will bring peace and eternal life to all who will accept Him.

I pray that the whole world will graciously receive Thy gift, and give thanks unto Thee.

Yours to perpetuate,
Drucilla Moore

Dear Mr. Editor:

I would like to call your attention to the fact that our student newspaper (The Tiger's Roar) has been carrying all the news about our school organizations and extra-curricular activities here at Savannah State College; therefore, we the students are very much disturbed.

We enjoy very much reading news about other schools but would be very happy if more of our own news were published in order to give each individual an opportunity to know what is going on within the walls of our college and its organizations so that the students in years to come may be able to get a broad picture of our college life after we are gone.

Please look into this matter and let us make our paper one of the best ever published at Savannah State College.

Yours truly,
Leon Coverson

college is to gain knowledge." He further stated that many men live for a long time but never accomplish anything.

"Your time should be well spent and something should be accomplished," Reverend Patterson stated. The students of today are the doctors, lawyers and ministers of tomorrow.

The program was further highlighted by a duet, sung by two members of the fraternity, the Greek Medley and the Omega hymn.

Get Handy With A Needle

Sarah Reynolds

To all thrift minded ladies—Have you ever looked at your clothes wardrobe and asked yourself "why doesn't it ever grow? Why does it cost so much to make it grow?"

Replenishing your wardrobe can be done quickly, efficiently and for very little cost with just a little initiative on your part. Sewing is the answer to that ever-lingering "what am I to wear" question.

This goes for beginners too! All you need to start is a piece of fabric, a "simple to make pattern", needle, thread, etc., and a little will power. It is an advantage to sew at this season of the year for most of us can make a cute skirt from one yard of 64" fabric.

For the beginner I would suggest a simple skirt pattern with as few pattern pieces as possible. Study and follow the directions carefully and with a little tutorlin' from a more advanced person, you will have begun to increase that wardrobe.

To those who have more experience why not try a jumper sheath and set it off with a pretty scarf or cute scatter plus. You'll be surprised at the attractive results.

You will be able to get winter fabrics at very reasonable prices so why not get handy with a needle and lend that "I made it myself" fashion parade.

Spring is just around the corner. This is the time to plan for the coming season.

Can't make up your mind? Well, in fashions for the next season almost anything goes—play it cagey—dare to be different.

The tops in coming fashion lines are such 1958 creations as:

Fab. shirted cotton skirts in tangerine, sand and Mediterranean blue.

Casual elegance in cotton silk, which may be fitted or unfitted. With a belt for the sky.

Boat necklines in silkened cotton with tucked and embroidered top. This creation is lovely in any color.

Choose the choicest in cottons for the pace setting Spring casuals and colorful classes.

Around our campus, we have seen the latest "Ivy League Oxford" change places with the traditional heel which is usually the custom wear on most college campuses.

A Reading List For Negro History Week

Carmichael, Omer. Louisville Story. This work describes the development of successful integration in the public schools of Louisville, Kentucky. The authors are a school superintendent and an associate of the Louisville Courier-Journal. It is of enormous value to communities that have not yet complied with the Supreme Court decisions, and to all persons interested in social justice.

Edward Franklin Frazier. Black Bourgeoisie. A study of the rise of the Negro middle class in the United States. Part I deals with the economic and social status of the Negro middle class, its education, power, political orientation and its efforts to break with the past tradition. Part II deals with the "world of make-believe" which the Negro middle-class has created in order to compensate for their lack of identification with either the Negro masses or the whites. This is an excellent study of Negro "society" and other values. It should be widely read for what it says about Negroes as well as for its implications for other minority groups anywhere.

John B. Martin Deep South Says Never. This book attempts to answer questions relative to who leads the resistance to integration of education. What is the base of the support? What is the Southern Way of Life which it seeks to defend? This compact work is very clearly and dramatically written.

Hugh Price The Negro and Southern Politics. There has been surprisingly little research done on the actual voting behavior of Southern Negroes since the most important of the legal barriers to their voting has fallen. This study attempts to fill this void. In spite of the fact that this is a case study of only one state, many of the observations and conclusions the author has made about voting behavior of Negroes in Florida will be found applicable to the voting behavior of Negroes in other Southern states.

Thomas Woofter. Southern Race Progress. Written by a Southerner, this is a study on racial harmony on the southern United States. He has developed a fast moving survey of encouraging trends in the South. He lectures without haranguing, he argues without rancor. His information is in large part new. His points are well documented by eyewitness detail. His area of survey covers all of Dixie.

Richard Wright. White Man, Listen! This book originated in a series of lectures delivered in Europe during the years 1950-1956. The book treats the psychological reactions of the colored people to the white oppressors, the literature of the Negro as evidence of his thesis; tradition as it has been affected by industrialization; and the birth of Ghana on the African Gold Coast. This is an indignant book, but it deserves to be read with utmost seriousness, for the attitude it expresses has an intrinsic importance in our times.

BOOK REVIEWS

Storm Over Savannah

Reviewed by Yvonne O. Hooks

Lawrence, Alexander A., Storm Over Savannah, Athens: The University of Georgia Press, 1951.

Author Lawrence took the material for his book from the following accredited sources: The Archives National and the records in the library of Service Hydrographique de la Marine in Paris (where were found many naval records, letters and ordera). There too was found one of Count d'Estaings' accounts, "Observations" which he wrote aboard the Languedoc after the Siege. Among other sources there are: The Georgia Historical Society, The Historical Society of Pennsylvania, New York Historical Society, Weems' Life of General Frances Marion.

Alexander Lawrence feels that much attention has been given the renowned Frenchmen Rochambeau and La Fayette in the recording of the French Alliance with the Americans in the Revolutionary War, and more specifically in the victory of the battle of Yorktown. In the author's opinion little or no deserved attention has been afforded that host of colorful Frenchmen who aided the Americans in 1779 at the equally important siege of Savannah.

By way of this novel, Lawrence attempts a corrective in which Charles-Henri, Comte d'Estaing and his glittering galaxy of soldiers and sailors of l'Ancien Regime are brought before the readers' eyes to receive their proper share of glory.

As has been implied, the book, or its theme, is concerned with the colorful and forceful personality of the Count who influenced all activities at Savannah.

The sighting of his mighty fleet off Tybee Island sent quiet, English-occupied Savannah into a chaotic whirl that had not decreased when the Count disembarked some 13 miles below Savannah at Beaulieu.

To this noble fleet the confused city of Savannah, with half its British army away, seemed vulnerable. Within a short time d'Estaing had battled up leader of British forces, General Prevosts' reinforcements in Beaufort. With nothing to do but attack the British and drive them from their only other colonial foothold (the other was New York), proud d'Estaing procrastinated—long enough for Prevosts' reinforcements to cleverly reach Savannah and commence to slaughter the combined Franco-America forces on October 9, 1779.

The surprising defeat of the French caused speculation which unearthed facets, not all favorable of Count d'Estaings' forceful personality.

The tone of the novel is in many places dull. The author, instead of vividly pointing up the important battle and minor skirmishes, ploughs the reader into facts and figures which are necessary but not subordinated enough.

In other places, however, the tone is lightened by the author's use of such vivid descriptions as:

"the ax of the forest settler was yet to echo through the virgin forest"

or

"the long shoreline of the Tybees necklaced by the white sand beaches."

These and other phrases add to the light, readable style of author Lawrence.

Y. W. C. A. News

By Gloria Byrd

The members of the Young Women's Christian Association were co-hostesses on Tuesday, January 14, 1958, at a reception honoring Miss Lilace Reid Barnes. Miss Barnes, the national president of the Y. W. C. A., was entertained at a coffee hour held at the home of President and Mrs. W. K. Payne.

The president of Sav'h State's chapter, Nell Chattam, was in the receiving line. The members poured coffee, attended the guest book, took guests to be served and participated in a part of the musical group which sang. The Women's Ensemble, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Harrington, sang several numbers.

Miss Barnes, who was visiting Savannah in the interest of forming a Community Young Women's Christian Association for Negro women and girls, spoke very glowingly of her experiences and travels all over the world. In addition to being the president of the National YWCA, Miss Barnes has also served as President of the World YWCA. We were indeed fortunate to be able to share her wisdom, enthusiasm and charming personality here on our campus.

Our Christmas project carried a new item this year. In addition to sending fruits and candy to the Charlty Hospital we made menu folders for Christmas dinner for the Chatham County Jail.

Plans are now being made to send a representative to the Georgia-Florida-Alabama YWCA Conference at Atlanta University in Atlanta, Georgia on February 7, 1958. Heretofore, this meeting has just been for Georgia. This year's conference promises to be even more exciting since it embraces students from two additional states.

SAVANNAH STATE COLLEGE — SAVANNAH, GEORGIA

March, 1958 — SAVANNAH, GEORGIA — Volume 11, No. 5

Savannah Becomes A Winter Wonderland With One-Inch of Snow

By Kay Frances Stripling

A one-inch blanket of snow turned the City of Savannah into a winter wonderland on February 13. The first snowfall since 1899 was ushered in by a skidding mercury that plummeted to 13 degrees.

The only thing hot on this day was the temper of the residents as they struggled with broken water lines, frozen autos, and cold feet.

Sleet and ice added to the chilly phenomenon. Ice adorned the yards in breathtakingly beautiful configurations as a result of faucets and sprays left open the night before the "Great Snow."

Officially, the Weather Bureau measured the snow at one inch. But there was enough to build snowmen and roll snowballs in many parts of the city, including the campus.

The snow is reported to have begun falling around 2 a. m., and those who were fortunate enough to have seen it falling said that the flurry was beautiful.

Shouts of delight were heard as usually sleepy-headed youngsters discovered the winter wonderland filled with fluffy white frosting on trees, houses, and lawns. Telephones everywhere began ringing bright and early, with questions to friends such as "Am I seeing things?"; to the Weather Bureau, "How long has it been since we had a similar snow?"

The school officials were very sympathetic with the students who preferred to remain at home and build snowmen, but they scheduled no holiday and could find no reasons for legimately closing the schools.

Enthusiasts, both young and not so young, really had a fling in the snow. Snowmen were fashioned, snowball fights staged, and even a few sleds were unearthed from storage, dusted off and taken outside for rides.

The beauty of our campus was enhanced by the blanket of snow on the moss-hung trees. There was no problem in getting the students out of the dormitory, and many missed breakfast to enjoy the snow. Camera bugs were at work, too. Snaps were taken of snowmen and their builders, and believe it or not, one or two faculty members were caught in the rush.

College Playhouse Presents 'Pride And Prejudice'

The play dealt with the lives of an unsophisticated English family of moderate means. The action revolved around the Bennet family with their five daughters: Lydia, played by Purcell Grant; Jane, Helen Williams; Catherine, Jane Morgan; Mary, Pearlie Mae Haynes, and Elizabeth, Kay Frances Stripling.

The conflict occurs when Mrs. Bennet, played by Dorothy Davis, tries to marry each of her daughters, who have little fortune, to wealthy young men. Mr. Bennet, played by Willie Hamilton, was the quiet, sedate father who sat back quite contentedly.

The household regained some of its calm when two of the girls finally become engaged and one is married.

The College Playhouse is under the direction of John B. Clemmons, chairman of the Department of Mathematics and Physics.

The cast also included Alphonso Arnold, senior chemistry major, who played Hill; Yvonne O. Hooks, junior English major, who portrayed Lady Lucas; Lillie A. Powell, senior business education major, as Charlotte; Daniel Washington, senior English major, as Mr. Bingley; Pender Steele, senior mathematics major, as Miss Bingley; Harry Nevels, junior social science major, as Mr. Darcy; Robert Tindal, senior social science major, as Mr Wickam; Carl Roberts, senior social science major, as Mr. Collins; and Irene Davis, senior elementary education major, as Catherine DeBourgh.

Josephine Berry, senior English major, served as student director. Stage manager was Herbert Williams.

Future Playhouse productions include "Old Doc" to be presented in April, and "Dr. Hudson's Secret Journal" to be presented in May.

Personnel Office Gives Sweetheart Dance, Feb. 14

By Sara A. Reynolds

The students of S.S.C. enjoyed a lovable Valentine evening, February 14, at the Sweetheart Dance held in Willcox Gymnasium.

At the dance each person was given a cut Valentine card to be matched for a special sweetheart dance.

The special Sweetheart Dance was led by Alphonso Mclean and Mildred Thomas, "Mr and Miss Sweetheart," selected by the student body. They made a lovely couple, Mildred in a beautiful red dress and Alphonso in a dark suit. Other couples danced to "My Funny Valentine."

Mule was rendered by Ted Pollen and the Moden Jazz Society.

I LOVE YOU—The above scene was taken from the play "Pride And Prejudice", with Harry Nevels and Kay Francis Stripling.

"Block the Lock" on TID

By Theodore Ware

TID stands for "Tetanus Immunization Day". This is the day when the students of this institution will be given the first of two Tetanus shots. These immunizations are for the prevention of Lockjaw.

The "Total School Health Program class decided to lead the fight on Lockjaw by instigating this project. Miss Janie Baker, of this class, gave a tentative plan for this project. They are:

1. Contact all campus organizations.

2. Campaign in the community with the aid of the Campus Community Organization.

3. Make identification labels for immunized persons and committee.

4. Get full support of the faculty and staff.

5. Publicize project by means of radio, television, bulletin boards and newspapers.

Miss Baker, chairman of the project said, "the object of the project is to get as many of the students and other interested persons to take the first shot during the second week in March, with the second being given in April." She also said that she hoped to have an assembly program before that time with Dr. McDew as the speaker.

Grover Thornton, senior social science major, has been named general chairman of the Religious Emphasis Week Committee. The Reverend Andrew J. Hargrett, college minister, announced that "World Peace Through Christianity" is the theme for the week, March 2-6.

Thornton commented on his appointment thus: "I've always liked to de church and community work"

According to Thornton, the various committees and their functions are as follows:

Seminar — Willie Hamilton, chairman—Responsible for discussions relating to the general theme.

Breakfast—Jimmy Veal, chairman—Responsible for gathering guests and students for prayer and breakfast each morning.

Little Chapel—Willie Lester, chairman Responsible for a short devotion period during the week at 7:15 in the Fine Arts Building.

Publicity—Harry Nevels, chairman—Responsible for publicizing events during the week.

Bibliography—Leon Coverson, chairman—Responsible for putting religious displays in buildings and in library.

Retreat—Minnie Bell Shephard, chairman—Responsible for getting the focus on religion through the media of mass communication.

Classroom Discussion—Daniel Washington, chairman—Responsible for seeing that the classroom discussion is related to religion one day during the week.

Evaluation — Mildred Glover, chairman—Responsible for ascertaining the effectiveness of the week.

Through Christian Fellowship eral chairman of the committee is a great honor which carries with it a heavy load of responsibility.

"I feel that we, the students of Savannah State College, can strive cooperatively to do our part in bringing 'World Peace Through Christian Fellowship' into reality," Thornton said.

Scott To Serve As Consultant To Columbia Press Conference

Wilton C. Scott, Director of Public Relations, will serve as consultant to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association conference in New York, March 13-15.

Mr. Scott might be called the "spark plug" of the college in that he has responsibility and activity in areas that affect almost every phase of the institutional set-up.

In a recent press conference, Mr. Scott said that the areas of public relations at Savannah State College include publicity, via newspaper, radio, television, and personal appearances; publication, including catalogs, bulletins, and yearbooks; alumni affairs, including scholarships, and news letters, and student recruitment.

"All of these areas are equal; there are no firsts," Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Scott advises students who are interested in the field of public relations to secure a good background in the social sciences and in English. He indicated that interest in the field is important for success.

Mr. Scott received the A.B. degree from Xavier University; the M.A. from New York University, and is matriculating toward the Ph.D. degree from New York University.

S. S. C. The Inadequate

By Kenneth B. Alexander

Students, do you think you are getting a proper education? If your answer to this question is no, then what are you going to do about it? Are you going to continue to merely debate among yourselves about the conditions at Savannah State College and not even attempt to do anything about them? If we continue to act satisfied with the facilities here, then nothing will be done to better the condition of our school. It is our school I assure you and we the students should see to it that our school is equipped for the essential instruction we need as young men and women in a highly technical world.

Action is the world. Instead of idle talk we should embark upon finding a solution to this problem. Physical education majors, business majors, science majors, do you have the proper facilities to work with? If you do that's fine but if you don't, are you going to let yourself be crippled for the future? We must take action to bring about a reconstruction period at our school and only you and I can bring about this movement.

The Student Council is our channel to the administrators of this institution. I sincerely hope this article won't offend anyone, but I am inclined to believe that there is a slight bit of inadequacy within our Student Council or it may be that we are reluctant to take a firm stand for finer and better facilities. If there is some reluctance, I can't seem to think of any reason for it. There will be no retribution for expressing your views on the adequacy of this college. Even if there is some form of retribution, how and to what extent could it be enacted? What kind of institution could this be, that it would prevent students from speaking openly on matters such as the ones that confront us at present?

I will admit that we have a very attractive campus, and I think we have a very qualified faculty, but what good is a qualified faculty when the institution does not have the essential equipment with which to give proper instruction. Students, believe me, if we are to alter the situation we must take a firm stand and demand the important equipment we need. I am not saying that we should be belligerent about this matter; we have proper representation from our respective classes to the Student Council; we should work through the Student Council to solve the problem that confronts us. After all the Student Council is mainly concerned with solving or trying to solve student problems. Just in case you are not aware of the present situation, I hope this article awakens you.

Students must act to make S.S.C. the college it should be. We have everything but the facilities. With working facilities Savannah State College will surely be recognized by the nation as one of the finer institutions of higher learning.

THE PERISCOPE

By Robt. Tindal

The Periscope shall be concerned with primarily local and national news. Emphasis has been greatly motivated in the improvement of our educational system since the launching of the satellites. At present, there is legislation pending before Congress which is of valuable concern to students, parents, and educators.

The Periscope would like to give some information as to the nature and concern of the proposed bills.

The Eisenhower-Folsum Program — would provide 10,000 scholarships a year for expansion of undergraduate study, to be administered by the states; average grant, $750; no restriction on course of study. Also grants for expansion of graduate schools up to $125,000 a year for an institution; a university could elect an alternate grant of $500 for each graduate fellow, with a preference for those interested in teaching in higher education. This bill would also provide $150 million for the states to expand and improve science and mathematical instruction in public secondary schools.

The Periscope would like to focus the recent violence in the New York school system, which many Southerners have attributed to racial integration in the schools. A noted Southern newspaperman went to New York to study the situation and determine whether or not this was the case. His finding: that although racial integration exists in New York, the violence was caused by social and economic conditions. Why were so many Negroes involved in these cases of violence? Because of the economic and social conditions under which they live, caused by discrimination against them as one of the minority groups in the sprawling "metropolitan melting pot."

The expulsion of Minnilejan Brown from the Little Rock School system comes as no surprise. The die-hard segregationists have been bellowing loud and long ever since she and the other Negro students entered Central High. Wonder how it feels to defeat an innocent child who strives only to attain what our Constitution guarantees. What is the meaning of Equality, Freedom, and Democracy?

Is The Republican Party Responsible For The Current Recession?

By Ted Pollen

Recently the attention of every thinking American has been directed to the state of our national budget and how it affects our standards of living.

The Department of Labor has reported that approximately 5,000,000 persons are presently unemployed. This constitutes about 6½ per cent of our population. Such a percentage of unemployment can be quite alarming in our present economic structure, and has created a recession that is a bit more than "mild."

The big question that seems to be in everyone's mind is "Is the Republican Party responsible for the current recession?"

We most, first of all, examine the causes and nature of a recession. There are perhaps three major cycles through which a recession might pass. The first cycle might be indicated by a period of prosperity and rising prices, which is more prevalent today, because of our extended practice of installment buying. The second stage is the inevitable overproduction of goods and commodities which are not immediately consumed by the public. Therefore, the rumors of excess stocks and heavy losses spread a contagion of caution, doubt, and pessimism. Thus the crisis enters the third or crisis stage; prices fall to a low level; a general liquidation occurs on the stock market; and employers lower wages and discharge workers.

This condition exists for a few months, and if unchecked, will result in "depression."

The United States has undergone at least ten periods of depression or panic, several of which cannot be attributed to any political regime, because during these periods, the political parties, proper, did not exist.

No one can truthfully say that any particular party, Republican or Democrat, has ever created a recession through faulty legislative acts. This, however, has been the accusation of the Democrats in recent years, and they have used for example the administration of Herbert Hoover.

It is generally accepted when reference is made to the Democratic Party as the "war party," and the Republicans as the "depression party." Now then, with some knowledge of economic cycles, we must understand that wars create our greatest amount of economic activity. The public enjoys a sudden spurt of prosperity in which a false standard of living is gratifyingly consumed.

It has been the misfortune of the Republican Party to be associated with our most recent recessions, but isn't it also true that the Democrats have always been closely related to the causes of recessions.

We believe that each era of inflation, recession, and depression is merely a product of our bipartisan government. As for this current recession? Heaven knows who is responsible!

Notes From the Editor

Dear Students:

Recently I wrote an editorial concerning the state of our campus. As of yet I have seen only one organization attempt to do anything about our campus. Is this the way for a college campus to react to situations on the campus? As a matter of fact I dare you to do something.

This is your paper! The news that appears in this paper is made by you. Before I took the job of editor I was determined to edit this paper for you (the students of Savannah State College). Last issue I received two letters from students. This is what I want. I want you to send comments, ideas and criticisms concerning your newspaper.

There is one thing you must know: that whether you know it or not this is a newspaper and though we are under the auspices of the College we are allowed to print anything as long as it is within the ethical codes of the newspaper. This is a challenge to you. I dare you.

Sincerely yours,
THE EDITOR.

Dear Miss Moore:

Your spiritual letter (published in the last issue) has proved to the older generation that the modern generation has not lost its spiritual values. It is what I consider a perfect example of piety which is so necessary for our time. We need more of this kind of thing.

Sincerely your,

Dear Mr. Coverson:

Your letter has proven to us that the students of Savannah State College are interested in their newspaper. It is true that our paper does print news from other colleges, and in the past organizational news has been limited.

But can this solely be attributed to the staff of your newspaper? I say no, because your newspaper has a small working staff and cannot be expected to cover everything. If I'm not mistaken every organization has a reporter. It is this reporter's job to report the news. If these persons have been doing their job, I am not aware of it. If I get the news we will print it.

As you know this is your paper. The policy of this paper is to print. We can run a newspaper but not when students do not write the news.

THE EDITOR.

THE TIGER'S ROAR FORUM A COLUMN OF OPINION

QUESTION: Do you think the College newspaper supplies us with enough news about our campus? Interviewer: Ellena Lynette Thomas.

Willie Mae Julian—"Yes. It seems to me that everything that happens which is important is discussed in the paper. The students write the articles and it shows their ability and co-operation."

Thurnell Johnson—"I think that the editor prints exactly what goes on. Everything that is printed is exactly what happened and nothing else. When we have more things going on, I am sure the editor and his staff will cover them."

Pauline Smith—"No. I don't really think the paper has enough information about the different activities on the campus."

Melba Miles—"Yes, it seems to give information on the most important happenings on the campus. Why should there be any 'big eyes' on a basketball game if we lost?"

Gladys White—"The paper doesn't carry enough factual information concerning the important events that occur on our campus from time to time. I really feel that the paper is too limited and should be expanded with a broader concept of what's happening on the campus."

Lois Parrish—"I think the editors do a good job of covering the news on the campus. If anyone doesn't find enough events written up in the paper, that's because there isn't that much happening on the campus."

Theresa Grant—"No, the paper does not supply us with enough news about our campus."

Richard Fitzgerald—"No. I don't know why, but it seems our paper doesn't have enough criticism. All we put in the paper are the good things. It seems to me our paper should carry articles to help the students.

"Did we all know about the knocking over of the cookie machine in the College Center? I think we should have more of what happens wrong on our campus. Let some of us make Alpha Kappa Mu or give a big sum of money to some organization. That would be all over the paper.

"Do we criticize the students for putting on their coats before we finish singing the Alma Mater? If we do, then no one hears us. Why not print it?"

William Pompey—"Yes, I think the paper is very essential and carries a variety of news, but it could be larger. The people working on it do good work. I favor it being like it is, but about three papers more would make it a little more appropriate for a college paper."

Should Student Publications Be Censored By The Faculty?

By Carl H. Roberts

Freedom of the press is one of the basic freedoms which members of a democratic society are entitled to. This freedom does not in any way give the press the right to make statements that are untrue and injurious to the integrity of citizens, but does carry with it the right to take a stand on controversial issues and, in cases where evidence has been gathered which reflects favorably on the character of public officials, the right to reveal such evidence to the public.

If such an essential freedom is to be perpetuated, it must be instilled and nurtured in the minds of the future leaders of the nation. Any attempt on the part of faculty members to prevent the publication of news written or gathered by students is contrary to the ideals and principles of our democratic society and harmful to the development of our future leaders. For such censorship can only indicate the hypocrisy of those who preach democracy but who do not practice the art.

It is the job of students who are engaged in various student publications activities to judge the collective views and opinions of the student body and to make known such views, and to publish their personal views on matters without fear of censorship of faculty members. Only in this way will they be able to develop their ideas without fear that they will be suppressed by an indignant faculty member whose personal point of view does not coincide with that of the students.

Unless a code exists by which the students have agreed to abide and which states that certain news stories are not to be published, any suppression of a story by a faculty member is an arbitrary judgment.

Merritt Gives Views On Cadet Teaching

By Elzata Brown

"Student teaching has been a very rich experience and has given me much that could not have been learned otherwise," stated Robert Merritt, senior English major, in an interview here last week.

The field of journalism is the area of Merritt's interest. "But I think there is much to be done yet in the teaching profession," he stated.

"There is a great need for English teachers, especially in Savannah," Merritt continued. "I feel that the present world situation is somewhat putting English and the other humanities in the background. However, I think that more stress should be placed on them, although I realize the need for more teachers in science and mathematics."

Motion Pictures And The College Student

New York.—If you are a college or high school graduate the chances are that you are a movie fan, according to the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, New Jersey.

It made a survey in every state of the Union last June and July and comes up with these figures:

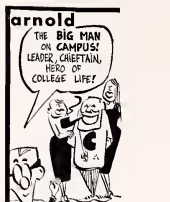
Of those 20 years and older who attended movies at least once a week, college educated persons made up 21% of the audience, and high school graduates comprised 37%. Those who did not complete high school numbered 23%. The 4th graders were only 10% of the audience.

Another indication of the favorable status of the movies in the public mind is found in the statistics covering income groups. The $7,000 per year and over made up 13% of the audiences; $5,000 to $6,999, 20%, and the $3,000 to $4,999 group predominates with 27%. Under $3,000 is 15%.

The importance of younger people in the vast motion picture audience was emphasized dramatically in the survey figures.

It is, of course, to be expected that students are not to utilize the various publications to engage in personal attacks on faculty members as individuals, but on matters that are of interest to the students or which in any way affect their welfare, it is the duty of the staff to voice their approval or disapproval.

Such are the rights and privileges which democracy grants to the individuals. Such rights are precious, therefore let no one—faculty members, those with vested interests, or others—infringe upon them.



The charts show that 52% of the typical audience is under 20 years of age! The indications are that the teen-ager is the most loyal and ardent of all moviegoers. During the period of the survey, the weekly attendance average 54,200,000. Of this large audience, 62% were regular weekly moviegoers, with teenagers predominating.

"Any business that has such loyal support of young educated people is blessed with a solid foundation for the future," said Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America. "And such a business has a deep responsibility toward them. We shall always strive to fulfil this responsibility by creating entertainment keyed to the active young minds of America."

BOOK REVIEW

Franklin, John Hope: THE MILITANT SOUTH. Cambridge, Massachusetts, Harvard University Press, 1956.

By Daniel Washington

John Hope Franklin, author of The Militant South, is chairman of the department of History at Brooklyn College, Brooklyn, New York. He has also taught history at Howard University and is author of four other books in which he has done extensive research to report the facts and data objectively. These books are The Free Negro in North Carolina, From Slavery to Freedom, A History of the American Negroes, and The Civil War Diary of James T. Ayers.

Mr. Franklin has done extensive travel throughout the South which gave him an opportunity to study some of the different problems and cultural patterns of both whites and Negroes. This introspection into the minds and culture of the southerner enabled Mr. Franklin to report his findings in an objective manner. Closely connected with his travels, Mr. Franklin has accumulated a wealth of material through the use of unpublished papers in private collections, local memoirs, correspondence, Southern newspapers, journals of the time and eyewitness accounts of visitors.

In his preface, Mr. Franklin gives his reason for writing the book. "This volume seeks to identify and describe those phases of life that won for the ante-bellum South the reputation of being a land of violence. It is concerned, therefore, not merely with the journal and conspicuous revelation of bellicosity but also with those varied conditions of life which not only reflected but explain this tendency."

Against a background of violence and turmoil Southern leaders throughout the South won valor in militant service and this was to trigger off an almost fanatic attitude of supreme power of military service. In the War of 1812 the South's fighting reputation made substantial headway. The promoters for the most part were Southerners. Likewise the Mexican War gave the Southerner an opportunity to display his gallantry in battle and to advance his economic and political interests. These two incidents in Southern history may have been the genesis of the violence that was to follow.

The men of the South at this time engaged in personal warfare. It became more or less a sport and on every day occurance throughout the country side.

The presence of slavery hardened the strength of the South. With ideas of his mother land, the English pioneer settled in the South with the idea of establishing an aristocracy. With large tracts of land, he became a large plantation owner with a considerable amount of slaves. Two things happened which strengthened the militant force of the South. To protect the so-called aristocracy from the Negro slaves strong patrols were set up to police the area. From early childhood the presence of Negro slaves gave the slave owner's children an opportunity to become belligerent at an early age.

When the North and some of the better thinking people of the South sorted to end slavery, the Southerner clamped down even harder on military forces. One fact, the reviewer thinks, should be brought out here is that with the presence of Negro slavery in the South, the slave owners, their children and even the lowest class of whites thought themselves better and of a superior race.

The South has been belligerent in almost every aspect of life and the lack of education in this vast wilderness may have very well been the reason for the militant attitude the South held. Free public schools in the South developed very slowly and failed utterly to exercise any considerable influence over manners and morals. After the war for Independence, a strong aristocratic tradition persisted in the South giving encouragement to small oligarchy that qualified for participation in government as an instrument of the privileged few; education was viewed as an individual responsibility rather than a state function.

Between 1840 and 1860, Southerners were becoming aroused over the whole matter of education. Men like Henry A. Wise of Virginia, Archibald D. Murphy and Calvin Wiley of North Carolina, and Robert J. Breckenridge of Kentucky spoke out in favor of free public schools. By 1860 a few cities—including Charleston, New Orleans, Memphis and Louisville had creditable school systems; states like North Carolina, Maryland, Kentucky, and Louisiana had made significant steps toward establishing free public education on a state-wide basis.

Book of the Month
Peyton Place

In his book, The Militant South, Professor Franklin has presented a vivid picture of the South before the Civil War and those things which gave the Southerner a feeling of supremacy. The reviewer believes this book to be an authorative source of material that has been collected and presented to the public in an unbiased manner.

TV Review

Reviewer: Kay Frances Stripling

Have you ever wondered at what point an occupation ceased to be fulfillment of an ambition and became an obsession?

In "Point of No Return," a television drama adapted from Marquard's novel, Charlton Heston, as handsome, ambitious Charlie Gray, portrays the role of a young man who falls in love with a wealthy girl and is denied her hand because of his financial standing.

In revenge, he works and studies diligently, establishes a family, and finally finds himself competing for vice-presidency of a prosperous banking firm. A return to his old home brings memories of his younger days and brings him face to face with the scene and object of his lost love.

The entire cast contributed to an excellent, suspenseful presentation. The cast included Hope Lang, Katherine Bard, Walter Abel, and John Williams. The dialogue was forceful and the photographic effects were good.

Hope Lang gave an excellent performance as the young lost love of Charlie Gray—a girl entirely dominated by her wealthy father. Throughout the story she portrays a personality torn between self-gratification and paternal subjection. The production was filled with human interest.

"Point of No Return" was a CBS Playhouse Ninety production, adapted for television by Frank Gilroy and directed by Franklin Shaffeur.

A Suggested List of Religious Readings

Boegner, Marc. The Prayer of the Church Universal. These are singularly beautiful meditations on our Lord's Prayer—the tie that binds Christians of every denomination, of every tongue, and of every nation—the prayer of the Church Universal. The meditations upon each passage show the thinking of a man who has prayerfully considered the deepest meaning of the prayer. Here is a doorway to a richer experience every time the Lord's Prayer is said.

Davis, John Trevor Lord of All. These twelve sermons present with persuasive power the claims and the gifts of the living Christ—the desire of Christ for the unstinted allegiance of His followers, and the freely given rewards which Christ bestows on those who surrender to Him completely. The author is speaking to people who already consider themselves Christians. They go to church on Sunday. They are generous when the collection plate is passed. But, too often, they forget Christ in their business dealings on Monday and in their search for pleasure on Tuesday. To these Christians Dr. Davies says, "Christ does not want our worship one day in seven. He will have all or none."

Why Not Go Into Journalism?

By Elzata Brown

Job opportunities in the field of journalism are open today to all persons with capability and interest.

If you were to take time out to compare the earlier related opportunities with those of today, you would be astonished and amazed over the great increase.

Journalism may include editing and other newspaper jobs and the writing of columns, or other special features either for newspapers or magazines. Reporting leads directly into and provides the solid basis for most of these activities.

Editing offers opportunities in the management of magazines. Publishing houses also need the services of a variety of editors. The editor has a great responsibility in directing the work of many reporters; therefore, he should be a past master of the reporter's art.

There is a growing field of opportunity for individuals who prefer publicity and public relations work. Colleges, commercial houses, states, the federal government, railroads, banks, and organizations have learned the value of professional interpretation of their activities and aims.

Now is the chance for you who have hoped and wished for years to become a free-lance writer. If you were to dig down in past history, you would find that a large proportion of the successful authors of today have acquired their basic training as newspaper reporters. The varied experience and the constant use of succint language form an excelent basis for literary achievement. Many writers build a substantial income by serving as local or traveling correspondents for trade magazines.

The young reporter frequently yearns to be a columnist. And there is no reason why he should not achieve his goal if he has the ability. Most papers subscribe to a few syndicated columns of famous individuals; therefore, the field is narrow and highly competitive. Nevertheless, columns are today brewing in the minds of young reporters which will make the syndicate tomorrow through sheer novelty and reader-appeal. Fortunately, the syndicates do not have an absolute corner of the column market.

well prepared and agree in advance on the aspects of the topic to be discussed," Dr. Lloyd said.

The program is in its sixth consecutive year and has never missed a broadcast, he stated. Radio Station WSAV has a potential audience of one million listeners, and the Roundtable is considered one of the station's outstanding features, Dr Lloyd added.

The February Roundtable discussion was centered around the subject, "Negro History as a Factor in Internationalism," and featured Dr. Calvin L Klah, chairman of the Department of Education, and Dr. Elmer Dean, chairman of the Department of Social Sciences. President W. K Payne gave introductory remarks which took note of the program's service to the community.

Dr. Lloyd concluded, "Personally, I think that although it is often difficult to organize the program, it is an excellent medium of enlightenment. The Roundtable has been a very effective phase of Savannah State College's adult education effort."

NOTES of Interest

By Emma Lue Jordan

Ladies, take a look with me at the effective measures of the "best dressed look."

For that "Feminine Touch," for that most talked about outfit, note the following things:

1. It's not how many outfits you have; it's how you wear them.

2. The popular suggestion for the girl with the budget is a plain two-piece outfit chosen to coordinate with a checked shirt and jacket. By far you have six outfits within the two.

3. The scarf, flower, necklace and the right shoes with a spark of color can do wonders to that outfit.

4. The knowing where to wear what is the prize knowledge of any best-dressed woman.

5. Ladies, in taking a look at your personal wardrobe—don't forget how important it is to be well-groomed.

The Perfect Compliment ladies is—"Self-Approval"

Ladies take a sincere look at your hair-do. The best dressed look is not complete without the million dollar hair-do, well in place.

Chose the perfect style!—One that will accept the loveler you.

It is a most to keep your hair well-groomed at all times.

Spotlight

Wilbert (Boss) Maynor, a senior, earning the closed nickname during his term as president of his Fraternity and known as "the man with the big horn" in the college band is a soft spoken, and friendly young man

Maynor hails from Sylvania, Georgia. He strongly believes that "the that hath a trade, hath also an estate". Because of such a belief, and a love the mathematical world, he has centered his concentration around Industrial Education while matriculating at Savannah State College.

During Maynor's stay at Savannah State College his main extra-curricular activities have been his Fraternity and the college band. Of course he has been very active in some other activities. To justify such, he is Keeper of Records and Seal and Past President of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., Business manager of the Senior Class, 3-year member of the college marching and concert band, vice president of the Industrial Arts Club, member of the French Club, Dormitory Council, Yearbook Staff, Trade Association, Assembly Program Committee, Y.M.C.A. and Phalynx Fraternity of the Y.M.C.A.

Maynor's hobbies are: Basketball, softball,'ping pong, collecting quotations, typing, dancing, reading, woodworking, drawing and music.

Wilbert, as far as this writer is concerned, has great potentialities. It is no doubt in my mind that he shall not capitalize on them. It gives one great faith in finer manhod when men like Wilbert are around. Keep up the good work Wilbert (Boss) Maynor, and always remember that THE SPOTLIGHT IS ON YOU.

Careers And Marriage

By Erma Marie Lee

There used to be a common belief that jobs were the prevailing gap between careers and marriage. Some people think that if a girl should marry she must give up her business life and adopt the idea of being a mother, and a wife only.

In our modern society things have changed. A woman now spends two-thirds of her time working, and the remaining portion of her time being a mature woman and a mature wife.

There are many reasons why married women work. The financial reason, of course, is one of the greatest reasons. Most women think that a pay check is a mighty good thing

A "newlywed" may continue to work because she and her husband need the money for their new home, or living expenses. A young wife may take a job because in these days the high cost of living may not allow them to live comfortably. An older woman may want to save money for her children's college education.

A girl may work because she enjoys her job, or she may have responsibilities that will not allow her to remain at home all day "playing cards." Another may have adequate training and does not want it to go to waste. There are a great number of women, too, who feel that they must help support their children, or they might have the full responsibilities of supporting their children Then there are other women who will go back to work when their children have reached the age where they no longer need constant care and guidance from their mothers.

Whatever her reason may be for working, the married girl has the same responsibilities of her job as the single girl. In addition, she, at times, has to work harder than the single girl, to prove to her employer that she is capable of doing her job well, and that she intends to stay on the job.

In combining marriage with your career it calls for a little self-intuition. You need to be strong physically as well as mentally. You need to be able to both jobs well. You need have an an understanding husband. It is also wise to know if your job will or will not affect your marriage. And last but not least, can you undertake the job of being a loving wife, a competent mother, and a good businesswoman?

I am not old-fashioned enough to believe that a pay check is more important to men than a successful marriage.

The Intramural Program

By J. Campbell, Jr.

Organized last year under the able guidance and direction of Coach Richard Washington, the intramural sports program is proving to be one of the most satisfying extra-curricular activities for students who do not participate in varsity sports. The need for such a program was long in evidence and judging by attendance and group participation, the current program provides a healthful outlet for participants and spectators.

In the intramural program as witnessed by the current basketball race, there is present an element which is entirely lacking in varsity games—the presence of two cheering sections. At a varsity game if the home team is losing (which everyone will agree happened too often this year) the entire gymnasium is silent. Not so in the intramurals—for every team has its loyal rooters who don't hesitate to cheer.

Anyone who has not seen one of the intramural games this winter has certainly missed a pleasant surprise, for much of the comic is prevalent, and friendly group rivalry generates an excessive amount of excitement. Every team has at least one player whose sense of balance and grace seem to vanish the instant he hits the floor. After a day of study, the fans find it refreshing to witness these players, who when attempting shots, frequently flaunt the laws of gravity. But Sir Isaac need not fear, for eventually they come down to earth, or in this case the floor.

According to Coach Washington, the current program is principally a Winter Quarter one, with most teams participating only in basketball. A good, solid, year-round program with the addition of softball in the spring and perhaps touch football during the fall would be the goal desired. The teams which are currently taking part in the basketball program could help towards the realization of this goal, if they would field teams and participate with the zeal they have shown in the basketball program.

Should Reports Be Penalized For Grammatical Usage?

By Kay F. Stripling

"I thought this was a History class, not an English class." Phrases similar to this one have been uttered over and over again by college students. Students rebuff the idea of having their papers graded on the basis of grammar and form.

A student's ability to achieve efficiency in any subject is based on his reading and certainly his writing abilities. The college curriculum includes a multitude of subject matter and English is merely one of such. In English classes are taught the fundamentals of composition. Included in this aim is the ability to express one's self in language that is clear, precise, and accurate, whether written or oral.

Is this instruction and practice to stop in English classes?

Throughout all courses there is a continuous need for good composition. In science classes students must report their observations and experiments completely. Such reporting necessitates a large vocabulary, an understanding of the principles of modification and skills in organizing ideas in a layout coherent pattern. Names and dates are important in history and the incorrect spelling of a person's name or a place will produce a shifting of thoughts. Regardless of the subject matter, language is the medium of communication. It may even be considered the basis of creative thought, for how can we reason about scientific mathematical or historical concepts without a vocabulary of adequate verbal and non-verbal symbols. Through written reports we clarify and refine our concepts and abstractions.

The instructor has a responsibility of correcting and grading such written reports. How should he grade? Should he grade on the basis of content or form and grammar? The structure of a composition includes spelling, subject-verb agreement, punctuation and other factors. Some students seem to feel that they should not be penalized for faulty composition in classes other than English, but as long as grammatical errors go unpenalized students will continue to ignore correct composition. Through penalizing students for grammatical errors, teachers help them to be more observant and concerned with correct composition and consequently better papers will be produced.

Merely because the development of language and reading skills in our schools and colleges is largely the responsibility of English teachers is no excuse for neglect in other courses. Any effort to improve learning in science, mathematics, or social science depends first of all on how well English fundamentals are learned and practiced. Students must continue to read and write well.

Our success after graduation depends largely on the ability to write well. For example, a student learned in science or arts may write an application for a job. If the letter is poorly written, his chances are few for obtaining the position.

It is both necessary and beneficial that good English fundamentals be integrated into the total curriculum, and teachers can help a great deal by constantly checking the students through penalizing faulty grammatical construction.

President's Message

SCHOLARSHIP BEYOND THE IVY

Within a few days many young men and women will be participating in commencement exercises. When they receive the bachelor's degree they will realize one of their most cherished ambitions. But even as they receive their diplomas, the world will have changed. No candidate for graduation this year will leave college to enter the same world from which he came when he entered as a freshman. Both the students and the world have been making rapid changes.

During the four years in college many have thought of scholarship primarily in terms of grades which were designated by the first two letters of the alphabet. In the last copies of the Dean's List and the honor roll posted for seniors, it is thought by many that the importance and significance of scholarship have come to an end. Some students whose grades were farther down the alphabet boasted that no one after graduation would be interested in the grades which students made in college since the jobs which students would enter after college would not require any special quality of scholarship. To a group that looked forward to careers where push-buttons predominated their activity, the reasoning appeared sound.

The fallaciousness of this concept has been brought to our attention in many and various ways. The future of American democracy, our ideals, and our position in the world community is intimately linked with scholarship of a high order. Grave responsibilities are faced by higher education in developing young men and young women who are able to solve contemporary and emerging problems of the modern world. The criticisms and hysteria which have been centered about America's shortages in mathematics and the physical sciences represent only one aspect of the scene. The shortages clustered about problems in juvenile crime, human relations, community development, and international relations are equally marked and challenging. The explorations of outer space cannot go far unless the problems arising in a large number of other areas receive commensurate research and study. Scholarship of the undergraduate college and the university will need to be extended to industry, society, economic life, and international relations at all levels. Many of the same techniques and principles employed by students in college must be used to attack the issues of today.

America is fast reaching the point where scholarship is being appreciated and rewarded in terms of the standards prevailing in other aspects of American life. Recent discoveries now indicate that improvements in all aspects of our culture can go forward to unlimited extents. Each generation of scholars from the colleges and universities will be expected to work on the frontiers in the areas where they have demonstrated their scholarship. It is through the continuation of the habits of scholarship that leadership in the many facets of our culture will be provided. Commencement on the college campus can no longer mean the cessation of study and scientific methods of investigation. The world into which the scholars go today will accept with appreciation and generously reward those who continue their high scholarship beyond the Ivy Walls.

ON JUSTICE—One characteristic of our wonderful country is its use of the courts of law. If a man is arrested and kept over twenty-four hours in jail he can rely on the writ of habeas corpus ad subjicendum to see if he is lawfully held. This is one of the many laws to protect the individual from unfair practices by authority.

On our campus a kind of court is set up to pass judgment on those individuals who have broken the laws of our campus. When individuals are punished without going before this court it is by natural law unfair. It is true that an individual should not put himself into a situation that is questionable, but the main issue here is that he has the right to appear before the standard committee before being sent home.

To by-pass this committee is an infringement of personal freedom, "Guilty or not guilty" is their job to pronounce.

ON TREES—The condition of our streets on campus has improved since President Payne made his statement on the condition of the streets and what they can do to cars. This proves that our college can be improved.

ON RESPECT — Students still cannot see the disrespect they give to their school when they leave assembly before the Alma Mater is completed. We are forgetting respect.

NO ANSWER—No one has answered the editorial "SSC The Inadequate" written by Kenneth B. Alexander (March issue of the Tiger's Roar). It seems as if no one will come to the aid of his school. TUFF ain't it (literally meaning pathetic).

LAMENTATION

By Carl Faison

When I am depressed by my present state of confusion,
I think back to those golden days of my youth.
My green life was carefree and ran freely as a stream
Whose course had been charted by time.
Each hour was but a minute, and each day was but an hour.

Now that which was white has become a subtle grey
As it moves toward that inevitable black—
Life, which was once crystal, has become muddied.
Beauty is no more—
Keats and Shelley have become mere remnants
In the recess of a cluttered mind.

Each breath I breathe is increasing fear,
And my burdens are heaped upon me
Like the rays of the noonday sun.
I pray to my Maker that I be made strong
So that I may again know the peace that
Was mine in the days of gold.

Fine Arts Festival Held May 4-8

Clifford Hardwick delivers speech during the 11th annual Men's Festival Program.

The fourth annual fine arts festival at Savannah State College began May 4, with a joint concert featuring the choral society, the band, the women's ensemble, and the male quartet. The program took place in Meldrim Auditorium at 6:00 P.M.

The concert consisted of a wide variety of instrumental and vocal music and utilized the services of the entire music faculty. Dr. Coleridge A. Braithwaite conducted the society; Mrs. Florence F. Harrington conducted the women's ensemble; Herbert C. Harris conducted the band, and Miss Barbara J. Cobb conducted the quartet.

Monday there was an art exhibition throughout the day in the fine arts building and Hill Hall. This activity was under the direction of Phillip J. Hampton, assistant professor, fine arts.

On Tuesday evening at 8:15, John B. Clemmons, in collaboration with the Department of Language and Literature, directed the College Playhouse in a dramatic production, "Old Doc."

On Wednesday evening at 8:15, the famous jazz duo, Mitchell and Ruff, appeared in Meldrim Auditorium. With Dwike Mitchell on piano, and Willie Ruff on bass and French horn, this duo set up a colorful variety of tonal combinations, and explored both old and new frontiers of jazz, making happy discoveries on every horizon. They produced chamber music works that were as inventive as they were rewarding to hear.

On Thursday at the all-college assembly at 12:00 noon, the Liberty County High School Band, under the direction of Joseph Solomon, was presented. On Thursday night at 8:15 a piano recital by the students of Mrs. Alice C. Wright was held in Meldrim Auditorium. This recital concluded the Fine Arts Festival celebration.

THE OPINION PARADE . . .

Question: Do You Think The Library Adequate For the Number of Students Enrolled at SSC?

Julius Browning—"No, because they do not have all the new books they need."

Janie Baker—"Our college library is inadequate for the number of students enrolled. There are not enough copies of books for one thing. Compared to other college libraries that are highly rated, I'm sure our library would not be included among the best."

Pansie Lee Oeter—"No, because they do not have enough seats and tables; neither do they have enough books."

Annie A. Gay—"No, because the type of library we have you will find in a high school."

Margaret B. Wilson—"At the present time our library is not adequate for the number of students enrolled. However, a new library is in the making for our institution and I'm sure the new building will be adequate for the college campus and the community."

Virginia Smith—"No, it does not have the effielent equipment that a college library should have."

Pearlie Mae Haynes—"No, although our selections are excellent there are not enough copies of the same textbooks that are on reserve."

Helen D. Williams—"No because they do not have enough copies of the same book."

Jimmie D. Colson—"No, because of the insufficiency of books and other library facilities."

Eva C. Boseman—"Unfortunately our library facilities are quite inadequate or our present student enrollment. However the staff does an excellent job, despite this deficiency."

Alphanse McLean—"I think the library is inadequate because it doesn't have a listening room, slide roum or enough help.

Bettye Butler—"I think the library is inadequate because it is not large enough to accommodate enough students for studying at the college."

Ellen D. Spaulding—"I don't think that our college library is well equipped because there are not enough books in the library."

Question: Why don't the students support their student government?

By Janie V. Baker

It has observed that the students here on the campus do not support the student government as they should. Several students were asked their opinion as to the reason for the non-interest and support.

James E. Johnson—"As long as the situation doesn't directly concern the individual student, they just don't care."

Jaunita Carter—"The students wouldn't know they had a Student Council if they were not informed because the members of the Council do not function as they should."

Margaret Burney—"The students do not seem to be interested in how our student government functions; therefore they do not support it."

Josie Simpson—"The students do not support the student government because the purpose and functions of the council are of no interest to them unless they are involved."

Thomas Jones—"I feel that students do not support their student government because they are not interested enough. They lack information about it and as most citizens they take the Council for granted."

Albert Pleasant—"I feel that the students lack information about the Council's purposes and functions, resulting in a lack of student interest."

Joseph C. Mitchell—"The students do not support their student government because the Council members are yes members to the administration."

James Dean—"Because the students feel that the student government is not taking care of the many problems which concern the students."

Ernestine Hill—"Students are not adequately stimulated. In order to promote anything people should be made aware of what is going on. There should be more student participation. And how should this be made possible? By having frequent meetings and by asking the students opinions of prevailing issues. However, I am quite optimistic about student government at Savannah State College."

Drinking On Campus

(ACP)—College students who drink did so before college.

Drinking behavior is "largely cultural."

These were two points uncovered by two senior sociology majors at University of Arkansas. The ARKANSAS TRAVELER reported their findings.

The students used as their definition of a drinker "anyone who had a drink of any alcoholic beverage during the past six weeks." The six weeks before the study, no holiday or special school function had occurred.

Other findings:

*Most parents disapproved of their children's drinking, but the majority of students who drink have parents who drink occasionally.

*The majority of non-drinkers' parents never drink.

*Students with friends who drink were mostly drinkers themselves. Those who said none or only some friends drink were mostly abstainers.

*There was some correlation between frequency of attending church and probability of abstaining.

*Drunk women were more disapproved by both sexes than drunk men.

*Drinkers have less respect for drunks than do non-drinkers.

*Topping the list of reasons for drinking was enjoyment of taste. Chief reason for not drinking was because it was contrary to religious training.

*Most popular places for drinking were night clubs. Most popular drink was beer.

*Few students felt that the strictest possible enforcement of rules on student drinking would decrease drinking.

The sociology students concluded: "The findings should not be construed as final or all-inclusive. However, we feel we have obtained some useful information and some insight into the customs and beliefs of college students regarding drinking."

Eighty-six students—38 men and 48 women—answered questionnaires which were the basis of the data. Since men are a 4-1 majority at the university, pointed out the TRAVELER, the sample was not representative of the total student population.

Of the group questioned, 42 drank and 44 did not. But, thinks the TRAVELER, it would be incorrect to say that 48.3 per cent of the university's students drink. And no consideration of difference of percentage of drinking among men and women, age groups, amount of drinking done or other questions were made, said the newspaper.

ceaseless struggle to assert himself in defiance of destructive forces gathered around him.

A Greek chorus, the Teacher-Bird, and Phoenix were the leading characters of the drama. Choral dances included the awesome "Dance of Forewarning" and the joyful "Dance of Jubilation." A trio, consisting of Lula Belle Chance, Frances Carter, and Elzeta Brown interpreted the prayerful "Dance of Invocation."

"Dance of Denial" was performed by Eva Boseman, the Teacher-Bird. Phoenix, enacted by Drucilla Moore, danced the thrilling "Whirlwind Dance of Creation and Destruction" and the soulful "Dance of Aspiration," a hand dance.

FASHIONS

Hints On Dress

Fredonia, N. Y. (I.P.) — The Social Life Commission at Fredonia Teachers College, State University, has established the following social standards — interpretations of social vocabulary termed as "strictly yours":

1. The Formal Dance (Class proms, All School Weekend)—Girls will wear gowns or cocktail dresses; men will wear a tux or dinner jacket. A corsage is expected.

2. The Semi-Formal Dance—(Christmas Party, Class dances other than informal parties, etc.)—Girls will wear cocktail dresses or similar "good" dresses; men will wear dark suits, and no corsage is expected.

3. The Informal Dance—(Class parties, Sadie Hawkins dance, etc.)—Dress is optional according to the occasion.

Reception lines are expected at all Formal and Semi-Formal dances. The people who receive in the reception line might be chairmen of the event, class officers, faculty and honored guests. The Social Life Commission will also institute for Formal and Semi-Formal dances the "dance program." The procedure for these programs follows:

Several days prior to the dance, programs will be made available for the male half of the couple expecting to attend the event. He may, by arranging with other males (and consent of his female guest) fill this card of 10 dances to be shared with other couples. During the course of the evening, the dances will be announced at various times, and the dances on the program shall be so honored.

Members of the Social Life Commission feel that they are reviving an old custom by instituting the dance program on this campus, although their interpretations of social vocabulary may not necessarily coincide with interpretations in other places. Committee members feel that these new procedures will help to unite the school in a common social environment.

Hair Today

Latest notes from Paris feature the hair style to match the dress.

Be the first ladies to sport the Chemise bangs.

Most of the flower styles can be fashioned in simple form. Get the one made especially for you.

The suggested style of the month! The Chemise bangs. The soft uncurled look. The hair is parted low on one side and high on the other. Cut short for the smarter look. This arrangement may be combed to please the individual—as long as it is soft and free in appearance.

What's New In Evening Wear

This is the time of year for our Annual Balls given by the fraternities on our campus.

Seen sporting the new "Balloon" fashion and the "Lampshade" at the Alpha's Ball were Lonnie Culver, Kay Frances Butler and Clementine Patrick.

Miss Culver was seen in a green satin "Balloon," which was accented with Rhinestone straps. Her feet were smartly outfitted in glass slippers.

Miss Butler was truly the queen for the nite. She introduced the newest fashion for the season . . . The Lampshade. Her dress was white, well fitted at the top with a flared skirt. With this lovely dress she wore white pumps accented with Rhinestone Clips.

Miss Patrick was quite lovely in her green and white "Balloon" creation. With her dress she used Rhinestone jewelry and she also wore glass slippers.

"Cast A Spell" — Be A Charm

By Margaret Batchelor Wilson

Moving in groups as we do I am certain most of us have heard the expression "You are a doll." At various times this phrase is used loosely, however most people have subconsciously formed a cluster of ideas that mold their thinking in determining just what makes her tick.

The doll is poised, neat, polite, attractive, a good conversationalist, intelligent, and eager to please. She appears at ease with the world.

There are people gifted with these assets for the most part. However, I am inclined to believe that most of it is attained through a gradual process called "work."

Living and working together with others well in any society takes time. Being a "doll" takes time also.

We must learn what color or color combinations go best with our personality and skin tone. What lipstick or rouge help us smile best. What dress, suit, skirt or blouse gives us a feeling of rightness. There is always something that is just right for us. The trouble is finding that something. And so, we must do research on ourselves and adjust accordingly.

This theory is wise and one can profit from it . . . "it is not how much we have but what we do with what we have."

Reading literature, talking with others, being alert and being a good listener help only when we say to ourselves, "how will this help me form the character I wish to be?"

Charm is like perfume, the fragrance remains behind us. Let us strive to be like Arpege', Joy, or Aphrodisia . . . Leave a definite impression of loveliness, fascination . . . cast a spell.

Readings For Todays Woman

Cussler, Margaret. The Woman Executive. How does the successful business-woman regard herself, her job, her world? If she is married, how does her husband feel about a part-time wife whose salary may be bigger than his? If she isn't married, should she be? How do the employees react to her? These and many other questions are answered, sometimes humorously, sometimes seriously, in this absorbing book.

Harriman, Margaret Case. And the Price Is Right. The theme of this work is the largest department store in the world, Macy's. And, with an unequaled fund of lore and personalities at hand, the author brings to this story all the liveliness of her discovery that the backstage of the department store is as exciting as the backstage of the theater and literary world in which she grew up.

Pepis, Betty. Guide to Interior Decoration. This is a book about taste in decoration. The author first gives a historical background. Then she discusses the effects on interiors of such present-day phenomena as the open floor plan, the window wall, television, informal living and dining, the cocktail table, built-in furniture, straw-like furniture and the one-room apartment. This book is a "gulde" because it shows how the taste of our time has already been used to the best advantage, and how it may be used or adapted in the future.

Perry, Frances. The Woman Gardener. This is a comprehensive book for all women gardeners. In addition to the normal chapters, it establishes its special place by including chapters on flower arranging, making the most of cut flowers, miniature gardens, the herb garden and window boxes.

Haupt, Enid. The Seventeen Book of Young Living. Here can be found what all young people want to know about the exciting but still disturbing process of growing up. The author treats with wit and wisdom the manifold problems that face today's young woman, such as giving a successful party, petting and holding a job, choosing the right clothes for the right occasion, making friends in a new town or a new school, getting along with parents. It also supplies guidance on the problems of self-confidence, shyness, and love.

Shattuck, Katharine. The Narrowest Circle. Edith Martin, persuaded to stay on after college graduation as the Geigers' baby sitter, and as it turns out unpaid maid-of-all-work, discovers that human relationships seldom remain static. Edith, out of pity, falls hair in love with the husband, but it is her concern for the four-year-old son that keeps her enslaved. She finally realizes that the Geigers must work out their own problems.

Singleton, Betty. A Note of Grace. When the chapel of the Sisters of St. Jude is destroyed by fire, the nuns decide to build a new one themselves. Impelled by the consuming zeal of Sister Ignatius and by a pure and beautiful trumpet not inexplicably produced from his instrument, Fred Gedge, local builder and trumpeter in the brass band, finds himself unwillingly enlisted in their task.

Did You Know That:

Baseball, the great American game, has been for many years the national game of the United States.

American soldiers have been credited with the spread of the game after World War II. Many of the people of Europe learned how to play it from the American soldier.

Abner Doubleday, a general in the Union Army during the War Between the States, is said to have begun the sport. The first rules were laid out and drawn up by Doubleday at Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1839.

The National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum was erected at Cooperstown in Doubleday's honor.

Eddie Machen and Zora Folley fought to a 12-round draw. The rumor was out that heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson had been offered $200,000 to fight the winner of the Mike DeJohn and Nino Valdes fight. Roy Harris, a school teacher from Cut and Shoot, Texas, is being talked about as a possible match with Floyd Patterson . . . The New York Yankees won seven of their first eight games. Archie Moore, light heavyweight champion, seeking another shot at the heavyweight title, paraded television on May 2, in a heavyweight bout. Moore hasn't lost a fight since he lost to Floyd Patterson in '55.

Authors Give Views On American Life

(ACP)—Two different men presented interesting reflections of American life as they spoke at Brooklyn College recently. They were Max Lerner, columnist, author and professor, and Jack Kerouac, author of "On the Road" and "The Subterranean," spokesman for the "beat" generation.

KINGSMAN reported their talks.

Lerner covered theories pronounced in his recent "The American Civilization." In his attempt to define American civilization, he noted its distinct quality apart from a European culture.

"It does not mean," he said, "that we are superior to Greece or Rome. It means, simply, that we are ourselves."

He thinks some aspects of American society can be explained in terms of the "runaway quality" of contemporary America.

AKM Sponsors Tea For Tutors and Alumni

By Sara Reynolds

Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society sponsored a tea for the members of the Tutorial System and its Alumni members at the home of Pres. and Mrs. W. K. Payne on Sunday afternoon, May 3.

The tea was highlighted by an address by Dr. B. T. Griffith, Chairman of the Biology Department. He encouraged all of us "to make ourselves 'busy' in the fight for democracy and leadership."

After the program a delicious repast was served and soft music was played by Margaret Bing and Yvonne Hooks.

Alpha News

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity initiated five new members into Greekland this year: Sherman Roberson, sophomore, majoring in chemistry; Ted Pollens, senior, majoring in social science; Launey Roberts, junior, majoring in social science; John Harris, junior, majoring in mathematics; and Eugene Hagins, sophomore, majoring in general science.

During the month of May, Alpha sought to give the students a look at the fraternity's talent. They sought to bring the assembly program closer to the campus by using only the talent on the campus. The program, under the leadership of Peter John Baker, included piano solos by Grover Thornton and Peter John Baker; vocal solos by James E. Johnson and Launey Roberts; instrumental solos by Ted Pollens, Harris Campbell and Launey Roberts, and the occasional address by Peter John Baker. The preiude and postlude were played by Eugene Hagins on the organ and Peter John Baker on the piano. The program was also highlighted with a selection by the Alpha Choraleers who sang "Halls of Ivy."

Election Sadness

(ACP) — Election excitement brightened thousands of schools across America this past month, but Alabama Polytechnic Institute in Auburn had a silent election day.

On election eve, four API students died in what the PLAINSMAN called "the worst auto wreck in the history of Auburn." Two of the victims were candidates for student body offices.

All election advertising was removed from campus and campaigning ceased. Said the PLAINSMAN:

"How can we say what we feel? We can't . . . Yes, death has struck close to home and we all wonder . .

"To walk down the quiet streets and past the darkened classrooms was to see misty gloom caused by swift and violent death. Where were the signs and posters of an election day? Where would be candidates and workers laughing and shouting to students on their way to vote?

"There could be none of these things.

"A torn strip of paper moved quietly in the breeze, signaling what was once the blatant display of a now unknown candidate. A scrap of brightly-colored paper lay here and another there — mute evidence of the happiness and action of an election now without life.

"Life and death were very big as you stood there in the early morning. And you were very small."

August, 1958 — SAVANNAH, GEORGIA — Vol. 11, No. 8

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF THE NEW LIBRARY now under construction at SSC gives a preliminary view of the half-million dollar structure that will be completely air-conditioned and contain the latest facilities.

Construction Well Advanced for New Library for Savannah State College

The new library, a one-half million dollar structure, is rapidly taking shape on the moss-laden campus of Savannah State College. The location of the library is to be at the main entrance to the college. The structure is being built of mat-type face brick in colors similar to Richard R. Wright Hall, men's dormitory.

The construction is under the supervision of Rives Worrel, with Cletus W. Bergen and William P. Bergen, architects. The library will include fire-proof stair towers, and fire-proof walls. It is to be ell shaped and completely air-conditioned. Other additions are a lounge and recreation room for the staff, adequate rest rooms for men and women, and public telephones. There will be a receiving room through which books and magazines will be indexed and processed.

In line with the latest modern library facilities, it will include an audio-visual auditorium for movies and film demonstrations, audio-visual storage, a seminar room, textbook and institutional material, reading room, music room, and a large reading area. The east elevation of the library will consist of two stories of window walls forming the outside wall of the lobby, stack room, and balconies.

President W. K. Payne recently announced that bids for the one million dollar technical building will be issued by the Technical Building Authority, and that construction on this addition should begin within the next sixty days. The college will soon be a bee-hive of activity, with a new and one-half million dollar construction program taking form.

565 Enrolled at SSC This Summer

Ben Ingersoll, Registrar at Savannah State College, announces the enrollment of 459 students for the summer session, with 106 enrolled in the Department of Trades and Industries for a total of 565.

According to Mr. Ingersoll, these students are studying in a variety of areas from General Education to special workshops for in-service teachers as well as students pursuing degree courses in biology, building construction, business administration, business education, chemistry, child development, clothing and textiles, economics, elementary education, English, foods, nutrition and institution management, general science, industrial arts, industrial education, mathematics, music, secretarial sciences, social sciences, technical sciences, trades and industries, and health and physical education.

McCullough Appointed SSC Department Head

Dr. William K. Payne, president of Savannah State College, has appointed N. V. McCullough professor of English and chairman of the Department of Languages and Literature at Savannah State College.

Dr. McCullough was born in Youngstown, Ohio, and attended Covington Elementary School, Hayes Junior High School, and Rayen High School in that city. After serving almost three years in the U. S. Navy, he matriculated at the Ohio State University, where in 1949 he earned the BA and BS degrees, being one of the few to earn two degrees at one commencement. Later, he earned the MA degree in 1950 at the same university. All of his work is in English, except for a major in speech and the BS in Education. His doctoral study was done at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio; and the PhD degree was awarded to him in September, 1957. The subject of his dissertation is: "The Morphology of John Bunyan, Including Observations on Syntax, Grammar, and Style With Special Reference to the 1611 King James Bible."

He taught English at State Teachers College, Elizabeth City, North Carolina, for two years, and was chairman of the Division of Humanities at Lane College, Jackson, Tennessee, for three years. He also served as professor of English and Speech at Lane College for one year.

Dr. McCullough has published one book, The Other Side of Hell, and another small volume of poems is currently at press and should be released soon. The title of the new volume is Lemons on the Rosebush.

For years he has been a member of the National Council of Teachers of English, the Modern Language Association, and other professional organizations. He is an honorary member of the International Mark Twain Society and several regional literary societies. Dr. McCullough is also a member of Beta Sigma Tau fraternity.

AAC Prepares Teaching List

Edmond, Okla. — (I.P.) — A teaching list for college teachers and a self-survey handbook are being planned by an American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education committee in which Dr. W. Max Chambers, president of Central State College, is an officer.

The teaching list would first request a survey of all colleges and universities preparing teachers for higher education. The list would be subdivided into various fields. The self-survey handbook would be a guide for administration and faculties to project their needs scientifically. Financial, housing, curriculum, enrollment needs—all would be covered by the scientific research guide.

It's a national problem needing a national office, says Dr. Chambers. Access to the list by AACTE members would mean they would have to check only the list rather than to visit graduate schools over the country.

College Playhouse to Present "Bishop's Mantle" in August

By Pearlie M. Haynes

The College Playhouse is busy getting ready "The Bishop's Mantle" by Marion Johnson. This dramatic production is another in a series of plays that J. B. Clemmons has directed.

The cast of this summer production includes such performers as Jewel Grant, who thrilled the audience in "The Spider and the Fly," "Na Rhyme Nor Reason," "Punky Doodles," and the "Ugly Duckling." Miss Grant is a graduate of Howard University and is an elementary school teacher of the Chatham County School System.

Kay F. Stripling, a senior majoring in English, captivated the audience in "Pride and Prejudice" and "Old Doc." Her ambition is to become a speech therapist.

The youngest member of the cast is Ann Marie Meyers, a June graduate of St. Pius X High School. She has accepted a four-year scholarship to matriculate at Rosemont College, Rosemont, Pennsylvania, where she plans to major in mathematics. Miss Meyers has been in several previous productions of the summer theater.

Laura Solomon Carter, graduate of Talladega College, is a secretary in the Chatham County System and is also a member of this cast. Mrs. Carter has starred in several of the YWMCA players' presentations.

Ida B. Wylie, a teacher at Rome High School, Rome, Georgia, will also be seen. Mrs. White has appeared in several leading productions and played the leading role in "The Spider and the Fly."

One of the most outstanding senior members of the cast is Irene Evelyn Davis, who is remembered for her excellent performance in "Pride and Prejudice" and loved for her role in "Old Doc." Mrs. Davis was a member of the Howard University Players and the YMCA.

Andrew Russell, an English major, active in many campus organizations, is best remembered for the excellent portrayal of "Pa" in "Old Doc." His ambition is to become a minister.

The cast also includes Alphonso Arnold, August graduate, majoring in chemistry. Those who saw him in "Pride and Prejudice" will want to see him in this production. He is affiliated with many campus organizations.

Danny Washington, August graduate, has been a member of the Playhouse for two years and has appeared in many productions including "Pride and Prejudice."

Leonard Law, a recent graduate of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia, has joined the College Playhouse for the summer and has one of the leading roles.

For her recent contribution to a class in Play Production, Theo D. Davis was selected for the coveted position as assistant directress.

The College Playhouse provides activities in acting, costuming, staging, speech, makeup, directing, etc. Some students participate with this organization who are not necessarily interested in acting. The Playhouse has been under the direction of several instructors during the last few years. The present director was a member of the Atlanta University Players and has attended many speech and drama conferences. He has audited several speech classes and has had some formal courses in play production and speech. Mr. Clemmons has served as drama consultant in several states and has written radio skits, etc.

The College Playhouse is under the sponsorship of the Department of Languages and Literature, although, at times, it has been sponsored by the Department of Fine Arts.

Membership in this organization is open to all S.S.C. students. It is expected that majors of English will take an active part.

Education: World's Biggest Bargain

Throughout the country United States have long been necustomed to look for bargains and special sales. Practically all methods of communication carry news of special events which represent bargains. The idea underlying this continuous search for special consideration does not stop with the commercial world. It permeates all aspects of our individual and national life. In our cities and communities citizens tend to operate on that basis. The serious lack of proper recreation facilities, adequate schools, mental and physical health facilities, qualified teachers and leaders for schools and other forms of social groupings represents another side of this picture. Everyone wishes to secure these things at a bargain or a sale price. In our schools and colleges the idea is represented by the tendency of students to get by with as little effort as possible. Many enjoy talking about the ease with which they pass certain courses and the time they save by changing majors and carrying over-loads. This tendency to get by with as little as possible has been extended too far by too large a number of people.

As one considers the real meaning of this tendency, one finds that the procedure does result in many cases in real bargain or saving. The four years which the average individual has allotted for a college education should represent more than the passing of courses and the amassing of credits. It is possible that a student may spend his allotted time for a baccalaureate degree and still leave college less prepared than one who never went to college. If the college education is supposed to help a student live better and do better whatever he chooses as his vocation, it certainly would not be a bargain to get less. In this respect, the college education is very sensitive in those who desire only the rough, so little depth, so little understanding, and so little appreciation.

The manipulation of courses and programs for the special reason of avoiding problems and getting out of college by a specific date invariably leads to higher priced education. The progress made in refinement of measurement, articulation, and precision in the mechanical world must also be applied to the social and cultural areas. Accuracy, thoroughness and definiteness of planning produce excellent results when applied to social and economic problems. Students who continue their preparation and apply themselves diligently because they have a need for the subjects usually take advantage of a bargain. There is always a bargain in a college education when one's education and training becomes increasingly influential in his living. It is possible for educational training to be called as the best bargain in the modern world. It is through this process that great strides have been made in the improvement of living, the extension of life, and the pursuit of happiness.

W. K. PAYNE, President

Informal Education

Education as a by-product of a literate society is almost always placed at the top of its class. And in order to survive in a literate society one must have an education whether it be formal or informal. Of the two approaches toward an education one is found to be more valuable than the other. This being the case the two approaches have been studied and analyzed carefully, taking each delicate part and placing it in its own particular category. From the analysis, the following summation has been determined.

To live effectively in a modern society one needs that training which will enable him to accomplish this particular task. The training includes what modern man calls an informal education. This formal education will take him through the various departments of a school of liberal arts. Here man begins with antiquity, and studies the ideas of great men of that era, taking everything down that may be of value to him that relates to the object of the idea, that he would like to master. For four years or more he is undisturbed by outside forces and lets nothing get in his way to reach his ultimate goal. After this man has completed his educational requirements he is ready to take his place in his favorite society and is ever above all things the value of money. For the most part, this man lives his life out in comfort, that is he has all the material things in life, but he misses something that the man with the informal education has.

The man with an informal education does not go through all of the stages that a man with a formal education goes through. For the most part, a man with an informal education does not seek an education as such, but with the prophunity of nature and mankind, this man has an opportunity to learn through the phenomena of the prophunity of nature is that fact which makes this man connoisseur of all his undertakings. Unlike the man with the formal education this man does not study the ways of primordial man for the sake of knowing more than his fellowman in order to rise above him and look down on him as a condescending observer. But, this knowledge which is usually gotten from the book of golden rules is supplemented by this man's unceasing quest to understand human nature. To do this he begins with nature in its crudest form; he tries to understand its ways and reactions of the inanimate creature which God put in this world for him to oversee. Step by step he goes through the stages of learning, missing nothing that will enable him to understand human nature. One of the greatest of all human qualities is that of being philanthropic, and the only way one can accomplish this goal is to do as this man has done. Study nature and human nature carefully and try to understand its secrets and limitations. The man with an informal education has more opportunities to achieve this quality, because he is closely connected with these occurrences in nature and this quality is more valuable than any other, and man can achieve this more readily if he seeks an education, the informal way.

Your Role as College Graduate in Your Community

There is no doubt that a large number of us come from rural and small communities. However, the size of your community is of no major importance. It will in no way change what will be expected of you as a college graduate. Therefore, persons returning to the small communities are just as important as persons returning to the large communities.

As a college graduate you will be called upon to perform and expected to do many duties that might not be directly related to the work you were trained for. You will be invited to join various clubs, serve on various committees, explain or give your views on controversial topics, organize clubs and any number of other things that the citizens of the various communities may ask you to do. We do not condemn a person's being a member of some organization nor do we condone a person's trying to belong to all of them.

As a college graduate, you will be expected to be a resourceful person. In the event you are called upon to perform some duty you are not thoroughly familiar with, you will be expected to know some reliable sources from which information may be found. In conclusion, we also think that as a college graduate it is your responsibility to select, to as great a degree as possible, those organizations in which you will render the most service to your community.

OPINION COLUMN

Student Opinions

By Sherman Roberson

The topic selected for student comment is, "Will the addition of Savannah State's new library and technical buildings influence enrollment?" Opinions were solicited from various students. These are their reactions:

Hattie Burton, junior, majoring in Physical Education states, "The addition of these two vitally-needed buildings to our campus will tend to increase enrollment. The facilities will be extended considerably."

Minnie Ruth Smith, freshman, majoring in Elementary Education, says, "The addition of buildings to our fair campus will draw more students to Savannah State. It will also raise the status of our beloved school."

Johnny Harris is very enthusiastic about our new technical building and feels that "to the entering students interested in engineering, these added facilities should serve as inspiration."

Gwendolyn Davis, senior, majoring in General Science states that "the addition of the technical building might have an effect on the enrollment" but she fails to see where the library will have any influence.

Lonnie Culver, junior, majoring in Business Education, feels that, "Enrollment may not be increased, but the students may obtain better averages due to the addition of the new library, because of the more materials that will be available."

Mable McPherson, senior, majoring in English feels that "the addition of the library will not influence enrollment, but perhaps it will have an effect on scholastic averages. The technical program will probably draw students interested in science."

The students seem to have varied views as to some of the changes that may possibly occur as a result of additions to our campus. This reporter feels that these buildings are much-needed, long-awaited facilities.

THE PERISCOPE

By Sherman Roberson

The recent firing of a U. S. ballistic missile from Cape Canaveral, Florida, has presented somewhat of a problem. The nose cone of the missile contained a mouse. The missile traveled 6,000 statute miles from Cape Canaveral and landed near Ascension Island in the South Atlantic Ocean.

This was the first known successful firing of a ballistic weapon more than 6,000 miles into outer space and which survived the red hot plunge back into the earth's atmosphere. The nose cone of the missile has not been recovered as of yet. In London, England, the Royal Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said it will protest to the American Embassy about the mouse being fired into space.

The Periscope moves momentarily to Ottawa, Canada, which was the work bench for recent talks completed between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker and other high Canadian officials.

It is indespensible that the highest degree of mutual trust and respect exist between the United States and Canada.

Due to the addition of Alaska as the 49th state, increased emphasis should be placed on United States and Canadian relations. The United States will touch Canada on the Northwest as well as the South and the common border of the two countries will be increased by 1,500 miles.

The long awaited, talked about, summit talks appear to be a merry-go-round of propaganda. Both parties involved have made numerous accusations, each accusing the other of delaying these talks. This situation appears to be symbolic of a high school dance, where the girls are too shy to dance and the fellows are glad of it.

The Periscope focuses the troubled scene of Lebanon. The U. N. observer teams have asserted that President Nasser's United Arab Republic has been rendering aid to the rebels. The teams reported that for the first time arrangements had been made for them to travel into the northeastern Lebanese area which is regarded as one of the most likely infiltration routes from U. A R.'s province of Syria. This area is currently controlled by rebel leader Sabri Hamadi.

The Periscope noted that it has been stated that the recession is leveling off, unemployment has decreased, and the hardest blow has been felt. Let's hope so, anyway!

Man and His Present Era

By Leroy Mobley

Now we stand on the threshold of space,
Awed and overwhelmed by our ignorance
Of the things we found we did not know.
Yet pleased with our untiring vigilance.

Man nor mankind will never cease to wonder
At the complexity of the universe.
The only question that now arises is,
Whether this is a blessing or a curse.

Why Do Students Fail?

By Alfonso Arnold

Ask a student why he failed a particular course and the blame is invariably placed upon the instructor. While this is not always the true picture, many teachers do, by their methods, assume partial responsibility for the student's failure. In many cases teachers cannot or do not simplify their subject matter. However, this does not mean that the teacher does not know the subject or material but that he is unable to bring his instruction down to the level of the students.

Some students fail because they do not have enough time to prepare adequately for their studies. As to the why of the time element, it is often remarked that some teachers seem to think that they are the only teachers. With this idea prevalent, they thrust upon the student assignments that will consume four or five hours for that particular course alone. There is an apparent disregard for assignments given by other instructors.

The foregoing accounts are what you hear from the student who failed a course. Every factor other than himself is blamed. While many of the factors outside himself should be viewed with concern, I believe that, generally, students fail because of the improper utilization of time. This is to infer that there is a tendency to forsake genuine studying until just before the final examination. As a result there is an all-out endeavor to catch up on neglected work by staying up all night studying. Therefore, when the examining hour comes, there is both physical and emotional fatigue. Indeed, if he had used his brain to this extent, his successful outcome in the course would have been ascertained long before the "cramming process."

How True Is Truth?

By Sherman Roberson

Out of physical, chemical, or unknown changes our world was born,
Who can state with validity, out of which did it occur?
Even the theories employed are the results of abstract thought,
A power greater than man's gave birth to this treasured universe.
I employ many questions, to which there appear no answers;
The scientist sets forth vague solutions in their regards,
But even he bonbts the results or their skepticism.
And why not I? Is this not logic?
I profess myself to be one of a scientific attitude,
I even share the hope of becoming a scientist,
But even those things we claim as truth,
Should we not forever question their validity?
Should we not seek truth even beyond the threshold of truth?
I shall venture even if I go alone.

General Electric Work-Study Plan at Union College Has Vacancies

From 25 to 30 openings for the fall of 1958 are still available in the General Electric College Level Apprentice Training Program at Schenectady, N. Y. On the job training in drafting, machining, pattern making and metal founding is combined with an opportunity to earn credits toward an engineering degree at Union College.

Applicants must be in the upper half of their classes, have an overall average of at least 80, and make acceptable scores on the College Entrance Examination Board tests. High school transcripts must show 16 full units including four of English and 3½ of mathematics through trigonometry and solid geometry.

Apprentices work full-time for General Electric and are paid at a beginning rate of $60 a week, eventually making $80 a week. They have Union College classes at night. The program covers four years during which the two years of college credit, for which General Electric pays the tuition, may be earned. Full-time work is continued during the summer but classes are attended only during the normal academic year.

At the end of this program it is possible to obtain a leave of absence to continue work toward a degree on a full-time basis or continue working for the firm and going to college at night. There is a possibility of additional scholarship assistance toward a degree but this is not guaranteed.

Fifty young men are now participating in this program. Women are not eligible because of a state law limiting their employment in jobs of this nature until they reach the age of 21. Applications are not limited to students from the New York State area. Among the current apprentices are young men from California, Illinois, Oklahoma, Texas and West Virginia.

Interested applicants should write, giving full details of high school background, and including an official transcript of grades, to Supervisor, Apprentice Training, General Electric Company, 1 River Road, Schenectady 5, N. Y.

Year of Chemise

This will be known as the "Year of the Chemise" (circa 1958) and Mr. Mort has taken it, in all of its many and talented variations, and adapted it to show how completely and feminine a silhouette it can be. After seeing the best renditions of this new and wonderful theme there should be no doubt, even among the most stubborn who thought they could never wear this completely wearable fashion.

After all, as any owner of a Mr. Mort Chemise will state, loud and clear, "to wear one is to love one." The eye, the male eye in particular, has become educated but not without the aid of gentle tailoring, meticulous fit and dramatic detail. These points, thanks to Mr. Mort, have made this collection one that's appealing and exciting. Take yours two piece, one piece, gently blouson or starkly simple. Have yours in silk, in wool, in crisp cotton, in cotton tweed or cotton knit.

For early morning until late at night, dress or casual, whatever your desire in the way of a chemise, Mr. Mort has the chemise for your figure. This whole new group is spirited, young and wearable and as always Mr. Mort's fashion is the kind of good fashion that becomes a way of dressing . . . not the way of a fad.

Square Dance Replaces Assembly

By Mable McPherson

The faculty and student body of Savannah State College had many varied experiences on Thursday, July 3, when a "Square Dance" was held in Wiley Gymnasium instead of the usual assembly program. Mrs. Elia Fisher, assistant professor of Physical ducation, was the director.

The two dances learned by the student body were Pattie Cake Poker and Heads and Sides. First, instructions were given the group without the music; second, instructions were given with the music; and finally the group participated in the dance without any assistance from the director.

A number was given to each student at the entrance of the gymnasium, matching a number of the opposite sex, which was used as a ticket for a soda and a hot dog.

TIGER'S ROAR PREVIEW

BOOK REVIEW

By Thurnell Johnson

Home Play for the Pre-School Child. June Johnson. Harper and Brothers Publishing Company. New York. 1957.

The author's special qualification for writing this book is from the results of experience with her own children. Her materials came from a great deal of studying and reading, public playground classes, talking to other mothers, and other nursery teachers, back yard nursery groups, and ideas from the children themselves.

The author's purpose in the book is to recognize the child at any age, in any situation, and in any mood. Thus she can portray the potentialities as well as the limitations of each age.

The book is the result of experience with children. The ideas for its roots were formed several years ago, when their needs and requests led over into pre-school learning through fun. It is to help in using the child's ideas, or in developing new ones. Each idea in this has been tested and approved by experts; the pre-schoolers themselves. The illustrations were done by the children so that you, the reader, may know approximately what to expect: not the cute, quaint products of a grown up imitating a four-year-old child, but the messy originals of the happy young experimenters themselves.

A child's pre-school years, says Robert Burns, are "like the snow-falls in the river, a moment white, then melts forever."

If you can learn to look in the developing mind of your child as a fascinating pageant, he will sense the genuine richness of his life; then you will be able to relax and have fun with him and all the gay things you do will give him true enrichment. His creative imagination will develop.

The child who acquires adequate rest and wholesome food, and who is well disciplined is an easy-to-live-with child. His happiness improves your attitude toward him and because of that, this might help you, "Heaven lies about us in our infancy."

This book is highly recommended for pre-school teachers and mothers, because in this book the child is presented with such things as creative crafts, drawing, modeling mediums and designs with paper and paste. Crafts give your child a chance at self-expression.

Remember, your child needs play space. His job during these early years is simply to grow like an unfolding flower. His creative toys are his tools.

Psychologists and educators feel strongly that nursery experiences are of vast importance in the mental growth and social development of the pre-school child.

In conclusion, the value of the pre-school child in the nursery groups, playground classes, neighborhood playground groups, and in the home will become more obvious as the time goes on. Your child's development will show you how well worth the effort is. If your child has a difficult time at first, stay with him if necessary, but whatever you do, don't give up.

The book sets forth the following points:

1. Don't give too much guidance.
2. Make your remarks general.
3. Display his work.

MOVIE REVIEW

"Desire Under the Elms"

By Yvonne Hooks

"There's something dark prowling in the corners," grunted Ephram. And so there was . . . in the life of a New England family during the 1840's.

"Desire Under the Elms," a movie based on the play by American dramatist Eugene O'Neil, tells the story of Anna, the 25-year-old Italian wife of 76-year-old New England farmer, Ephram; his son Eben, who fails in love with fiery Ann; and their baby whom Anna murders to insure Eben's love for her.

Burl Ives, as Ephram, gives an impressive performance as the stern, gusty Puritan husband and father. Sophia Loren, suitrily plays the part of selfish, passoniate spitfire Anna. Anthony Perkins, deftly portrays quiet Eben who is hate-filled and aloof.

Fashion Notes

"The way to succeed in winning a maiden's heart is by being FASHION WISE"

By Minnie Ruth Smith

It seems to me that most magazines and newspapers may have some small comment on ladies' fashions and nothing for the dear fellows. So I decided I would give the young men a treat. Here are some of the latest fashions for college and Ivy League men.

The latest men's fashions are the handsome "Palm Beach wash-and-wear suits." You will find comfortable, tailored fit, which springs back precisely after every washing.

"Chic" suits are the subject of summer's most original fashion statements. The new double-breasted "Blazer" is articulated in dark tropical "worsted and dacron," and for the first time made with matching trousers. This means you have a new kind of suit for day or evening wear, sooner than either a conventional suit or a sports coat-slacks combination. The "Blazer" is cut for hot-weather ease and fixed with scored metal buttons. The classic "Blazer" cut finds new dimensions of elegance.

The latest jazz of a jacket designed for sitting comfort—short, loose lightweight and cut to ride away from the body is the "Jetster," because it leads a second life as a flight travel coat with suit trousers. The "Jetster" is destined to replace sports coats over matching city-shorts. The "Jetster" dips to a point and ends in a cardigan back.

Around the world or around the town, include in your wardrobe Aerlian slacks. These slacks hold their press, keep their shape, shed wrinkles fast and are so-oco comfortable, fellows.

A hot-weather outfit in which you could trudge along the streets of Italy, yet turn up the next day in Paris as impeccably groomed as anyone in the Ritz bar is the "Double Glen Urquhart" plaid; 65 per cent dacron and 35 per cent cotton, it dries overnight as well. The white shirt signals one of the big textile stories of the decade: pure cotton has finally been processed to dry to perfection without ironing. White slacks become practical as well as handsome for summer leisure in an Aerlian blend which dries fast and smooth.

To conclude with the latest "kick" on our beloved campus, we look at the "ALPINE HAT." It folds on both sides, comes in an array of colors, and has that eye-catching "Feather" on the side, which the young ladies cannot miss.

All of these fashions may be purchased at any of the fine stores for men in our lovely city, Savannah. Also these fashions that I have passed along to you are in what you might call the Ivy League men's guide, the book of the month, Esquire.

SPOT LIGHT

By Iris Lee Parrish

This month, Mattie B. Blackwell and Andrew Russell, the Spotlight has stopped on you. The students have found you to be two of the most pleasing personalities on campus, because of your regular character, your scholastic abilities, and your ability to get along with others.

Mrs. Blackwell hails from Elbertun, Georgia. She is a graduate of Elbertun High School and a transfer student from Clark College, Atlanta, Georgia, with a major in mathematics and a minor in social science. She has attended Savannah State College during the summers of 1950, '53. Mrs. Blackwell has taught in the Bowman Elementary School for 11 years. She is a member of the GTEA, advisor of the Bowman Tri-Hi-Y Club, and president of the Missionary Club.

Andrew Russell is a native of Elizabeth City, New Jersey, and a graduate of Maggeallliff High School. He is now majoring in English and minoring in social science. During the time Russell has spent at Savannah State he has been active in many organizations. He is presently a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc., Young Men's Christian Association, Dormitory Council, Lyecum Committee, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School, and a member of the Summer Theatre.

Russell has a varied selection of hobbies which includes reading, jazz collection and literary interpretations. He plans to attend the Meadeville Seminary in Chicago. Two of his greatest ambitions is to be an instructor of English and to visit the Holy Land of Jerusalem.

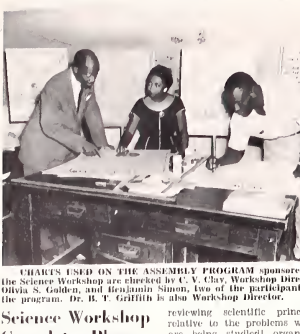
SCIENCE WORKSHOP PLANS



CHARTS USED ON THE ASSEMBLY PROGRAM sponsored by the Science Workshop are checked by C. V. Clay, Workshop Director; Olivia S. Golden, and Benjamin Simon, two of the participants on the program. Dr. B. T. Griffith is also Workshop Director.

Science Workshop Completes Plans

The Science Workshop for teachers of the elementary grades has just completed its fifth week of work. The primary objective of the Workshop is to help grade science teachers in the elementary schools become better science teachers in their respective schools. The participating teachers in the Workshop have undertaken this task with a great deal of interest and enthusiasm. Each teacher is working independently on the problem, or problems, which are causing him the greatest trouble in attempting to teach the natural sciences on the elementary level. This results in reviewing scientific principles relative to the problems which are being studied; organizing data for teaching purposes; preparing experiments and teaching aids for better understanding of scientific principles; making use of the natural resources in the teaching of sciences; and using literature on the natural sciences to the greatest advantage.

Teachers of the first through the seventh grades are enrolled in this Workshop. The organization of the Workshop is similar to that of other educational workshops.

Dr. B. T. Griffith, chairman, Department of Biology and C. V. Clay, chairman, Department of Chemistry, are directors of the Workshop.

Bowdoin Prexy States Tax Plan

Brunswick, Me.— (I.P.)—Suggesting that the Internal Revenue law be amended "to permit monies given for scholarships to our established colleges and universities to be deducted by the taxpayer from the computed tax due the government on his income, rather than deducting said amount from income before computation of tax, President James S. Coles of Bowdoin College recently put forth this plan as an alternate to the federal scholarship program.

The federal program would authorize 50,000 new scholarships each year to be allocated among the states in proportion to the number of their secondary school graduates. Dr. Coles stated that his plan would cost the federal government "no more than it would appropriate for scholarships and the necessary connected administrative expenses. It would not discriminate against any college or university, public or private, by any arbitrary limitation on scholarship funds.

"It would permit every dollar of the individual citizen intended for scholarship purposes to be devoted exclusively to scholarship purposes. And, finally, it would permit the continuing diversity of support among institutions of many different kinds in every nook and cranny of the country, a general support which gives strength to these institutions as a whole through the diversity which it maintains."

President Coles said that there would naturally have to be limitations upon the amounts which would be deducted from income tax payments by individuals giving scholarship funds to institutions. The money given could not exceed the amount needed or that which the federal government might ordinarily appropriate.

Dr. Coles also suggested, as an alternative to federal scholarships, the provision of Army and Air Force ROTC scholarships like those already offered by the Naval ROTC. The so-called Holloway Plan provides for regular Naval ROTC students a full tuition scholarship plus room and board, books and supplies throughout four years of college. The Army and the Air Force have no such program of grants.

Forty Scholars To Study in U. S.

Berkeley, Calif.— (I.P.) — Approximately forty scholars, scientists, and intellectual leaders from Asia and the Near East will come to four American universities in the next five years for study and direct experience with American scholarship and culture.

A grant of $800,000 has been made by the Ford Foundation to cover the cost of an inter-university visiting scholar program. The four universities participating in the program are the University of California, the University of Chicago, Columbia University and Harvard University. At the request of the other three institutions, the University of Chicago will serve as coordinator and disbursing agent of the grant.

Each of the universities will select two visiting scholars each year, the invitations being coordinated to assure a balance in various fields of study. The visitors will come in approximately equal numbers from four regions:

India-Ceylon; the Near East and Pakistan; Southeast Asia, including the Philippines; and the Far East, including Japan, Koren, Hong Kong, and Taiwan. The grants will provide for foreign travel, maintenance, and travel in the United States. Wives of the scholars will be invited, and children will be allowed to accompany their parents.

The visiting scholar program is designed to bring intellectual leaders from Asia and the Near East to the United States. It will operate through invitations initiated by the universities rather than by applications by the candidates.

Trinity College Maps Plan for Assistants

Hartford, Conn. — (I.P.) — A long-range plan for student assistants in the department of mathematics at Trinity College has received substantial support from the International Business Machines Corp.

Dr. Dorwart said five assistantships in the department will be awarded to sophomores for the academic year, 1957-58. Each will carry a stipend of $400 for the year, either as a tuition credit or in cash, and will be renewable for the junior and senior years if the student's record warrants renewal.

Each student assistant will be expected to devote from 10 to 12 hours per week to the following projects.

Some reading of home-work papers in the basic mathematics courses;

Attendance at certain of the departmental meetings and participation in the discussions;

Assistance in blackboard drills at sessions for weaker students; and

For seniors, some actual teaching in freshman sections under careful supervision.

"I anticipate a four-fold return from the successful installation of the assistantships," Dr. Dorwart said. "First, an overall increase in the interest of mathematics; second, an increased interest in the teaching of mathematics ;third, a growing realization that grants for financial assistance requiring some work are more helpful to the college and to the students than outright gifts; and fourth, an awareness on the part of mathematics departments in other colleges of the need for a definite program like this to encourage majors in this important field."

A gala parade reflecting the theme "A Look Into the Future" is one of the features of Homecoming Day, November 15. Participants in the parade will include "Miss Savannah State College" and her attendants, "Miss Clark College" and her attendants, the Savannah State College band, the Clark College band, and eight high school bands from various cities. There will also be a variety of floats sponsored by classes, clubs, sororities, fraternities, alumni groups, some department organizations and groups from Washington, D. C., Atlanta, Macon, and Reidsville, Georgia. The parade will proceed westward on Oglethorpe Street to West Broad and southward to Victory Drive.

FIGHT, TIGERS, FIGHT!!!

President's Message

Education today has many dimensions. The term dimension often brings to our minds early experiences in school. Then, we learned that objects may possess length, breadth, and thickness. Later, in our work in algebra, we discovered that there were still other dimensions. Recent discoveries have added to the traditional three which we thought to be final. The Theory of Relativity, developed by Albert Einstein, points up the fourth dimension—time.

In our colleges and universities we find students of many kinds. Some conceive of college primarily in terms of length; the number of quarters, or years required to complete an undergraduate curriculum. Another group of students sees the college degree program as one providing an extensive variety of experiences. A third group looks at college, not only from the standpoint of the length of the college program, and the breadth of the program, but also from the standpoint of the depth of the learning experience.

In recent years, other groups in increasing numbers have appeared on the horizon. Individuals in this category combine all the other groups and add the concepts of time and space. To this group, the college education means the procurement of experiences that are defined as to quality them for participation in the space-age economy. Such learning goes beyond memorization and mere recall. It is articulated with the student's concept of the present and the future constructed by the student.

As more and more students become aware of both time and effort in relation to the present and the future, they will be concerned about the quality as well as the quantity of the learning experiences offered in college. There will be less satisfaction with the pursuit of a type of learning that is static and confining. Theory and abstract learning, along with thinking and reasoning, will appear concrete and definite to those expecting to live successfully. Thus preparation today must consist of many dimensions.

Hypocrites Among Us

By Roscoe Camp

While discussing the subject of jazz with some students on the campus, I learned that many of our so-called jazz enthusiasts are fakes. Instead of writing about the jazz enthusiasts of our campus, I had to change my intention and write about the jazz hypocrites of the campus.

I discovered that this is the case with some of the "jazz lovers" on this campus. These persons profess a love for jazz without knowing anything, or at best, with knowing little about it. The frightening thing is that many of them are not trying to learn anything about it.

Do you think "the enthusiasts" know anything about the great pioneers of jazz like King Joe Oliver, Jelly Roll Morton, Hunk Johnson and C. C. Rider? These fellows did not play the "cool jazz" as we know it today. They are to jazz what the T-Model is to the Thunderbird.

Today jazz is cool, modern, progressive and hip. And believe it or not, we have jazz enthusiasts who are not aware of the differences among the types. To these people, Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis, Kenny Clark and Gerry Mulligan are playing the same type of jazz.

Do you think the "jazz enthusiasts" on the campus know that modern jazz started with bop around 1945 and that without bop, wouldn't be where it is today? They do not! Do they know that progressive jazz made its debut around 1948 and that Stan Kenton receives most of the credit for this? That in 1950 the movement of cool jazz came into existence and that credit for this goes to Lennie Tristano and John Lewis? In few instances were the "enthusiasts" aware of these facts.

If you would be a jazz enthusiast and not a jazz hypocrite, learn something about it, please. Perhaps in a later edition of the Tiger's Roar, I can write about the jazz lovers of our campus.

Graduate in Biology Does Quality Work

By Emily Chisholm

According to information received by the department of biology, the graduates of S.S.C. who majored in the biological sciences, are "holding their own" in this competitive world. The following is a letter reporting the quality of work that three of our recent graduates is doing: The University of Pennsylvania

THE HENRY PHIPPS INSTITUTE for the Study, Treatment and Prevention of Tuberculosis
Seventh and Lombard Streets
Philadelphia 47
August 19, 1958

Dr. Booker T. Griffith
Chairman, Biology Department
Savannah State College
Savannah, Georgia
Dear Dr. Griffith:

I am very happy to report to you that Miss Ornabell Dawkins has been doing excellent work in the clinical laboratory of the Henry Phipps Institute.

Miss Dawkins started work here as a technician on January 20, 1958. She was quick to pick up the methods which we use and she had reached such a degree of proficiency and reliability by July that it was possible to trust her with the full operation of the laboratory during the vacation of the senior medical technician.

We are very pleased with Miss Dawkin's personality and quiet, cheerful spirits as well as with her every day work.

Sincerely yours,
Julius L. Wilson, M.D.,
Director.

The above letter is typical of the type of information that is received concerning many of the graduates of this Department.

The 1958-59 school year has "gotten off to a good start" in the Biology Department, as it attempts to continue preparing young men and women to work in areas other than teaching. Should some of you be interested in vocations or professions other than teaching, consult some of the students who are majoring in biology at S.S.C., as well as the biology staff for further information on job opportunities.

Letter From the Editor

Dear Student Body:

I feel compelled to comment about the school spirit which is being manifested at our college this fall.

I believe that the atmosphere which has characterized pep rallies, football games and campus activities in general has reflected a kind of school spirit that would be, in the best sense, representative of any college anywhere! At times, during my previous years at the college, I have felt that too many of us were lacking in this respect.

Freshmen, though you have been a part of this beloved institution only a short while you have made known your loyalties through your cheering at games and through your fervent singing of the Alma Mater.

Fellow Students, I salute you!

Sincerely yours,
Julius L. Wilson, M.D.,
Director.

The Periscope

By James N Nevels

Upon relating the conditions at home and abroad, the Periscope reveals that the world is in a state of well-known and seemingly never ending perplexity.

GOVERNMENT

What does a cease-fire mean? The man on the street says, "It means we just aren't getting anywhere like this." Let us stop and talk about it. Let's talk about Lebanon and Jordan, the Middle East and Formosa, Let's talk about Quemoy and Matsu. The Chinese Communists have tried by force to drive Nationalists from Quemoy and Matsu. Their purpose is to gain control of Formosa. They have tried guns, and hard shell artillery, but it didn't bring about defeat. Now they are trying sweet talk and sugar coated promises. Let us hope that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Foreg Tehhua, Minister of National Defense for Communist China, will be able to come to an agreement which will give the free world peaceful relief.

SCIENCE

Less than a year after the United States sent its first satellite hurling into space, an attempt was made to shoot a rocket to a predetermined height never before achieved. The rocket reached a height of 79,212 miles. The rocket's destination was the moon. The Pioneer (the name given to this space traveler) came within a third of the distance, and stayed up for 43 hours. The rocket was designed to reach within 50,000 miles of the moon. In this it failed, but ole Pioneer set a precedent that may someday be followed by manned air flight to the moon.

LABOR

"Jesse" James Hoffa rides again! This time the posse is led by Sheriff George Meany. Meany's aim is to drive Hoffa off the labor range. Hoffa, head of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, is trying to create labor pacts throughout the nation. If he is successful, this will make him a giant figure in organized labor.

EDUCATION

Will "Have lesson, Will learn" replace our favorite TV programs in the near future? The Ford Foundation is running a series of experiments regarding educational teaching programs on television. If this experiment is successful, bright students will be able to exhaust their abilities and skills by supplementing their regular classroom courses. This will also mean that long be instructors will be available to millions of students.

RELIGION

"Once he belonged to us. . . ." This thought must have run through the minds of five hundred million Catholics and millions of other people as they paid their respect to the body remains of Pope Pius XII in St. Peter's Basilica.

Eugenio Maria Giuseppe Giovanni Pacelli, 82-year-old high priest, is now resting with his 260 predecessors. He was a holy man, a political Pope. He was brilliant, majestic and awesome. This great man will long be remembered. Yes, once he belonged to us. . . . "Now he belongs to the ages."

where he received his A.B degree in Social Science. In addition, Dr. Oliver holds both a Master's degree and Ph.D. degree from Indiana University in Political Science and Sociology.

Dr. Oliver is now a professor of Social Science, the Director of Faculty Research and advisor to the Social Science Club. He is presently engaged in writing a book entitled, You: Your Government and the Laws.

Danforth Foundation

The Danforth Foundation, an educational foundation located in St. Louis, Missouri, invites applications for the eighth class (1959) of Danforth Graduate Fellows from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching, and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1959, for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from the areas of Natural and Biological Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities and all fields of specialization to be found in the undergraduate college.

President W. K. Payne has named C. Vernon Clay as the Liaison Officer to Winnsboro to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for these 1959 fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout the years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need. The maximum annual grant for single Fellows is $1,400 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students; for married Fellows, $1,900 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students with an additional stipend of $350 for each child. Students with or without financial need are invited to apply. A Danforth Fellow is allowed to carry other scholarship appointments, such as Rhodes, Fulbright, Woodrow Wilson, Marshall, etc., concurrently with his Danforth Fellowship, and applicants for these appointments are cordially invited to apply at the same time for a Danforth Fellowship. If a man received the Danforth Appointment, together with a Rhodes Scholarship, Fulbright Scholarship, or Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, he becomes a Danforth Fellow without stipend, until these other relationships are completed.

All Danforth Fellows will participate in the annual Danforth Foundation Conference on Teaching, to be held at Camp Miniwanca in Michigan next September, 1959.

The qualifications of the candidates as listed in the announcement from the Foundation are: men of outstanding academic ability, personality, congenial to the classroom, and integrity and character, including serious inquiry within the Christian tradition.

All applications, including the recommendations, must be completed by January 31, 1959. Any student wishing further information should get in touch with our Liaison Officer.

The Spot Light

By Ernestine Hill

The crowd was going wild . . . the player fell a few yards from the goal line. As he fell he tapped the ball only about three feet from the ground. It was at this point that Ulysses Stanley swooped the ball up and ran for a touchdown. And so it shall go down in Savannah State College football history as a spectacular play—and Stanley's name shall be associated with it.

Stanley, a native of Dublin, Georgia, is a graduate of Oconee High School. He is a senior majoring in Physical Education. This young man, noted for his neatness in dress, looks as if he stepped "right out of Esquire" even when he wears "blue jeans." Stan's taste in music runs from Debussy to Dakota Staton.

Stanley has a sophisticated air. Yet there is a ruggedness about him that makes him quite appealing.

His hobbies are cards, Deloris, dancing, music, Deloris, sports and Deloris.

Presently his great desire is to become a Physical Therapist. This writer is happy to add Ulysses Stanley to the list of Spotlight Subjects.

Poetry Consultant, Frost, Interviewed

By James Nevels

Robert Frost, internationally famous poet who is the Poetry Consultant at the Library of Congress, was interviewed at a news conference. Mr. Frost gave his views on modern poetry and separated it into two classes. According to Frost the first class consists of that poetry which is obscure, abstract and incomprehensive . . . "This type," says Mr. Frost, "is born dead." The second type of modern poetry includes that which is written in intelligible, clear, simple, easy-to - read, easy - to - understand language. This type is being written Mr. Frost concluded.

Some of this famed author's works are "Stopping by Woods On A Snowy Evening," "Home Burial," "A Lone Striker," "The Death of the Hired Man" and "After Apple Picking."

Chemistry Department Takes Poll of Class

By Doris Riggs

The Department of Chemistry reports that the number of students in all Chemistry courses for the fall quarter, 1958, is slightly greater than at this same quarter last year. A number of students were unable to begin freshman Chemistry because of limited laboratory facilities.

Of those in the present courses:

33% are Biology majors.
19% are Chemistry majors.
18% are General Science majors.
5% are Mathematics majors.
9% are Home Economics majors.
12% are Physical Education majors.
4% are Industrial Education majors.

A meeting was held with all students interested in Chemistry as a major to acquaint them more with opportunities in the field and what is expected of them during their period of training and after graduation. It was also pointed out that some of the fields very popular with women other than Education, Research and Laboratory Technicians, are Chemical Literature, Chemical Librarians , Chemical Abstractors and Technical writers.

Because of the ever growing volume of the world's Chemical Patent Literature, and the increase in patent coverage, a large number of chemical abstractors are needed each year. The number of women in this area is increasing every year. Of the four students who received degrees last year two are in graduate schools and two are working in private industries in the state of New York.

Student Opinions

By Sara Reynolds

The question "Why is it that students make such little use of the Alpha Kappa Mu Tutorial System?" was asked several students. They made these statements:

Richard Fitzgerald, senior, suggests, "The students may be bashful and since the tutors are also students, they may be reluctant to admit that they do not know their subject matter."

Sammy White, senior, states that "There are several students who don't know the members of the tutorial system and they are too lazy to find out. However, there are several students who seek help from upperclassmen who have the same major and are not necessarily members of the tutorial system."

Jimmie Colson, senior, indicates "Many students may be reluctant to secure aid from the members of the tutorial system because they feel the tutors are not qualified."

Marion Dingle, junior, feels, "The students may think that the tutors are too busy."

Delores Julian, junior, states, "I don't know why the students do not use the tutorial system. The students in general should be proud to accept the opinions of other students who may have something valuable to offer them."

Tigers Enjoy Good Season

By Eddie Bryant and Roscoe Camp

Fullback Ulysses Stanley staged a fine exhibition of passing, running, and brilliant defensive work to lead the Savannah State Tigers to a 24-0 victory in Jacksonville, Florida.

The Tigers scored three touchdowns and completed two conversions. Other outstanding Tigers in this game were Moses King, Willie Batchelor, Floyd Walker, and Lawrence Williams.

A week later the Tigers racked up their second win of the season defeating Florida Normal College by a score of 22-20. This game was a thriller from the start.

The Tigers, led by two good quarterbacks, Roland James and Samuel White, fought to weaken the defense of Florida Normal College. But this didn't stop the charging Florida Tigers. Only a conversion was the deciding factor in a hard fought game that ended in Savannah State's favor.

Morris College, often thought of as a hard team to whip, proved to be "easy picking" for our Tigers. With Moses King and Ulysses Stanley in tip-top form, the Tigers piled up 28 points compared to 14 by Morris College.

The Tigers out played the Hornets of Morris College all the way. Outstanding on defense in this game were Jolly Stephens, Leroy Brown, Willie Dukes, and Bossie Harris.

Undefeated in three games, the Tigers traveled to Columbia, S. C., the 25th of October to take on the Benedict College Tigers. This game turned out to be a heart breaker. From the kick-off through the first half the Tigers showed amazing power on the ground and in the air.

The Benedict fans (about 4,000 persons) were silent through that first half because the Savannah State Tigers were ruining their carefully planned homecoming. At the end of the first half Savannah State led 12-0. The second half brought about a complete change. The third quarter was a battle of defenses. The Tigers held Benedict to one touchdown. In the last two minutes of the fourth quarter, Benedict scored three times to defeat Savannah State 24-12.

Fashion Notes

By Emma Lue Jordan

Freshmen, here are some hints concerning wardrobes from upperclassmen to calm your jitters, if you have any.

What style should you wear now that you are in college? How large should your clothes budget be? I have assembled these wardrobe hints given by many upperclassmen.

COATS: "This will be your biggest item," says Gwendolyn Riggs, a 19-year-old sophomore who hails from Savannah, Georgia. And versatility is the word to describe it. Gwendolyn suggests double breasted coat in natural or dyed darker shades. "I dress mine up with a hat and it's fine for church or parties," she says.

A basic tweed or black coat is Nellie Shellman's choice. Nellie, a 20-year-old junior, is buying a black coat for herself this fall.

SEPARATES: "Keep the number down to a bare minimum, says Minnie Ruth Smith, an 18-year-old transfer student from Howard University, who remembers the size of her dormitory closet. And "Don't throw out your high school sweaters and skirts," says Pauline Jordan, another sophomore. "Remember, no one else has seen them."

For additions to your sportswear, "buy a blanket plaid skirt with matching top," says Carolyn Stafford, who predicts she'll see lots of bold bright outfits in Savannah State's halls.

Bulky knit sweaters worn with jumpers in chemise or empire styles are the favorites of Kay F. Hamilton, a 21-year-old junior.

There's less enthusiasm about the new mohair knits. "One for novelty is all you'll need," Margaret Burney, a 22-year-old senior, has stated.

On campus, Juanita Baker, a 21-year-old senior, predicts she'll see lots of tapered slacks and crew neck sweaters. For those who like the unusual or are uncomfortable in wool, there's wide-wale corduroy, a heavy, durable material back this fall.

DRESSES — WOOL: "This is the college fabric for casual as well as dressy wear," says Eldora Manning, a junior who's 21.

"The empire, of all the new styles, is most flattering to the figure and dressiest as well," adds Gwendolyn Davis, who'll wear her new empires to fraternity parties this fall.

Most of the young ladies prefer classic sheaths and full-skirted styles, but recommend the new fall colors: benedictine orange, taupe, and moss green. One trasitional cotton, perhaps a paisley print, is a must for they are wary of our Indian Summer weather at times.

Public Relations Director, Associate Ed. Visit Atlanta

Mr. Wilton D. Scott, Public Relations Director and James Lewis, Associate Editor of the Tiger's Roar, visited Atlanta for the purpose of recruiting high school students to Savannah State College. Mr. Scott, a capable and well-experienced recruiter, has been in the public relations field for eleven years. With the new air-conditioned library and technical center to open by September 1959, Mr. Scott received a warm response from Atlanta students interested in the Savannah State College program. The Public Relations Director and Associate Editor stayed in Atlanta three days and visited two high schools daily. Other representatives from neighboring college campuses were on the three-day recruiting tour.

With the need for higher education becoming more acute, recruiting has become a major program on all college campuses. Because of college recruiting programs, high school students are given a chance to attain first-hand information about the college of their choice.

SSC Is Host to The Ruddicks

By Sherman Roberson

A special all-college assembly was held on November 24, to greet Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ruddick and four of their twelve children upon their visit to Savannah State College.

Mr. Ruddick and eighteen other men were miraculously saved after a recent Nova Scotian mine disaster in which seventy-four men lost their lives.

The Ruddicks enjoyed a stay at Jekyll Island, a vacation spot located at Brunswick, Georgia, upon their visit to southeast Georgia. Dr. W. K. Payne was selected by Governor Marvin Griffin to serve as official host.

Because of Georgia's segregation laws, Mr. Ruddick was unable to remain with his other Nova Scotian comrades during their visit.

ALVIN COLLINS

Collins, Senior Class President, Delivers Assembly Address

Alvin Collins, a senior who is majoring in English and minoring in Physical Education, delivered an address during an all-college assembly sponsored by the Alpha Gamma Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., on November 24, in Meldrim Auditorium.

Collins is a graduate of Center High School, Waycross, Georgia, and has matriculated at Savannah State College for the past three years.

He spoke on the subject, "Quo Vadis?" ("Where are you going?"). In his address, Collins expressed the necessity of one's knowing himself before attempting to gain an understanding of the other aspects of life. He cautioned those students of today who secure knowledge and cast it by the wayside, to utilize it to the fullest.

He stated: ". . . Be prepared to make a major contribution to the world, a better place by virtue of your having passed this way."

Collins is well-known on the campus for his willingness to help his fellow students whenever possible. His hobbies are reading, playing basketball and listening to progressive jazz albums.

SSC Test Center Teacher Exams

Savannah State College has been designated as a testing center for the 1959 nationwide administration of the National Teacher Examinations next February, Dr. W. K. Payne, President, announced today.

College seniors preparing to teach and teachers applying for positions in school systems which encourages or requires applicants to submit their scores on the National Teacher Examinations along with their other credentials are eligible to take the tests. The examinations are prepared and administered annually by educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

The designation of Savannah State College as a testing center for these examinations will give prospective teachers in this area an opportunity to compare their performance on the examinations with approximately 10,000 candidates throughout the country who will be participating in the nationwide administration on February 7, 1959, Dr. Payne said. At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in Professional Information, General Culture, English Expression, and Non-Verbal Reasoning. In addition, each candidate may take one or two of the eleven Optional Examinations which are designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter in the fields in which he may be assigned to teach.

Applications for the examinations and a Bulletin of Information describing registration procedures and containing sample test questions may be obtained from Miss Louise E. Davis, Savannah State College, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, New Jersey. Prospective teachers planning to take the test should secure an Application Blank and a Bulletin of Information promptly, Dr. Payne advised.

President's Message

The world in which we live today is one that puts a premium on the new and the different. This tendency has been obvious in the field of mechanics and industry for many years. It is now becoming one of the most important trends in the social, the economic, and the political areas. Our educational systems which include our elementry, high schools, colleges, and graduate schools are being called upon to provide the education and training which will prepare people for such an age. It is important that college students participate to the fullest extent in all aspects of college life if they are to prepare for such a social order.

For the past two decades, schools have emphasized the fact that the curriculum consists of the total experiences which individuals have in school under the guidance of teachers. That factor has thrown new light on all aspects of our education. In our colleges and universities, students learn many things which are not taught in the classroom. The processes by which they make their way through the colleges and the universities are set as important as the facts, understanding, appreciations, and other things which they get. The amount of thinking and reasoning that goes on in the process is certainly one of the most important factors in living today and preparing for the life of tomorrow and the future.

It is interesting to note how many people can be assembled when there is a complaint to be made. Almost every student is interested in being present and in lending support to any movement which undertakes to destroy or demolish anything that may come up. Very often the nature and the type of item under consideration is of such insignificance, that one wonders how so many people are concerned. The ability to discriminate between those things which are important and those which are insignificant is an important item of mentality and ability to think and evaluate. If progress is to be made in the improvement of our society and our living, college students must be expected to take the lead in thinking through and evaluating all situations before taking active part.

Accepting a position of leadership in a college organization or society should mean more than merely presiding at the meetings. It should mean that the officers are planning, recommending, and executing programs that will carry forward the aims and purposes of the organizations. More attention should be given to the selection of officers who have the ability, who have the interest, and who have the desire to provide leadership that will help these bodies become more effective in the development of constructive programs. It is not an idle dream to look forward to the day when each organization in its own way will be able present its program and to the institution, programs that represent constructive thinking and planning. Many of the boys and girls now in college already possess ability to do these things. The major problem lies in finding someone who is able to take the lead and who is prepared to undergo the initial difficulties that come with the launching of new programs. It is expected that during the coming year and future years of Savannah State College, the young men and young women here will bring this desire and this view to full fruition.

One who goes about the college campus during the year of 1958 can see many opportunities for improvements in all aspects of our college. As the physical plant, the faculty, and other aspects of the college are growing and developing, we should expect commensurate growth in all of our organizations, institutions, and the general reaction. Everywhere, young college men and women ought to be rising to meet the challenges which face them in this new age and that which is coming at a very rapid pace.

It is too much to expect that leadership on the college campus will be centered in any one organization or in any one or two students. Many individuals are required to provide leadership in the many different fields that exist. It has been discovered that students and individuals have time to do any of the things which they earnestly desire to do. If meetings are necessary, time is necessary, planning is necessary, then there are those who want to do these things who have the time. Time is only one of the factors. Another factor which comes into the picture is that of finance. Student bodies are able to provide through their own activities and own programs, finances to run their programs. The development of ability to finance organizations, to provide the means by which they may be able to operate, and to provide for the things which are for the common good, are signs of maturity and signs of progress. When people are able to participate in the financing of their own institutions, they are able to appreciate their worth and to evaluate the matters which are brought before them. Some thought should be given to this kind of planning in the organizations, the societies, and other types of organized groups here on the campus at Savannah State College.

The Periscope

By James N. Nevels

HUMAN INTEREST ITEM

(A "Bump" With Death)

"There are twelve of us in here. Come and get us." These words passed through a pipe which was used to check escaping gas in a fallen mine gave vent to the feeling of the trapped workers who had "bumped" with death and seventeen hours later, came up to tell the story. It happened in a coal mining town called Springhill, Nova Scotia. A Cumberland mine entombed 174 victims in its underground death-grip embrace, and only 19 lived to court again.

The Springhill mines had taken lives before, but this was the record smasher. The mines give the Springhill town its largest economical asset, but bravery, pain, terror, and death are the interest charged for services rendered.

POLITICS

The Democratic party politicians swept the country with a victory broom in the 1958 election. The Democrats increased their numbers in many of the political spheres. In Congress, the Democrats increased their roll in the House of Representatives from 235 to 282; in the Senate, from 49 to 82. The Democrats added 15 State Legislative Houses and gained 5 additional governors totaling 34 state governors.

A new personality emerged out of the 1958 election. Republican governor-elect of New York State, Nelson Rockefeller. Rockefeller is being assessed as the possible 1960 presidential candidate of the party. Although he has said that he does not choose to become a candidate, the 51-year-old governor is linked by heritage with this great country and may well find himself "top man" in 1960.

GERMANY

The 1958 Red germ spreads again. The Periscope watched the Red germ contaminate the middle East and Asia. Now the imperialistic disease is concentrated in Germany. However, the man to watch is Willy Brandt, the Mayor of West Berlin. Brandt who is Socialist, is telling his people to stand firm against the Red threat. Russia's primary goal is to have the Western powers recognize East Germany as a world power.

The Periscope remembered the last German crisis created by the Russian blockade, but recent firm offensive measures paid off in the Quemoy crisis and the same attitude can present itself in the existing Berlin crisis in Germany.

ENTERTAINMENT

The Periscope pays its respects to a great actor and superb entertainer. Tyrone Power, III, 44-year-old American actor, died in Spain from a heart attack while making a movie. The late Mr. Power was given a military funeral at Hollywood Memorial Park Cemetery.

The Pendulum Swings

In every organized aspect of life, there exists a form of discipline. The individuals chosen as the executors of this discipline are selected according to strict criteria. Sometimes these individuals are motivated by an uncontrollable lust for power, whom robs them of their logic at certain intervals. Does man prove that the person involved or guilty or this act is unfit to rule? No, not if the individual later realizes the mistake made and compensates for it. Yes, if the person refuses to employ logic and adheres to the conclusion that he was right no matter what!

A man ceases to be a man when in a situation he is found to be wrong and refuses to admit and accept this proven fact. Sometimes individuals suffer needlessly because of pet peeves or partial judgment on the part of members of administering or governing bodies. But fortunately, in a democracy, the government gains its powers from the consent of the governed. This serves as counteraction for a great many acts in addition to the most cherished of all freedoms, the freedom of speech.

The person guilty of maladministration should not be scorned or hanged in effigy, but should be given understanding, if the infraction is corrected. But if not, each person involved should join forces and through the proper channels available demand consideration and results.

Riots, unorganized strikes and the like are products manufactured by ignorant minds and are not accepted in our society. But organized protests are given birth to by intelligence. To this much allegiance is pledged.

If injustice is accepted in small doses, these doses may soon increase and may later become the rule rather than an exception to the rule. When this occurs, freedom is preparing for a permanent vacation. This type situation robs good, sweet life of all of its great worth.

Hearts who refuse to accept injustice in any form merit praise.

Stumble Over Reading Roadblocks? Just Go Around Them, Advises Expert

Almost every student has suffered through this experience: you begin to read a text with enthusiasm, hungry for enlightment; after a few paragraphs you stop to look up an unfamiliar word in the dictionary; then you check a footnote reference; then back to the dictionary. After reading several pages in this manner, you suddenly realize that you have no idea of the ground you've covered.

This, says a noted scholar in the December Reader's Digest, is exactly the wrong way to enjoy —or understand—reading. Says Dr. Mortimer Adler: almost any book (except those for general reader can be understood if you approach it in the right way. And the right way, he insists, is to read a book through superficially before you try to master it.

Skip over the difficult parts; read only what you can grasp right away. Even if it's only 50 percent, chances are the light thrown on the subject will lead you back for a closer look.

In the article, "Hard Reading Made Easy," Dr. Adler says that most of us missed the joys of Shakespeare's plays in high school because we approached them in too reverent a manner. Teacher made us look up every footnote every archaic word. As a result we struggled through scene after scene of Macbeth, Hamlet or Julius Caesar and never realized what rattling good melodramas they are.

Before you read any book, Dr. Adler says, give it a fast once-over. Look over the title page and preface to learn the author's approach and angle. Study the table of contents, just as you would a road-map before taking a trip. Check the index for the range of subjects covered. Look up the phrases or chapters that seem crucial. This may give you the key to the entire book.

The article is condensed from Mayfair.

News About Choral Society

By Iris Parrish

The Savannah State College Choral Society under the direction of Dr. Coleridge A. Braithwaite is looking forward to a successful and rewarding year. Presently fifty-six men and women comprise this group, representing thirty-two cities in this and other states.

Last spring the organization had the pleasure of singing jointly with the choirs of Albany and Fort Valley during the annual convention of the Georgia Teachers and Education Association in Columbus.

The singers participate in Sunday campus church services, Vesper programs, special assemblies, and other programs on and off the campus. The concert tours each year serve as an inspiration to the students as well as a means of recruitment. It is hoped that the tour next spring will include several states.

The Choral Society is currently preparing for the annual Christmas Concert which will be held on Sunday, December 14, at six p.m. in Meldrim Auditorium.

The 1958 Tigers Close a Successful Football Season

By Roscoe Camp

Football fans from all sections of the United States crowded the Savannah State College Athletic Field for its Annual Homecoming Classic. Clarke College defeated the Tigers 22-14. Last year Clarke defeated the Tigers 46-0. Loaded with stars from last year, Clarke College found the 1958 Tigers a harder foe to conquer.

A gala parade preceded the game. First prizes were won in the following divisions: Bands—Alfred E. Beach High School; floats—Tradex and Industries; cars—Camilla Hubert Hall, and building—Camilla Hubert Hall.

The Tigers and Claflin Game

More than one hundred Savannah fans traveled to Orangeburg, South Carolina to see the two top teams in the S.I.A.C. Conference battle for the conference championship. The strong Claflin Panthers were stopped for three periods by the fighting Tigers of Savannah State. But the Panthers exploded with a three touchdown attack to win over Savannah 22-18, and clinched the conference title.

Willie Batchelor was outstanding in this game, while rushing 129 yards of the team's 161 yards.

Thanksgiving Game

Before a chilled Turkey Day crowd, the Savannah State Tigers defeated the Paine College Lions 44-12. The Tigers scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, added one in the second and succeeding quarters. it was a big Thanksgiving for the Tigers who found the Lions unable to stop a perfected running and passing attack.

This wa sthe farewell game for nine seniors playing on the Tigers team. Ulysses Stanley all over the field, including a said "good-bye" while running 75-yard punt return. Willie Batchelor said "so-long" by running two touchdowns. Leroy Brown was at his best on offense and defense. Jolly Stephens, a two-time all-conference winner, played a bang-up defensive game. Other seniors were: the team's triple-threat, Moses King, right guard Willie Dukes, and Sammy White, all conference quarterback.

Book Review

By Kay Francis Stripling

Patrick Dennis has demonstrated his boundless energy and rare style of writing in producing Around The World With Auntie Mame. Mr. Dennis, a native of Chicago is a world traveller and has managed very effectively to make history in the realm of literature that evokes laughter in the reader, in his latest novel. This novel is one of three by Patrick Dennis that has managed to be on the best-seller list at this time.

The accounts of Auntie Mame prove to be a successful attempt at a variety of entertainment. Throughout the story, there is a hilarious mood in which anything may happen. This mood has both suspense and comedy. Auntie Mame, "The deliciously derelict heroine," takes the reader along on rousing adventures. Her life is vividly depicted through her realistic personality, but her mind is closed to the reader, because he never knows what she might do next.

The plot itself is centered on a phenomenally delightful travel. Auntie Mame stars in the "Follies-Bergere" in Paris in a tangle of dog hair and monkey fur; she attends the London Royal Garden Party which turns into a fever-pitching panic that throws her into the chivalrous arms of an "honourable." She is finally presented in court in a "chiffon cumulus."

Auntie Mame is the object of fortune hunters because she is rich. Therefore, in the headlines appear the following:

EXTRA! MADCAP (MILLIONS) MAME MISSING, KIDNAP PLOT FEARED

Auntie Mame, whose name is really Mame Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside, was widowed in her "salad days" and again becomes interested in family affairs. Therefore, to Venice she goes! She partys with German Rabbis, French Cardinals and Greek Poetesses.

Yes, Auntie Mame gets into the Middle Eastern powder keg too! However, she finally leaves the long voyage home. But, home to what? Well, her nephew Mr. Patrick Dennis is not with Auntie Mame on this trip, and he and his wife are at home longing for their son Michael who for two and one-half years has been going around the world with Auntie Mame, on perhaps another equally hilarious trip.

In his tenth year, Michael is returned to his parents by Auntie Mame who reminds him, "there are some things that parents simply don't have to know." And with a "Bientot good-bye my little love, it has been a lovely trip," she drives off in her Rolls Royce.

The personalities of Auntie Mame and Dennis are supported by varied atmospheres of the countries in which the hilarious action takes place. Patrick Dennis has used a mixture of styles in writing, but the colloquial style is prevalent with its short terse sentences that are direct and attention-compelling. The dialect and mannerisms of the foreign countries are injected very effectively to make the reading atmosphere more meaningful, and students of French and Spanish should enjoy recalling their "grandes dames," "grosso coltellos" and even their "fraiseins" (German).

If you enjoy reading sparkling comedy, then read the adventures of this "madcap" guardian which begin on the Normandie bound for Paris, and end up on an American man-of-war in the middle of the Indian Ocean.

Fashion Notes

By Emma Lue Jordan

THE NEW ELEGANCE: There's nothing like the walking suit for football occasions. Such lovely ones were worn by many co-eds at our recent homecoming game. They could be seen in all of this season's vivid colors — luscious bright reds, oranges, greens, blues and other stained glass or jewel tones.

The line separating coats and suits is less sharp than usual with the introduction of the walking suit. A favorite version of the walking suit is in heavy tweed, with a boxy tunic type jacket, either three-quarters or seven-eighth length and a shawl collar of fluffy fox fur. Often a coordinate color blouse is equally as pretty.

This is the fall to break out of your rut, forget about the good go-with-everything black coat, and buy one in unabashed lipstick red, electric blue, stained glass purple or vivid olive green.

Cool colors haven't been so brilliant for years, and this year's shaggy, furry and loopy textured fabrics of which mohair is the style leader, are especially suited to the intense tones. The bright coat is a fashion leader too because it combines so admirably with the simple but memorable (special) black dress, usually shown in silk crepe, which is just about the most popular dress of 1958-59.

A little sad because we lost our homecoming game to the Clark College Panthers, but looking lovely as ever, were the young women of State at the dance following the game. Silhouettes in many brilliant colors took the lead in dress design. The young men also held their own in dark and light fabric suits of many styles.

Making a great appearance on the campus in male fashions is the "Ivy League" sport coat in dark borwn or black with gold buttons. The vest sweater, a twin to that of the opposite sex is also one of the latest fashion notes in campus wear for male co-eds.

It has been said that fashion is only as good as it is flexible. Are you in swing with the changes for the new college look? If it's the fad . . . don't let it go by. Now is the time to try. A variation from the new fashions won't do.

January, 1959 SAVANNAH, GEORGIA Vol. 12, No. 3

Unique Plan Helps College Students

In a unique experiment planned to help college students now deciding about a year nf study abroad, 60 American students of the Scandinavian Seminar for Cultural Studies met recently in Tranberg, Norway, to add up and report results of their first five months in Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

Summed up, they say, "GG." In the words of Seminar member John M. Lovejoy, Bates College, '58, "The electric atmosphere of a new foreign land cannot help but institute changes in one's being. In this atmosphere, maturity seems to charge along in leaps and bounds. . . . The whole situation has been an invaluable experience."

The program offered by Scandinavian Seminar makes this report worth attention.

Under the Seminar plan, Americans become part of Scandinavian life by living with two families for a month each, then spending six months at a "folkehojskole." These schools, with their emphasis on humanities and social science, have had a profound effect on Scandinavia's culture and politics and offer Americans insights unattainable any other way.

Students learn the language chiefly the "natural way," by living it. As Margaret Chase, Antioch College junior, says, "one of the most valuable experiences to me has been being forced to communicate in the beginning . . . to be 21 with a vocabulary of a 5-year-old."

Between family stays and school, Scandinavian Seminar students have "short courses" for language instruction, and, more important, for meeting with leading national personalities in the arts, history and current affairs through lectures and discussion.

Thinking aloud about this and field trips she has managed, Marcia Woodruff, Smith College, '58, answered the question, "What do you get out of a year like this?" in this way:

"An understanding of a new country and culture and therefore a chance to look at our own from a new standpoint. For most of us, a new appreciation of America. But above all, a new look at ourselves, by being forced out of old living patterns, by living for a time without a language, by being forced to look at things with other than our own society's point of view."

S.S.C. Alumni Are Active

The Savannah State Chapter of the National Alumni Association is now formulating plans for a $5,000 scholarship drive. Mr. Prince Jackson, Jr., college alumni secretary, stated that in addition to contributions coming from the alumni chapters, industries all over the state of Georgia will be called upon to make contributions.

An Alumni chapter was organized in Augusta, January 7, 1959. Prince Wynn and Miss Ethel Mack, both graduates of the 1957 class, were elected president and vice president respectively. Wynn is a former president of the Savannah State College Student Council, 1956-57. He pledged the cooperation of the group for the support of the college.

Mr. Prince Jackson, Jr., who is also president of the National Alumni Association of Colleges and Universities comprising the Negro colleges of Alabama, Florida and Georgia, presided over the area meeting held at the Fort Valley State College, January 30-31.

The theme of the meeting was "The Raising of Funds by Alumni for Their Alma Maters." C. V. Troupe, president of Fort Valley State, was the principal speaker for the occasion.

Education Must Be Geared to Serve Needs

East Lansing, Mich. (I.P.) — Two Michigan State University educators recently agreed that education must be geared to serve the individual's and society's needs, but it must also take into account what both will need in the future.

Dean Edward Carlin of Basic College said that "curriculum problems will be more pressing in the future because of the dramatic development of recent years." These, he said, are likely to necessitate a synthesis of knowledge on a higher order than has ever been attained before.

The clearest forecast that can be made, he added, is that higher education will no longer be able to educate as though American culture can or will stand by itself.

Carlin foresaw the need for greater selectivity in curriculum planning while Prof. Mayhew pointed to the diversity of interests and needs which characterizes our society. To meet these needs, Mayhew said, certain criteria must be met, among them courses related to human psychology and the laws of learning and courses which are relevant not only to the present, but to the future.

Another criterion, Mayhew said, was that skills learned in one course should be transferable to other human activities.

English Majors Work On Senior Dissertations

Dallas, Pa (I.P.)—Junior English majors of College Misericordia have begun work on their senior dissertations, which will be submitted in Fall, 1959, as a partial fulfillment of the requirements for the A.B. degree in English.

Sister M. Denise, R.S.M., departmental advisor, is conducting a seminar to aid the juniors in the selection and beginning of the investigation of their subjects. The research problem will concern a literary subject which is of interest to the student and at the same time of objective value as a piece of scholarship.

After the written presentation is submitted it must, as a condition of the English major's degree, be approved by a committee of readers from the faculty.

For program details write to Scandinavian Seminar, 127A East 73 Street, New York 21, N. Y. Eligible are those planning a junior year abroad, graduates and any now in professional work who seek such special experience. Closing date for the 1959-60 program is April 1. Early applications will have priority.

President Payne Speaks at Vesper

By Sherman Roberson

The Savannah State College family held its first Vesper Service of the year on January 11, 1959, with the president, Dr. W. K. Payne, as speaker.

Dr. Payne spoke on the subject, "The Lottery of Modern Living." He cited many risks that are prevalent in our modern way of life.

Dr. Payne set forth various devices that tend to decrease the odds of modern living. He stated that training received in the home and formal education reduce the risks encountered during one's life span. Some of the other devices mentioned were the abilities to tolerate, to stand alone, and to think! Dr. Payne stated, "Wherever the ability to think has been developed, the chances of success have been heightened."

Selections were rendered by the Savannah State Choral Society, under the direction of D. C. A. Braithwaite, chairman of the Fine Arts Department.

President's Message

In our industrial economy one hears much about precision, re-adjustment, and balance. The mechanical world has long recognized that the highest efficiency can not be obtained unless the machines or instruments are properly balanced and set in relation to the area in which they are to operate.

In society, the recognition of imbalance often runs far behind. This situation creates many problems which make adjustment difficult and in some instances impossible. In our colleges and universities, students are faced with problems of balance and adjustment in terms of training. Attending college should mean that students would be educated in many different areas to a certain degree. Failure to receive training and development in a number of areas does result in improper balance. Every student attending college should receive some training and development in social living, participation in group affairs, appreciation of the arts, and an understanding of the culture and the direction in which society is moving. The regular studies provide only a basis for the larger development which comes through living and participation in the entire college program.

To spend all of the time in one area at the expense of neglecting other vital and important areas is a serious mistake. Every student seeking to obtain a well-rounded education needs first hand experiences in appreciating and understanding orchestral music, opera, singing, lectures, drama, architecture, government, group responsibility, and social system. Education which means most must be planned to provide experiences that will develop the balance and synchronization necessary for effective living and success in any field of endeavor.

Famous Movie Star Advises to Stay Single Until Mid-Twenties

A glamorous movie star has some advice for college-age people in the February Reader's Digest—don't get married.

Rosalind Russell urges young folks to "learn basic seamanship before embarking on the sea of matrimony." Too many who don't, she tells author Lester David, help pile up teen-age divorce statistics three and a half times greater than persons in the 26-to-30 age group.

Young people who wait until their mid-twenties to marry avoid many of the pitfalls of too-young weddings. Your partner's ability to do the cha-cha may still be important; but you'll also value his kindliness and unselfishness more important attributes in a successful marriage. You'll know that an adorable crew cut may grow out—or fall out—in bald, plain niceness goes on for a lifetime. And, if you're a boy, you'll realize that a sensational face and figure are great in a mate—if they go along with the ability to be a good wife and mother.

Another reason for waiting, says Miss Russell, is to avoid in-law trouble. You're a lot more likely to make your own decisions in your mid-twenties than you are as a teen-ager. Greater self-assurance will minimize the temptation to "run to mommie" when the tough decisions come along.

Nowadays, with army service a must in most cases, many young men are marrying later. But what of the girls? Miss Russell has a suggestion for them, too: Get a job! A few years of working can teach a young girl orderliness, self discipline and respect for money. These are qualities that will pay off handsomely when she does get married.

Exposure to the boys at the water cooler will also teach her about men. She'll learn to distinguish second-raters from good husband-bait.

The Digest article, "I'm Glad I Didn't Marry Young," is condensed from This Week Magazine.

Resounding Response To Professors Contest

Students of 120 colleges and universities welcome the chance to sound off about their professors.

The entry blanks for Abelard-Schuman's $500 prize essay contest on behalf of SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE PROFESSORS by George Williams are pouring in and students from 35 states have entered. Many more applicants are expected before the February 1st deadline.

Among the contestants—who are, incidentally, 75% male—we note—A fraternity man from Colby College who assures us he is "fully active in the campus underworld" (we assured him that this does not disqualify him) . . . three students to whom that $500 would mean no more waiting on tables . . . a co-ed who reports great controversy about the book at sorority bull sessions . . . an English major who found the book "a great intellectual desert" and wrote a five page single-spaced letter explaining why he wouldn't join the contest . . . and professors seem to like the idea: one University of Arizona prof plans to use the essay contest as a term writing project. By and large, many, many letters from students tell us that indeed, some of their best friends are professors. We hope they will remain so and we also hope that SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE PROFESSORS continues to stimulate and provoke both students and professors with its lively critique of higher education today.

Scholarships Needed At Private Colleges

Convent Station, N. J. (I.P.)—Failure of the state to provide scholarship opportunity, or other financial aid open to students at private colleges, makes mockery of our boasted American freedoms was charged here recently by Sister Hildegarde Marie, president of the College of Saint Elizabeth.

She pointed to the great disparity between tuition charges at tax-supported and at private institutions and said that "every effort should be made to avoid increasing that disparity still farther if the American ideal of freedom of educational opportunity is not to be an illusion.

"It is a well-known fact," Sister Hildegarde Marie observed, "that many parents whose sons and daughters attend tax-supported institutions are equally as capable of paying tuition costs as are parents of students attending private colleges," that parents of many students in private colleges "are in no better financial position than parents of students attending municipal and state colleges." She asserted that their choice of private colleges, especially church-related colleges, is based on principle.

She declared it "incredible" that in New Jersey "no legislation has yet been adopted to provide scholarships with freedom of choice of institution, in spite of that equity and distributive justice may exist in provisions adopted by the state for the education of its people."

Increased appropriations for facilities for public higher education, Sister Hildegarde Marie declared, "should invariably be accompanied by increased scholarship benefits or other financial aid for children of taxpayers who prefer to have their sons and daughters attend church-related or other private institutions. Any other course makes mockery of our boasted American freedoms."

The report laid special emphasis upon the mutual responsibilities between the state of Saint Elizabeth and outside organizations, other institutions, and the local community. Reciprocal benefits derived from these relationships were noted.

Union College to Hold Annual Summer Session

Schenectady, N. Y. (I.P.) — With the approval of a grant from the General Electric Company's Educational and Charitable Fun, Union College recently launched preparations for the 15th annual summer session of the Graduate Study Program, the oldest industry-college cooperative educational venture of its kind in the nation.

Under the terms of the Company's latest grant, fifty expense-paid fellowships, valued collectively at more than $50,000, will be awarded to science teachers from thirteen Eastern Seaboard states for six weeks of graduate training next summer on Union's campus. Comprising the curriculum will be two graduate level courses in chemistry and two in physics.

Pioneered at Union College during the summer of 1945, the General Electric Science Fellowship Program was either the direct forerunner or the prototype of the many similar science institutes now held each summer at colleges and universities in all parts of the nation.

Union, which was chosen as the pilot college in the program because of its "... high academic standing and its proximity to the research and plant facilities at Schenectady," now shares the General Electric fellowship grants with six other colleges. In all, more than 2,000 teachers from all parts of the nation have benefited from the program during the past fourteen years, over 700 of them having completed the course at Union.

The Spotlight

By Ernestine Hill

There is at least one in every Freshman Class. You recognize him (or her) in the very beginning. He is active, makes himself known from the start, is exceptionally friendly in the genuine sense of the word friendly, and is talented, versatile, and full of life.

The above paragraph describes Georgia White, a native of Macon, Georgia, and a graduate of Ballad-Hudson High School.

Georgia has a warm and outgoing personality which has made her an unusually popular girl among the students of Savannah State College.

Her interests vary. She plans to major in Physical Education. She takes active part in many extra-curricular activities. Among them are: Physical Education Club, the Creative Dance Group, the Women's Ensemble, the Drill Team, the Debating Club, the Social Committee of Camilla Hubert Hall, and the Choral Society.

She was voted "Miss Camilla Hubert Hall" of 1958-59 and represented the girls of the dormitory in the homecoming parade.

In high school, Georgia won first prize in Cosmetology in the G.Y.I.E.A. She is not only a trained beautician, but shows originality in hair styling. Georgia could have been practicing in one of the exclusive shops in Macon, but as she stated, "I felt that something was badly needed in my life, and that only college could fill the need. I certainly haven't regretted coming."

Her hobbies are dancing, singing, speaking, reading, and hair styling. Georgia can boast of the fact that she is a Freshman to appear in this column. THE SPOTLIGHT is honored to cast its rays upon her.

The Periscope

By James N. Nevels

INTERNATIONAL EVENTS

Hero Liberates Cuba

Fidel Castro, bearded cigar-smoking rebel leader, ended Dictator Fulgencio Batista's apparently iron-clad regime and became "A Living Legend" as the 1959 year began.

The Periscope turns to another revolutionary hero, Jose Marti, who was killed in 1895 during the Cuban-Spanish struggle. And now 54 years later comes another Cuban hero and liberator, Fidel Castro. Carlo Prio Socarras was ousted by Bastista and now Bastista is replaced by Castro.

The question which the Periscope asks (and only time will afford an answer) is what place will the tough ex-lawyer take in ruling the largest island in the Caribbean area? The deed has been cleaned from the streets, and the people have gone back to their respective ways of living?

Castro is presently Commander of the Armed Forces, and his regime consists of the following:

Provisional President—Manuel Urrutia.

Premier—Jose Miro Cardona.

Foreign Minister—Roberto Agramonte.

Minister of Interior—Lewis Orlando Rodriguez.

The United States views Cuba with skeptical but hopeful eyes.

NATIONAL EVENTS

The President Speaks

President Eisenhower called for a 77 billion dollar balanced budget in his 6th State of the Union message. The President expects a bright future for the American economy, but he also warns that "deficit spending" and the "wage price spiral" invariably lead to inflation.

About 60 per cent of the budget will be consumed on items that contribute to National Security. The President also frowned upon lame-ducketering in the United States, and he expressed his desire to formulate a law that will halt the continuing use of organized labor for selfish gains by a few officials.

The Republicans' New Year Change

Joe Martin, House Minority Leader and Chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, has been the Republican Minority Leader since 1938, but the New Year begins with Joe's defeat by Representative Charles Halleck.

There is an age difference in the two men. Halleck is 58 and Martin 74, but the Periscope viewed the last election when the Republicans were defeated all over the country. The Republicans blamed the defeat on "the popular image of standpat Republicanism."

The Republicans saw the need for a change, and Martin's defeat shows clearly that changes are being made to destroy that image which the public has formed.

The Camilla Hubert Hall dormitory has been a scene of much activity and many fine accomplishments during the 1958-59 school year.

The social committee is in the process of planning other activities for this year. Among them is a Carnival which will be held sometime in February.

Residents of Camilla Hubert Hall exemplify originality and cooperation during monthly house meetings. Girls who occupy the right wing of the first floor presented a fashion show at the December meeting. At the last meeting, held on January 20, girls who live in the left wing of the first floor, had a panel discussion. Many important problems concerning social behavior, family living, and the like were discussed.

With the help of their efficient house director, Mrs. Louise Lester, and their dormitory councilor, Miss Marcelle Rodriques, Camilla Hubert Hall residents anticipate a successful year.

News About the Debating Society

The Savannah State College Debating Society is off to a busy start making proposals and establishing rules for the present school quarter.

The question which has been proposed for the next debate is "The Development of Nuclear Weapons Should (Should Not) Be Barred by International Agreement." This question concerns one of the many problems that has received much attention in the past months.

The Debating Society has sent challenges to several neighboring colleges to participate with Savannah State College in this activity.

Meetings of the Debating Society are held every Tuesday at 12:30 in Meldrim Hall, room 214. All students are eligible for membership in the Debating Society.

The debating coaches are Messrs. B. E. Black and H. M. Jason.

Intramural Basketball Is Under Way

The Intramural Basketball Program is underway at Savannah State College. There are six teams in the Female League and ten teams in the Male League. Intramural games are played Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week if no Varsity games are scheduled. If a Varsity game is played on one of these nights, intramural teams play the preliminary game.

The Varsiettes are leading the Female League while the Gorillas and the Masonaries are battling for first place in the Male League. The Masonaries will probably be in first place if the Gorillas slip up on their own banana peels or have to stop because of severe stomach-aches. They eat bananas during the game. The standings of the various teams in the two leagues are:

Place	Girls	Won	Lost
1.	Varsiettes	2	0
2.	Hot Shots	1	0
3.	Tigerettes	0	1
4.	Satellites	0	0

Tigers Impressive In Basketball

By Roscoe Camp

The Savannah State Tigers have started the 1959 basketball season off with a bang. They traveled to South Carolina and played three games in three days. In Columbia, South Carolina, they defeated Allen University 74-69 and lost to Benedict College 72-60. In Denmark, South Carolina, they defeated the South Carolina Area Trades team 8-53. In this three-game series Redell Walton was high scorer with a total of 47 points and Ira Jackson was second high with 32 points.

WIN HOME GAME: The Savannah State Tigers rolled over the Paine College Lions 85-70 in the Wiley Gymnasium Saturday night, January 17. Leading the way for the Tigers was Willie Tate with a total of 20 points. The Tigers defeated the Paine Lions, but the entire Tiger squad could not stop little Luther Butler. Butler kept the Tigers scrambling while he scored 25 points for the Lions.

DEFEAT FLORIDA NORMAL: After winning three games in one week and losing only one, the Tigers hit the road again. This time they traveled to St. Augustine, Florida, where they met and defeated the Florida Normal five 81-75.

Radio Station WSOK Replaces WFRP

By Sherman Roberson

Savannah's newest radio station, WSOK, replaced radio station WFRP. WSOK is the first radio station in Savannah to employ an all Negro broadcasting staff. The station is owned by the Fisher Broadcasting Company, headed by Albert T. Fisher, Jr., who recently purchased WFRP.

WSOK has featured local sports, including Savannah State College basketball games, and some of the local Negro high school athletic contests. The air personnel for these sports activities have been Roscoe Camp, Freshman, and James Nevels, Senior, at SSC.

The broadcasting staff includes the following: The Rev. George D. Walker, religious director, and pastor of Asbury Methodist Church. Mr. Walker is a graduate of Clarke College and Gammon Theological Seminary of Atlanta, Georgia.

Thomas Polite, radio announcer, a graduate of Alfred E. Beach High School and Savannah State College. Mr. Polite was a radar operator in the United States Navy, and was a manager of the U. S. Sixth Fleet radio station for twelve months.

Claude Roberts, disc jockey, is a graduate of Alfred E. Beach High School and he attended Savannah State College. Mr. Roberts worked as a disc jockey for WDAR radio station. He is a nightclub singer and entertainer.

James Wiley, disc jockey, is a local entertainer and president of the local chapter of the American Federation of Musicians. He is a dance instructor and dramatics coach for the Frank Callen Boys Club.

Proper Breathing Is Key to Better Health

People who sigh a lot may not need cheering up as much as they need breathing lessons, an article in the March Reader's Digest reveals. Says author W. P. Knowles: "Most of us are only half-breathers. We breathe in because we can't help it but we fail to breathe out completely."

The sigh, he adds, is nature's way of deflating our lungs when we don't do the job properly ourselves.

Breathing out fully does more than clear the lungs. It helps clear the mind and prepare the body for strenuous action. Next time you turn the shower faucet to "cold," for example, try breathing out in a steady breath. You'll find the cold-water shock

Mr. Patterson set forth the proposition that any student in any college may become an honor student if he applies himself. He stated that the only way one may find success in college or in any other endeavor, is to keep his mind on his work. He also presented oral illustrations to support his conclusion.

Mr. Patterson emphasized the duties and aims of the YMCA, and praised it for its never-ending efforts to execute those duties and to realize those aims.

Mr. Patterson defined the place of the college student in an ever-changing society, and in conclusion, he said, "God will only give a crown for a cross, and all success comes through dedication to God."

Savannah State Tigers Defeat Albany To Win SEAC Basketball Crown

By Roscoe Camp

The finals of the annual SEAC Conference were played at Albany State College, Albany, Georgia, February 19, 20 and 21. The top teams in the SEAC Conference were present. First place Savannah State Tigers shot their way to victory with wins over Claflin University and Albany State College.

In the opening game of the semifinals, the Tigers found the Claflin five an easy foe, defeating them 91-76 and qualifying for the finals. Ira Jackson lead the way with 20 points.

After sweeping through the semifinals, the Tigers tackled the host team, Albany State, for the title game. This was a hard-fought game all the way. Again that "sharpshooting" forward, Ira Jackson, was high scorer with 25 points as the Tigers defeated the Rams of Albany State and captured the 1958-59 SEAC crown. Willie Tate and Harlan Lambert doubled for second high with 20 points each.

The Tigers defeated the following teams to remain in first place and qualify for the SEAC tournament.

In the Wiley Gymnasium, January 31, they rolled to victory with a 104-58 win over Edward-Waters of Jacksonville, Fla., and on February 7, they defeated the mighty Rams of Albany State College, 82-54. Then the Tigers traveled to Augusta, Ga., where they defeated Paine College on their own home court by an extraordinary score of 114-75. In the non-Conference bracket, the Tigers defeated the powerful Norfolk State College cagers 70-67 in a thriller that was all tied up with four seconds left to play.

Yes, the Tigers really had a fruitful season. They were the first place team in the SEAC Conference from start to finish. The nicest part of it all is the same team will be defending this crown next year, because the majority of the Tigers are freshmen and sophomores. The only seniors are Captain Roland James and Moses King.

The Savannah State students congratulate the Tigers on winning SEAC Conference.

Du Pont Representative Addresses Students

By Sherman Roberson

Alvis S. Proctor, E. I. DuPont de Nemours and Company representative, was guest speaker at a special assembly held Wednesday, February 11, in Meidrim Auditorium of Savannah State College.

Mr Proctor, manager of the Southern District of the DuPont Company's Extension Division, is an experienced public speaker with a background of more than 17 years in education, retail store management and industry.

He spoke on the topic "Progress Unlimited." He pointed out that there had been more material progress in the 20th century than in all previous history. He stated that progress does not just occur, but it is brought about by gifted, dedicated industrious people of that type. Mr. Proctor posed the question, "What new element, then, was added to provide this tremendous surge during the 20th century?" Answering this question, Mr. Proctor contrasted the trials and sacrifices of yesterday's lone wolf inventor with the economic strength of today's large corporation, which enables them to bring together teams of scientists, inventors and technologists, to place them in an environment of creativity, to free them from economic want and to put at their disposal every device to bring their projects to fruition. Mr. Proctor, in conclusion, said, "We can enjoy progress unlimited, so long as we can preserve the freedom of the individual, the freedom of the team that pools the individual talents, and the freedom of the inventor to provide the tools for the large and long-term risks."

Dear Family:

Your student newspaper, The Tiger's Roar, can function only with your help, cooperation, and participation. Your are impeding the progress of your paper and preventing the paper from meeting its deadline.

The Tiger's Roar is sent to many distant parts of the country representing over a thousand voices roaring their opinions, information and facts, but work, time and concentrated efforts must be combined and depended upon in order to have a publication indicative of the type of intelligent people assembled in this College Family.

All Heavy Smokers Face Certain Lung Cancer, Surgeon Declares

A world-famed chest surgeon makes a grim prediction in the March Reader's Digest. Says Dr. Allon Ochsner: "Every heavy smoker will develop lung cancer —unless heart disease or some other sickness claims him first." Of every 100 persons who develop the disease, only five will be alive five years later.

In an article condensed from a publication of the American Medical Association, Dr. Ochsner tells author J. D. Ratcliff that lung cancer's toll in the United States has leaped from 2500 in 1930 to an estimated 35,000 last year. Cigarette sales for the same period rose in almost identical proportion.

No self-respecting gambler would accept the odds that face lung-cancer victims. Of every hundred cases, 45 are so ravaged by the time they see a doctor that surgery is a waste of time. Another eleven die on the operating table. Twelve more have their chests closed without further surgery after inspection shows them to be hopeless; they die within a few months.

The remaining 32 face one of the most massive operations in the usually delicate surgical domain. Days of ain follow these operations. Even worse, every patient must endure at least five years of agonized suspense before he can be considered cured. Only five of the original 100 victims survive these five years.

The rapid growth of lung cancer makes early discovery imperative. Every heavy smoker over 40 owes himself the minimum protection of having a chest X-ray at least every six months.

An Open Letter

To the Cast of Antigone:

The pink, winking, blinking sparkle of the jewels you presented me last week brought bright ears to my eyes.

According to reports, Antigone was successful. Few know how much you went through to achieve your ee moment of glory and make ready an hour of beauty for the devotees of Thespis.

You yourselves do not know the trepidation we felt when we surveyed a cast including seven freshmen and we groaned, Oh, Antigone! Why In the world a Sophoclean tragedy? Why? Why? And then came the inspiring words of Browning: ". . . a man's reach should exceed his grasp. Or what's a heaven for?"

And aspire you did—all of you. You Haimon, with your hint of a lisp that almost disappeared on the Big Night. You Ismene of the soft sweet voice. They'll never hear you in the last rows. I shouted to you during the mounting rehearsal. You Sentry, girl who took on a man's role at your own suggestion and did it well. You Chorus, with whom I fought nightly, and who never acted badly toward me as I often did toward you.

You Messenger, who rushed in at the last minute and learned your lines in the blinking of an eyelash. You Tiresias, who made me try the quavering voice which gave me a sore throat for days. Yet you did it right after night. You, little Michael, boy of Thebes who came to rehearsals on time though you had only a walk-on. You Creon. Ah, Creon, from the first you had little room for me (except for the r's), for you were Creon.

And you, Antigone—you of the golden throat. I remember when first I heard that haunting voice. You were saying hello to another student. I heard and was captivated for all time. Yes, Antigone, you of the mellifluous tongue, you made me weep at last as you had promised.

You, O cast of Antigone, you gave me jewels more sparkling than any other that day I heard the small son of my house cried ing: "Mama, Money! There's nothing in the world so demoralizing as money." The days when students whom I had never seen paused in passing to greet me intelligently about Attic drama. When Dr. McCullough's students showed interest in the Oedipus Rex, a movie done with the giant masks and buskins of the old Greek arena.

When the toreador fails to waive the muleta, when the arena-goers forget to shout Ole! then shall I forget you and you! Antigone.

Only then, too, will I forget the splendid cooperation we received from all quarters of our great College. Wherever we looked, they helped. And some came forward unasked, bearing assistance as if it were a golden chalice. Thanks to all of them.

And, above all, cast of Antigone and everyone who stood behind you, you kept the shining faith our beloved president has in you and in our College. You kept the fellow-students who realize, I sometimes think, how deep and abiding is his faith in you. Our students are as good as students anywhere, he will say often in faculty meeting. They can achieve, he insists. And sometimes we pedagogues half smile, remembering the misspellings and the errors in punctuation. But you, cast of Antigone, brought tangible, ineffaceable evidence of his serene assurance that we at Savannah State College have great potential for utmost growth and development.

And so, cast of Antigone, thank you again for the jewels. But you are my real jewels—my diamonds priceless and promising. You are the gems of all of us.

Sincerely yours,
Luetta Colvin Upshur,
Acting Director,

"Antigone" Draws Student Opinions

By Yvonne McGlockton

Recently, Antigone, a Greek drama by Sophocles, was presented on this campus. To get student reactions to the play the following question was asked: "What is your general reaction to the play, Antigone, that was recently presented by the College Playhouse?"

The following reactions were received:

Lucille Lawton, sophomore: "I think the play was excellent. I feel the students on this campus should be exposed to more activities of that nature."

Benjamin Harris, senior: "I think students really appreciated the play."

Rosalyn Seurdy, junior: "I thought that the costuming was excellent and the characters portrayed their parts very well."

Mamie Green, freshman: "I think the performance was spectacular. Even though it was a tragedy, it had just enough humor to make it realistic. I also think that Creon's voice and costume possessed a touch of royalty."

Cynthia Toney, freshman: "All of the characters were good and Creon was especially good."

Mable McPherson, senior: "The most inspiring thing to me was the way that the characters portrayed their parts. I think it was terrific for amateurs."

Alvin Collins, senior: "I thought it was the most colossal play that has been presented since I have been here. The actors seemed very much at ease."

Herbert Williams, senior: "I like serious dramas. Therefore I liked Antigone. I think that in the future there should be a variety of plays including all types."

Harry Richardson, sophomore: "The play was one of the best I have ever seen. I like plays of mixed emotions. I feel that that kind of play should be continued."

Winifred Hopkins, freshman: "I think, on a whole, the play was good. In some parts it was very good and some of the actors were marvelous. The actress who especially appealed to me were Creon, Antigone, and Heimon.

Margaret Dawson, sophomore: "Well, I think it was very well prepared and presented. I especially enjoyed Eva Boseman, who portrayed 'Antigone.' In my estimation she did as well as anyone could have done."

Nathaniel Brown, sophomore: "I thought the play was very good as well as educational. It showed how sometimes power, if used unwisely, can corrupt a city."

Eleanor Johnson, sophomore: "I think that it was nice in that it was fostering the cultural program that has been instigated at this institution."

Mildred Gissentanner, junior: "I am a lover of Greek drama. The play was very enjoyable and the performance was magnificent. The characters seemed very relaxed and acquainted with what they were doing. I think there should be a repeat performance."

Thomas J. Farlon, freshman: "It was pretty nice in my opinion. I think it was enjoyed by all who attended."

Dorothy Harden, freshman: "I enjoyed the play. It brought out the fact that it is not always wise to judge people too quickly.

Lui Guyton, junior: "I liked it

"On Leave of Absence"

The place is Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C. The man is John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State, and the condition is cancer (located somewhere in the lower abdomen).

For six years Mr. Dulles has geared the United States' foreign policy and is known as the most traveled Secretary of State in United States history.

John Foster Dulles was a major in World War I, an international lawyer during the early twentieth century, United States International Advisor during the Truman Administration, and as Secretary of State under the Eisenhower Administration, he rates high on the list of the world's dedicated statesmen.

Cancer is not a new enemy to the Secretary, because he underwent surgery in 1956, and now his hope of recovery depends on his bodily reaction to radiation therapy. The disease is destroying his glandular tissues, and his response to radiation treatment is slow.

President Eisenhower has asked for the nation's prayers that recovery will come quickly to the "traveling man," who is now "on leave of absence."

The Berlin Crisis

Nikita S. Khrushchev plans to transfer the Soviet's position as joint occupiers of Berlin to the East German regime, and the United States and the allies are planning a "Big Four" conference negotiation over Germany reunification.

Moscow has set up a Pankow puppet in Germany and has transferred authority to the Pankow regime. According to the Soviets, by May 27 the West will have to deal with the East Germans in transporting supplies to and from Berlin. According to the Soviets, a refusal may result in a world war.

The Reds plan to dissolve the postwar agreement, which gave the United States, France and Great Britain the right to occupy Berlin. Now, Moscow has issued a formula demanding the allies to withdraw their forces.

The aim of the United States and her allies is to unite the split Berlin territory by negotiation on a "Big Four" level for reunification.

A Labor Threat

The Kennedy-Ervin Bill and the Administration Bill are the only serious attacks against Labor since the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947. The bills attack uncurbed union power. However, the Kennedy-Ervin Bill tends to increase the power of unions and their supervisors. The provision to the bill increases union power over a larger number of supervisors and places more power in the National Labor Board.

The Administration Bill has a provision which attacks "blackmail" picketing. "Blackmail" picketing is picketing by those people representing neither the striking union nor the management suffering the strike.

Periscoping the Business World

The industrial unions are losing their membership voluntarily while the craft unions are apparently in good shape. The United Automobile Workers have dropped over 100 paid staff

New Haven, Conn. (I.P.) — Pointing out that New Haven College has a curriculum which reflects probably more than most community colleges in the nation the growing "frontier of community education," President Marvin K. Peterson stated here recently that "our curriculum for the spring term of 1959 is one that couldn't possibly have been envisaged by the men who founded our college just 38 years ago."

He cited new courses being offered for the first time this spring by the college, such as one in nuclear metallurgy, another in scientific illumination, the two transistor courses already being given both in new Haven and in Ridgefield, a television techniques workshop, and others.

Community colleges across the nation, he said, are faced with a growing need to expand their curricula to provide education to adults as well as the young.

National Sports Talk

The biggest star of the 1959 track season so far has been young John Thomas of Boston University, who has twice jumped seven feet indoors. This is comparable to a three and one-half minute mile or a nine second hundred yard dash. . . . The longer Wilt Chamberlain plays basketball with the Harlem Globetrotters, the better he likes it. It has been said that he might stick with the Trotters for a while. . . . Lightweight champion Joe Brown regained his crown when he outpointed Johnny Busso, who upset him earlier in a non-title bout. . . . Jimmy Brown, one of professional football's all-time stars and an All American at Syracuse University, has jointed the Pepsi-Cola Company marketing staff. . . . It has been predicted that Sugar Ray Robinson and Archie Moore will be matched in a bout for the light-heavy title, and a further prediction is that Robinson will win and become one of the few fighters to hold three world titles. . . . While on the subject of boxing, Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson has signed to defend his title against Ingermar Johanssen of Sweden. . . . The baseball fever is here and the spring training camps are opening. Willie Mays signed a contract that is reported to be near $80,000. Other players that received increased salaries include Ernie Banks, Elston Howard, and Minnie Minoso. . . . The Lost Angeles Rams traded eight players for Ollie Matson. This was the biggest single trade in football history.

This is Ira Jackson as he scores two points for the Tigers. Number 21 is Redell Walton with his eyes on the ball. Jackson was high scorer in the SEAC Tournament.

Redell Walton, 6'1 210-lb. forward, shows form that helped him score 287 points for the Tigers this season. Walton was the high scorer for the Tigers. He was elected to the all SEAC Conference team for outstanding performances during the SEAC Tournament.

This is Lawrence "Cuff" Williams as he shoots his favorite hook shot. Number 7 is Alphonso McLean charging in for a possible rebound.

This is Willie Tate as he scores two points against Claflin University. The Tigers defeated Claflin 66-59.

Jimmie Colson Delivers Address

By Sherman Roberson

Jimmie D. Colson, senior, was the main speaker on the all-college assembly program, presented by the Alpha Iota Chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Incorporated, February 27, in Meldrim Auditorium.

Jimmie is a native of Perry, Georgia, and is a graduate of Houston County Training School of Perry, Georgia. She is majoring in Mathematics and minoring in General Science, and holds office in the following organizations: Secretary, Senior class; Anti Basileus, Alpha Iota Chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Incorporated; Secretary, Natural Science Club; Secretary, Pan Hellenic Council; Secretary, Dormitory Council and others.

Jimmie spoke on the topic, "Youth Wins Its Way." She set forth the proposition that one of the faults attributed to the youths is failure to acknowledge previous mistakes. According to Jimmie, two wrongs do not make a right. She presented example to support the idea that if youth refuses to acknowledge previous mistakes and fails to correct them, it is then making another.

"Youth supposes, age knows," said the student speaker, and the modern versions, "Young men think old men are fools, but old men know young men are fools."

In conclusion, she asked her audience to ask themselves, "Where are we going?" Also to consider whether or not what they are pursuing is really what they want. She asked that all should remember the importance of youth in relation to the home, the school, the church, the community, the nation and the world.

The speaker stated; "Youth wins its way, pausing a while, but not to stay."

A solo entitled "My Task," was sung by Delores Wright, and Eugene Hagins accompanied her at the piano.

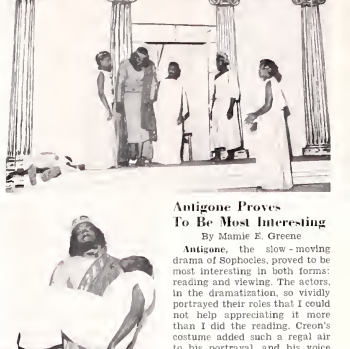
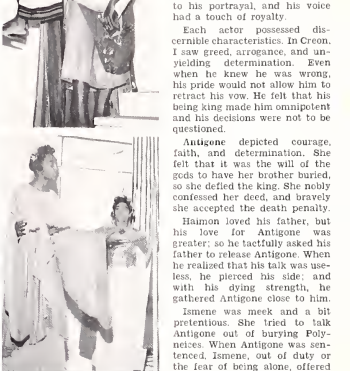
Scenes From "Antigone"





Antigone Proves To Be Most Interesting

By Mamie E. Greene

Antigone, the slow - moving drama of Sophocles, proved to be most interesting in both forms: reading and viewing. The actors, in the dramatization, so vividly portrayed their roles that I could not help appreciating it more than I did the reading. Creon's costume added such a regal air to his portrayal, and his voice had a touch of royalty.

Each actor possessed discernible characteristics. In Creon, I saw greed, arrogance, and unyielding determination. Even when he knew he was wrong, his pride would not allow him to retract his vow. He felt that his being king made him omnipotent and his decisions were not to be questioned.

Antigone depicted courage, faith, and determination. She felt that it was the will of the gods to have her brother buried, so she defied the king. She nobly confessed her deed, and bravely she accepted the death penalty.

Haimon loved his father, but his love for Antigone was greater; so he tactfully asked his father to release Antigone. When he realized that his talk was useless, he pierced his side; and with his dying strength, he gathered Antigone close to him.

Ismene was meek and a bit pretentious. She tried to talk Antigone out of burying Polyneices. When Antigone was sentenced, Ismene, out of duty or the fear of being alone, offered to join her sister in her death; but Antigone nobly rejected her offer. Ismene accepted the rejection with what I believe was a feeling of relief.

Though Euridice appeared only once, she seemed to be meek and dominated. Rather than trying to talk with her husband, she submitted herself to death.

The other characters were rather wise, and fearful. They knew Creon was wrong, but they waited too late to express themselves.

The play was well-cast, and I commend Mrs. Upshur, Mr. Holt, and all who made the production a remarkable one. I shall long remember both forms of the play; for although death was tragic, there was just enough humor to make it realistic. The performance was really spectacular.

SSC Alumni Are Active

By Prince Jackson, Jr.

A Savannah State College Alumni Chapter was organized in Macon, Georgia, on February 22. John Jordan, Jr. ('49), was elected Acting President, and Mrs. E. M. Sutton ('48) was elected Acting Secretary. The group plans an early meeting to elect and install permanent officers and set up a program for the remainder of the year.

Prince Jackson, Jr., College Alumni Secretary, addressed the group and related to them some of the vast improvements which are presently taking place within the college and discussed the need for scholarship funds.

At a recent meeting with John Robinson, principal of Bailey Street School, Waycross, Georgia, and Hosea Lofton of Blackshear, Georgia, Mr. Jackson discussed the need for an Alumni Chapter in that area. The response was favorable and plans are now underway to begin organizing a chapter there.

Some graduates in Folkston, under the leadership of Robert DeLoach, principal of Bethune High School, have begun to plan their organization into a chapter.

Mr. Jackson is scheduled to address the Alumni Chapter in Madison, Georgia, sometime in March. Mrs. Marie B. Martin is president of this group.

Preview of Spring Fashions

By Toledo Riley

If you know your own mind and like to express it in the way you dress, take a few tips from this forecast for Easter:

For milady, the excitingly fresh, and deliciously new styles are the beautiful pastel colors of mint green, pink, plum-purple, antigria white, orange, melon, turquoise and peacock blue.

Slim sheaths, alone or jacket-topped, for two completely different looks; or the smart new, and above all, three-piece costume suit with a cropped jacket, slim skirt, and a printed blouse, which peeps out from under the cropped jacket, are the leading fashion columns from Paris to America.

To top off these enticing outfits are hats in all variations—the little draped affairs, big combinations, flowers, fruits, overlays of chiffon, and the simple skimmers.

If you are one for having the feet in the open, this is the spring for it! Wear a little less shoe with a lot more glamor. Wear shoes that are closed at the toe, but open any-and-everywhere else. These designs are the newest thing in shoes since pointed toes. The shades are plum-purple calf, pink, melon, grapefruit, bone, peacock blue, and the ever-popular black patent.

The new look for the gents is the "Continental Look." The coats are cut higher and rounded just below the waistline. The pants are worn shorter than the regular length. Although the continental look is new, nothing can replace the dominant "Ivy League" with those neat Stacy-Adams shoes to correspond with the suit.

Proper Breathing Is

far less chilling than usual. The strain of any difficult job can be minimized by breathing out slowly and fully before you start. It can also insure your staying awake in church.

Proper exhaling requires practice, the Digest article says. One of the best ways to establish the habit involves reading aloud. Try reading a favorite story, counting the words you can say in one breath. Tomorrow try to increase the amount. After several days you may double your count.

Another good exercise is counting alound. Breathe in gently to the count of four. Pause a second and then exhale to the count of twelve. Next time breathe in to the count of five, exhale to fifteen. As the count gets longer, try humming as you exhale. This will help you control the amount of air you expel.

By making controlled breathing a habit, says Knowles, we can increase our awareness, improve our posture and enlarge our body capacity.

The article, "Do You Really Know How to Breathe?" is condensed from Today's Living, the Sunday supplement of the New York Herald Tribune.

for poetic enjoyment. I especially liked James Nevels as Creon."

Juanita Baker, senior: "I think it was very good."

Joe Sweet, senior: "I think the student body understood and appreciated the play."

From the various opinions received, I think that we should take our hats off to the playhouse for a splendid performance that was enjoyed by everyone.

New Library To House 60,000 Volumes

By Sherman Roberson

The half million dollar library that is under construction on the Savannah State College campus is rapidly nearing completion. This modern structure will house some 60,000 volumes, representing all areas of study and research.

Among the new books to be added to the library are several of the most recent acquisitions in science. Earth Satellites by Patrick Moore. The desire to set up artificial moons to circle the earth is no longer a product of the imagination. And now that the launching of such bodies is actually taking place, it is dominating much public concern and attention. Although much technical information is available on this subject, the non-specialist reader often finds that it is beyond his comprehension.

Here, Moore has attempted to give a general view of what is taking place so that after reading his work, the interested onlooker will find it easier to understand technical expositions. Brighter Than A Thousand Moons, by Robert Jungk. This work is a personal history of atomic scientist based on conversations with the chief participants from Poland, Germany to Australia and Japan, and on a collection of American official documents and transcripts. Atoms and People, by Ralph E. Lapp. This is the work of an atomic scientist who speaks of the outstanding events and personalities of atomic history in this non-technical account for the layman. Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace proposal, the perils of nuclear warfare and the gradual slowing down of the atomic race by means of international control are all discussed.

Atoms At Your Service, by Henry A. Dunlap, in this book, an attempt has been made to present the basic information about the atom: What it is and how it acts in the liberation of energy. The author includes the story of the Atomic Energy Commission, the role of Congress, the role of private industry and also the international aspects of his subject. United Weapons, by Sric Burgess. Here, the author has attempted to introduce the reader to fundamentals, both historical and technical, on which guided missles are based.

By Ernestine Hill

He has all brawn and no brains! Have you ever heard this stereotype used? I am sure that most of you have. Thus has been proved wrong however, for you will find that brawn does accompany brains and that some of the best students may be athletes. One athlete of whom our school should be especially proud is Leroy Brown, a senior and a native of Savannah, Georgia.

Leroy, a quiet, serious-minded young man, was honored at the Honor's Day program for maintaining a two-point average for three consecutive quarters. He made first team on the all SEAC Conference football team, and was Savannah State College's choice for the Pittsburg Courier "All American Award."

He is a catcher on the Tiger's baseball team and a guard on the football team. Brown is a member of the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, the Natural Science Club, and is the treasurer of the Senior Class. His hobbies are playing cards, listening to jazz records, and dancing. He is a mathematics major and plans to work for the government after graduation. It is an honor to add Leroy Brown to the ever-growing list of Spotlight Subjects.

Laramie, Wyo. (I.P.)—The rule passed last year by the University of Wyoming's Faculty Social Committee prohibiting off-campus "atmosphere" dances has been amended, according to an announcement by Dean of Women E. Luella Galliver, committee chairman.

The new ruling states "atmosphere dances are to be cleared by the social committees (both student and faculty) two weeks before the dance is to be held and, whenever possible, they are to be held in the chapter houses." The social committees and the Inter-fraternity Council both feel this new ruling is much better than the previous one which stated that atmosphere dances were to be held in chapter houses, commented Dean Galliver.

"The first ruling was also rather ambiguous when it stated that the dances had to have special clearance by the social committees. In the latest resolution, the social committees are defined—both student and faculty," she stated. Upon receipt of the petitions from the fraternities, Dean Galliver will mail copies of the faculty and student members of the committee for their approval or disapproval.

A student is eligible for membership if he is in the upper fifth of his college class, has completed 96 quarter hours of work, of which 26 hours are in one science with a minim of 2.2 average, and a general college average of 2.0. Students are also required to do original research. Those students elected were: James Deen, Biology, Alma, Georgia; Arnett Carroll, Jr., Chemistry, Savannah, Georgia; Oscar Jackson, Mathematics, Savannah, Georgia; Leroy Brown, Mathematics, Savannah, Georgia; Nathaniel Johnson, Mathematics, Savannah, Georgia; and Rose Anne Lanier, Mathematics, Savannah, Georgia.

Among the research projects presented were: "The Evolution of the Specialized Excretory Systems of Certain Organisms, beginning with Echinoderms through Mammals," by Deen; "Determination of the Mass of One Copper Atom by Electrolysis," by Carroll; and "A Statistical Study of Factors Used in Forecasting Fog," by Jackson.

Willie Hamilton, Savannah, majoring in Chemistry, is president of the college chapter. Faculty members holding membership in the organization are: B. T. Griffith, Biology; Ira Jones, Biology; W. V. Winters, Physics and Mathematics; and C. Vernon Clay, Chemistry and sponsor for the local chapter.

Johnson Instructor Awarded Stipend

William B. Jackson, Instructor of Mathematics at Sol C. Johnson Laboratory High School of Savannah State College, was recently awarded a stipend by the National Science Foundation to study during the academic year 1959-60 at Atlanta University.

The academic year institute program was established by the National Science Foundation in recognition of the importance of the teaching of mathematics and the natural sciences in secondary schools. Through its financial support, the National Science Foundation enables selected secondary school teachers to devote a year of academic study to the areas in which they have professional responsibility.

Mr. Jackson is a product of the Chatham County public school system. He is a graduate of Beach-Cuyler High School and earned his Bachelor of Science degree at Savannah State College. In the summer of 1958 he was the recipient of a National Science Foundation scholarship and studied chemistry at North Carolina University, Durham, North Carolina.

Mr. Jackson served in the submarine forces of the United States Navy during World War II.

Because of his outstanding work in the community and his proficiency as an instructor, he was selected teacher of the year at Paulsen Elementary School in 1956 and again as teacher of the year at Paulsen Junior High School in 1958.

Student Council Prexy Travels to Albany

Willie Hamilton, President of the Student Council of Savannah State College, traveled to Albany State College, Albany, Georgia, and participated in Its Co-etiquette Week activities which began on April 9, 1959.

"Take A Look at Yourself" was selected as the General theme of this program sponsored by the Women's League and the Men's Senate of Albany State.

Among the colleges and universities represented: Florida A & M University, Tallahassee, Florida; Fort Valley State College, Fort Valley, Georgia; Savannah State College, Savannah, Georgia and the host institution Albany State College, Albany, Georgia.

Hamilton participated on a panel discussion entitled "As College Students, Should We Be Concerned About Social Graces?" and also on a dormitory discussion entitled "Very Personally Yours" for men only.

According to Hamilton, it was agreed that college students should not merely concern themselves with social graces but practice them and make them a part of their daily living.

The keynote speaker of these activities was Mrs. G. W. Gore, Jr., wife of the president ot Florida A & M University, Tallahassee, Florida.

President's Message

During the twentieth century in the Western world man has learned to make an unusual variety of almost everything needed and used. There are many brand-named products and many products which appear very similar to the brand named. In almost every instance, one is able to find several grades of the same item which on the surface seem to be alike. The concept of quality in these items is above all things, very hazy. Too often the general public is unaware of the fact that there is any difference in quality. Unfortunately, this hazy concept of quality has been carried over into education. One often thinks that elementary school education, high school education, and college education mean the same respectively everywhere. The stress of our time and the problems which we face are beginning to reveal that all grade levels in our educational system are not of equal quality. Our effort to provide education for all has not been accompanied by similar effort to provide quality in whatever education offered at the respective levels.

The improvement of the quality of education in our colleges may well be one of the major objectives for the college faculties and the college student bodies. The quality of instruction and learning is determined by both teacher and student. Teachers who provide instruction that is aimless or short-sighted may merely add to the confusion that exists as to the quality of education being provided. Students who make haphazard preparations, who make studying and learning a matter of routine fail to reach a point where their abilities are strengthened and extended. The quality of education which a student gets for himself, to a large extent, will be determined by his own efforts in almost every case irrespective of the course grades which the student receives. The quality of learning can be improved two or three times beyond the present grade obtained by the students. Students who are interested in the quality of their education may try an experiment for one quarter. Such experimentation would reveal some of the deeper meanings of quality in learning and education.

Four Simple Rules Can Improve Your Memory for Names and Faces

With four simple rules, you can train yourself to become virtually infallible at remembering names, says an article in the April Reader's Digest.

Author Frederic Sondern, Jr., points out that forgetting names can cause more than temporary embarrassment; it may cost you a pleasant friendship or a profitable business contact.

Politicians, businessmen and others in public life recognize this fact and work at the business of remembering names. General Eisenhower once impressed a group of French military leaders by remembering their names even though he had met them only fleetingly years before. Former Democratic National Chairman James Farley has estimated that he has in his mind the names, faces and backgrounds of 20,000 people. Former President Harry Truman, F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover and hotelman Conrad Hilton are others whose ability to remember names has been an important factor in their success.

The four rules for remembering were formulated years ago by Dale Carnegie. They are based on his belief that accurate memories are not necessarily gifts, but can be taught just like other skills. The rules are:

Get the Name Clearly When You Are Introduced. If the name is not clear, ask the introducer to repeat it. But don't ever ask a third party present—he may not know it himself.

Give the Name a Chance to Sink into Your Mind. The best way to do this is to repeat it a few times in the ensuing conversation.

Learn the Face While You Are Learning the Name. Look at the face, the posture, any distinguishing marks. Learning to associate names and faces will make remembering easier.

Try to Make a Mental Picture to Cement Name and Face Together. The author says one of his favorite ways of doing this is by making up a rhyme about the person. For example: "Mrs. Farnum should be with Barnum." It may not be true, but it will cement Mrs. Farnum's name and face in your mind.

Another way is to create a picture of the person doing something associated with his name. Mr. Hamilton, for example, could be pictured as a human head with a ham's body, weighing one ton.

Learning these mental tricks, says Sondern, can be much more than a pleasant way to improve your mind. It can pay dividends in terms of improved business and personal relationships.

The article, "You Can Remember Names," is condensed from Christian Herald.

Dear Students:

Beauty means one thing to some, and another to others, but any one of us experiencing that which to him is beautiful must therefore pause to give respect to it. Sometimes a blush on a co-ed's cheeks creates beauty, or the green grass upon which she is standing, then perhaps, it is the gray wavy locks suspended above her head. Yet, it could be the vegetable giants enfolding their leafy arms toward dibe heavens, giving reverence to God, and providing shady shadows around which she moves.

Beauty has its special seasons, which create different attitudes and feelings. However, that beauty which is attainable with the summer months is striking enough for us to pause, and to respect. Therefore, let us not take it for granted for fear it may disappear. Let us use it for fear it may become angry and turn hideous in spite to our unattainted attitude. Let us keep it clean for fear it becomes marred in ugly retribution.

There is nothing more beautiful than Clean-Observed, and Revered beauty.

Yours truly,
JAMES N. NEVELS,
Associate Editor

to be a small cog in a big wheel; and it's easy to find a safe corner where there are few risks.

"I have found young men everywhere displaying a degree of timidity that would have lost this country to the Indians not so many decades ago," he says.

He points out that it was not big business, but small, independent businesses that built this country's wealth. If growth is to continue, such competitive businesses must also continue to grow.

Most people agree that men who have started businesses of their own are the most successful. The risks are greater, but so are the rewards. A small businessman can concentrate on building up his business rather than himself. He isn't limited by the slogan, "Don't rock the boat," which is so often an unspoken rule of big corporations.

Even more important is this fact: if a young man has the ability to make money, chances are he will make more on his own. As his own employer, he gets the employer's cut.

Even failing in business can be a valuable experience. Many young men have learned enough from their failures to succeed in a second or third try. And they have a pride in their own business that few corporations can match.

The Berlin Issues

The question that is most important in the minds of the American people today, because of the serious consequences involved if the answer should be positive or negative is, "Should the United States forces stay in Berlin?"

There seem to be two alternatives; knuckling under the Communists threats, or risking an all-out war. Both alternatives do not offer a future stable America. However, Eisenhower has indicated firmness on standing pat in Berlin. According to the President, if the alternative is war, then it will be a nuclear war. However, the President is optimistic that the Russians do not want to fight about Berlin, and certainly all efforts will be taken to avoid a possible World War III.

Experts in a recent survey, asked the American public how it felt about the issues involved. The comments indicated that the man-on-the-street would rather risk a nuclear war, than lose face in the Berlin situation by retreating under the rant of Khrushchev's threats.

Can We Stop Breathing and Live?

The man-on-the-street is appalled at the recent reports concerning the increased amount of strontium 90 in the atmosphere. However, the Atomic Energy Commission stated that radio activity is still far below the danger level, but the uncertainty and doubt is mounting up, and President Eisenhower has agreed to disclose all facts regarding radiation. Also, Representative Chet Hatfield (California), head of the Joint Congressional subcommittee on radiation, has decided to have a full-scale fallout investigation.

Radioactive strontium 90 is deadly, and a small amount concentrated in a single area may kill or produce other hazards in the form of cancer, tumor, and lukemeia.

The Old Man Steps Down

The election year is 1961, and after expressing his desire to run a fourth time for Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, 83-year-old builder of Germany from her post-war ruins, has decided to relinquish his previous desire and accept the presidential post.

The Chancellor has promised his allies that the present German policy will remain the same. "A long period of uncertainty is ahead," stated Adenauer, referring to the summit meeting planned for the summer.

The big question is therefore, "Who will take the lead in wielding Western unity and standing up to Russia, while standing up for peace?"

How to Find the Right Employment

Three points to consider in finding the right job are discussed by Adele Lewis, president of the Career Blazers Agency, 5 West 46th Street, N. Y. C., and of the Adele Lewis Agency, 35 West 43rd Street, N. Y. C.

1. WHAT KIND OF JOB DO YOU WANT—

The ideal job for you is one in which your special skills are used in the field of your special interests. Now that graduation time is approaching, the serious considerations of finding the proper work become more pressing.

If you've majored in chemistry, physics, teaching, nursing or some other technical or professional field, the choice is predetermined. You simply take the best offer in your field. But, if you're among those who have received a Liberal Arts education, your entry into the job world becomes more complex.

If fashion is your forte, do your abilities lie in the direction of design? sales? modeling? textiles? If words are your medium, do you lean to writing fact? fiction? ad copy? TV scripts? Do you have the type of mind that automatically catalogues and organizes? Do you prefer working with people, or are you at your happiest in lonely, responsible surroundings?

The first analysis of your abilities must be your own. Your parents, teachers, student counselors, even your friends can help by frank discussion of the qualifications you have to offer. A competent career consultant can confirm or re-direct your own thinking and reconcile the qualities which you have for sale with the market for your services. But first in importance is establishing the objective. Aided by whatever assistance is available to you, you must determine the most practical compromise between your wishes, your abilities and the available opportunities.

2. HOW CAN YOU FIND THE JOB—

After this intensive self-analysis, your next step is to find the job that is most suitable to you. Let us warn you, however, that flexibility on your part is essential in the locating of the right job. You may have decided that you can only be an editorial assistant, for example, but with your background, it may also be possible for you to become a writer in publicity, a researcher or some other allied specialization.

Getting the job involves contact with someone who has use for your services—either directly or through the use of an intermediary.

Aside from the "friend of the family" approach, direct contact with an employer can be made most readily through the "help wanted" columns of your morning newspaper. Here are listed specific job openings, containing either a telephone number, an address or a box number. Should you find in these columns a listing of an attractive job for which you feel your are fitted, it is well to answer without delay. Such jobs are usually available on the day on which they are advertised. The employer is anxious to fill them promptly and the number of replies he receives will most likely enable him to fill the job without referring to the applications of latecomers.

The intermediate approach may be made by your college placement bureau, by a state-operated bureau (such as U.S.E.S.) or through the services of a commercial career consultant. In general, the difference in function between the first two and the latter is the viewpoint of their approach.

An additional source may be found with the private employment agency. A private employment agency screens the abilities and requirements of the applicants and suggests various job opportunities commensurate with the applicant's abilities. The employment consultant has a wide range of jobs listed with New York business firms and works to find the job to fit the applicant.

To help you in your own decision, it might be wise to conduct a small survey of your own, after surveying all the sources that are available to you. A little research can do a long way. Chat with recruiting officials of visiting companies; use your college placement and guidance counselors for job information; make a study of the want ads in large city newspapers, especially those listed under "college graduate"; visit with some private employment agencies to determine their ideas on the possibility of placement for you. When you have done all of this, chances are that you will begin to understand where you may best be suited, and most important, what is available on the market that will give you the greatest scope.

3. WHICH JOB WILL YOU CHOOSE—

If you are in the position of choosing bteween two or more jobs, the selection may not be a simple one. And there are times a career consultant can be of service to you.

Considerations that now seem of minor importance may loom larger as your search continues. Unless finances are of pressing and immediate importance, the serious career seeker will rate starting salary as only one of the considerations affecting your choice. Finding a situation with an employer whom you can like an prospect and which offers the incentive of expanding opportunity will contribute more to your continued satisfaction than the minor difference between two starting salaries.

Since each individual assigns differing relative importance to specific circumstances, it is difficult to place the right value on which factors will prove important to your own peace of mind. Physical surroundings, congenial associates and the presence or absence of routine in your assignments must all be carefully weighed if a choice is offered you.

Many factors enter into the job decision. Sometimes you know which job is right for you. Other times you weigh such essentials as salary, working for a large or small organization, social contacts, travel convenience, uniformed clothing and your time. When these problems arise, your consultant can probably provide simple and direct guidance, for chances are, he has worked with those firms previously and can shed some kind of knowledge on your future role as an employee.

Lastly, the finding of a job is a unique experience for you. Others' experience may be helpful and may be influential, but it is absolutely essential to bear in mind continually that your getting a job depends on what you have to offer. We have run into the problem of "wanting a job exactly like that of a friend." Remember, you are not your friend. His or her qualifications, aptitudes, rapport with people may be entirely different from yours. Be aware that there is that tiny factor of personal chemistry that is sometimes the deciding factor. And to enhance that personal chemistry, it is imperative that you look your best, dress your best (simple-well-tailored clothes) and approach a job with an humility and a willingness to learn what you can gain, and an understanding of what you have to give.

Guide to Travel Is Published

The United States National Student Association announces the publication of the eleventh edition of "Work, Study, Travel Abroad," a comprehensive guide to student travel. The CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR had this to say about the 1956 edition:

"The publication is so useful, so comprehensive that all college students and teachers interested in an overseas experience this summer or any time would do well to secure a copy."

"Work, Study, Travel Abroad" is divided into the three main classifications of work, study and travel. Subdivisions of the travel section deal with tour selection, advantages and disadvantages of tour travel as opposed to independent travel, a currency conversion table, passport data, clothing hints, transportation material, a listing of inexpensive student hostels and restaurants, and a listing of festivals and special events in Europe in 1959.

Under the study section, the reader will find material on summer sessions at European universities, seminars, workshops, scolarships, and awards for study abroad, Junior Year Abroad programs, etc. Organizations sponsoring scholarships are also listed, and descriptive information concerning several scholarships is given.

The Work section discusses prospects of American students for obtaining summer or permanent employment abroad, the restrictions involved, the swindles and rackets to avoid, and all necessary information for the student who is looking for an exciting job abroad. A listing of work camps and voluntary work projects is also given.

A special feature of this year's book is a survey made by the Maxwell School of Public Affairs of Syracuse University, dealing with the much neglected topic of the preparedness of the student traveler for his or her European experience.

"Work, Study, Travel Abroad" costs $1, and may be obtained by writing USNSA EDUCATIONAL TRAVEL, INC., 701 Seventh Avenue, New York 38, New York.

Instant Coffee Drinking Booms Despite Critics

Despite its detractors, instant coffee has become a business of about half a billion dollars a year and now accounts for one fifth to one third of all coffee drunk in America.

"Never has a new food product risen so fast to such success as has instant coffee in the last decade," writes Robert Froman in an April Reader's Digest article, "Coffee, This Instant Upstart."

"And never," says the writer, "has such a successful product been so looked down on, even by some of those who use it." Some people say they use it themselves because of its convenience but would never dream of serving it to guests. Though all of today's major brands of instant are pure coffee, many believe it contains other ingredients that affect its taste.

In 1938 instant coffee was little more than a curiosity, Froman recalls. Following its wide use by the armed forces during World War II, it slowly caught on at home. In 1948 we used about 70 million pounds of coffee in this form, five percent of our total coffee consumption. Since then instant coffees have soared to some 500 million pounds in 1958.

Many instant fans insist that making it a potful at a time is the secret of getting the best flavor. Others claim it should be made double strength, or that honey instead of sugar should be used for sweetening. Froman quoted Prince Talleyrand's famous recipe for coffee—"black as the devil, hot as hell, pure as an angel, sweet as love."

(17) roundly—D: Vigorously; severely; as, roundly condemned.

(18) abashed — A: Embarrassed; disconcerted; as, "The child was abashed when he could not answer the question."

Yale Students Find Independent Thought in Russia Despite Rulers

More than forty years of ruthless Soviet rule have not squelched the Russian people's capacity for independent thought.

This is the conclusion of Yale University student Charles Neff, who toured the Soviet Union recently with seventeen fellow members of the Yale Russian Chorus. In an article in the May Reader's Digest, Neff tells author Ennie Hobbing that throughout Russia, the young singers encountered people eager to learn about the outside world.

Neff and his friends visited Russia as students rather than singers, thus they had no "official" concerts scheduled. But when their first impromptu song —delivered in a Leningrad hotel —met with enthusiasm from the Russian listeners, they knew they could safely sing their way through the country.

Lively discussions usually followed their concerts, Neff reports. Peace was the central theme. With surprising frequency the opinions expressed by Russian citizens varied from the "party line." When, for example, some young Communist officials began reciting Party-line slogans, a group of citizens shouted, "Oh, come on, we've heard that before." Russian students attacked Marxism on the same grounds on which it is criticized in the West.

So deep is the Russians' desire for peace, says Neff, that some indicated they would stand up to the Kremlin if it tried to send them into battle. One middle-aged worked declared: "I will never kill a man again —except to shoot the officer who tells me to shoot."

Religion is surprisingly vigorous, Neff says. At least 200 babies were baptized in one day in a Greek Orthodox Church in Leningrad. The youth of the worshippers, mostly young parents who travelled from nearby towns, belied the Soviet claim that only the old cling to religion.

Neff's conclusion: The Soviet people are not about to revolt. They are, however, critical of their rulers—often in a highly vocal way. And significantly, the criticism seems to be increasing.

Watch Out For The Pink Slips

Have you received a pink slip?

Do not feel ashamed if your returned examination paper, or written assignment has a beautiful pink slip attached to it. The slip explains itself. It means that you have neglected your correct English. Whether it be Science, History, Music or other fields, written assignments employ words, and words are the basic elements of English. Yet, that is not enough. It must be correct English.

It is the responsibility of the Committee on College-Wide Improvement of English to make students aware of their constant errors in English through the process of speaking and writing. The Committee therefore, has made arrangements with the instructors to watch for those errors, and point them out with the use of the pink slip method.

Other English improvement methods will be presented by the Committee. "We must employ preventive measures rather than remedial ones," stated the Committee, under the chairmanship of Dr. N. V. McCullough, English Department head.

Students Enjoy Fine Film Series

Androcles and the Lion, the first film in the series, was shown March 3, 1959. The crowd was not large, but all who attended enjoyed the marvelous production. News got around about the enjoyable movie, and, as a result, more students were present to see the second of the series, The Scarlet Letter. This time the crowd was favorable.

Several students were asked how they enjoyed the two films, and the response was, "I liked both, but I liked The Scarlet Letter more." They also agreed that the series should be continued.

One student, who saw only The Scarlet Letter, remarked, "Such projects as the fine film series should continue because they enhance our cultural development."

Another student remarked, "I enjoyed both films and I intend to see everyone which is presented. I am sorry so many students missed the first two, but I hope they will see the remaining ones. Such films are really assets; they are quite helpful in our humanities classes."

Winner of Professor's Contest Announced

Robert H. MacDonald, a senior English major at New York University, formerly of Inverness, Scotland, is the winner of the $500 prize in Abelard-Schuman's college essay contest. Runner-up is Miles H. Everett, of the University of California at Davis, who will receive a special award of $100.

The contest was designed to gauge student response to a controversial book by Professor George Williams of The Rice Institute, Houston, Texas. In SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE PROFESSORS, Professor Williams takes his colleagues to task for their dullness, repetitiveness, and lack of interest in the art of teaching. On their shoulders, he suggests, lies the responsibility for the American collegian's frequent laziness and indifference to study.

Mr. MacDonald's opinions about SOME OF MY BEST FRIENDS ARE PROFESSORS, and about American education in general, are of special interest since he is a British student who has attended three Ameri-

Spring Football Practice Underway

The Savannah State Tigers gridiron is popping with activity since the beginning of spring football practice. Coach Richard Washington gave his squad of 25 a light workout the first week. But now that the conditioning is over, the rough stuff has started.

In looking over the squad one can see quite a few letter men returning. Among them are men that contributed to the winning Tigers of 1958, such as James Bowen, a topflight lineman from Albany, in his second season with the Tigers, John Strong, a halfback and fullback who is expected to do big things for the Tigers this season. Strong is from Albany, and is in his third season with the Tigers, Elijah McGraw, Savannah, a two-time all conference winner, and last year's captain, is at left end, James Whatley, a flashy halfback who was sidelined most of last season from injuries, is out there to make up for what he missed.

Two freshmen who waited on their big break last season, are John Owens, a former Beach High end, who because of his speed was converted to halfback, and Edward Reid, a quarterback from Beach High, who on several occasions helped the Tigers out of some rough spots. These fellows are making a good showing in spring practice.

Another newcomer who is doing a fine job at quarterback is Leslie Stephens of Quitman, with a little help this fellow could be the added strength that the Tigers' backfield needs.

SSC Track Season Starts

The "cinder-men" of Savannah State College, have begun workouts, under the direction of Coach Theodore Wright. The Tigers are expecting a fruitful season. It is predicted that they can take the SEAC track crown. This could be very possible with such outstanding speedsters and high jumpers as Sammy White and Willie Batchlor returning after a winning season last year.

Sammy White set a new SEAC record with a 6 foot leap in the conference tournament last season. White also does a terrific job on the high and low hurdles. Willie Batchlor is a pole vaulter who was a winner on many occasions last season.

Coach Wright is quite satisfied with some new members of the track team, especially in the performances of John (Breeze) Owens, a speedster from Beach High School. Owens runs the 100 yard dash, the 220 yard dash and is working out with the relay team. Owens was Beach High's top cinderman and is expected to be a big help to the Savannah State Tigers.

SSC Baseball Season Begins

The Savannah State Tigers have begun practicing for the 1959 baseball team. The Tigers are expected to have a winning team this season. The team will be coached by Coach Al Frazier and the manager is Willie Ladden.

The Tigers have 39 men out for the squad, including nine lettermen with from one to three seasons experience. The returning lettermen are John Stron, first baseman, sophomore, Albany; James Bowen, third baseman, sophomore, Albany; Jesse Carter, catcher, junior, Macon; Moses Calhoun, right field, senior, Savannah; Leroy Brown, catcher, senior, Savannah; Roland James, center field, senior, Savannah; Moses King, pitcher, senior, Savannah; M. Smith, pitcher, sophomore, and Willie Ladden, who by his past performances as a pitcher and an alert baseball player was elected manager of the 1959 Tigers. Ladden is a junior and hails from Tifton.

Savannah State College's Spikemen Capture Second Place in SEAC

The Savannah State Trackmen racked up enough wins to capture second place in the SEAC Conference meet, although the meet was underway when they arrived. They were delayed because of automobile trouble. The Tigers scored 31 points.

Claflin, last year's defending champion, wrapped up the meet with 80 points to regain the SEAC Conference title. Albany State was third with 30 points, and Paine was fourth with 21 points.

Sammy White was first in the high jump, with a leap of 5-9. White placed second in the broad jump while jumping 21 feet 5 inches. Willie Batchlor tied for first place in the pole vauling with a leap of 12 feet. Raymond Harper placed second in the discus throwing.

Savannah State's relay team took first place in the 880 yard relay. Ruben Tombs placed second in 440 yard dash. Sammy White, Raymond Harper, Cleveland Holmes and John Owens were the first place 880 yard relay team. John Owens, the Tigers newest sprinster, missed the 100 yard and 220 yard dash by arriving late. Raymond Harper, Terry Mays, George and Ruben Tombs made up the mile relay team that placed third.

John Owens and Sammy White were the outstanding Tiger sprinters for the '59 season.

European Jobs Open in Summer

More job opportunities in Europe this summer. . . . Work this summer in the forests of Germany, on construction in Portugal, on farms in Germany, Sweden and Denmark, in a kibbutzim in Israel, on road construction in Norway.

Well there are these new jobs available as well as jobs in Ireland, Switzerland, England, France, Italy, Spain and Holland are open by the consent of the governments of these countries to American university students coming to Europe the summer of 1959.

Last year, the first group of American students made their way across the Atlantic to take part in the actual life of the people of these countries. The success of this project last summer has caused a great deal of enthusiastic interest and support both in America and Europe.

This year, the program has been expanded to include many more students and jobs. Already, many students have made application for 1959 summer jobs. American-European Student Foundation (a nonprofit organization) is offering these jobs to students for Germany, Scandinavia, England, Austria, Switzerland, France, Italy, and Spain. The jobs consist of forestry work, child care work (females only), farm work, hotel work (limited number available), construction work, and some other more qualified jobs requiring more specialized training.

The purpose of this program is to afford the student an opportunity to get into real living contact with the people and customs of Europe. In this way, a concrete effort can be made to learn something of the culture of Europe. In return for his or her work, the student will receive his or her room and board, plus a dage. However, students should keep in mind that they will be working on the European economy and wages will naturally be scaled accordingly. The working conditions (hours, safety, regulations, legal protection, work permits) will be strictly controlled by the labor ministries of the countries involved.

In most cases, the employers have requested especially for American students. Hence, they are particularly interested in the student and want to make the work as interesting as possible. They are all informed of the intent of the program, and will help the student all they can in deriving the most from his trip to Europe.

For students interested in Denmark the International Student Centre Hald, Viborg, Denmark, will be open this summer to American university students as well as European students.

More travel news for this summer . . . the Scandinavian Student Travel Service, Copenhagen, Denmark, is offering many airplane flights between the major cities of Europe at almost half the regular commercial rates. These rates are often even cheaper than train fares.

For further information on the placement services and travel arrangements, write American-European Student Foundation, P. O. Box 34 712, Vaduz, Liechtenstein, Switzerland.

Garner is a winner of the French Grand Prix Du Disque. In this country he was awarded the METRONOME PLAYBOY and DOWN BEAT awards this year. He also is a current winner of the English MELODY MAKER poll.

Garner will work on some new compositions prior to resuming his concert activities on April 25, at Kleinhans Hall in Buffalo, and on April 30, at the Syria Mosque in Pittsburgh.

con schools — San Francisco State College, the University of California at Berkley, and New York University. Thus he compares and evaluates objectively the quality and technique of higher education on both sides of the Atlantic.

While agreeing that instruction in our colleges and universities may often be pedestrian and uninspired, he contends that it is the materialistic, market-oriented values of contemporary life, reflected in the inhuman machine of campus bureaucracy, that tend to make the student something less than an educated person. Of the attempt to uphold the standards of learning for its own sake while at the same time training for a utilitarian society, Mr. MacDonald says, "The aim is to make the 'well-rounded student': the result is usually the . . . block-headed drudge." He also feels very strongly that the American high school does little to prepare its students for the rigors of genuine higher education, and sends them to college ill-equipped to benefit from even the best of teaching.

The timeliness of Professor Williams' book is underscored by the enthusiastic response of students all over the country to the opportunity offered by the essay contest of expressing their sincere feelings about the weaknesses of higher education today. But a hopeful note was sounded in the intention of many of these young people to enter the teaching profession. Robert MacDonald, in fact, will use his prize money for graduate school where he will work toward his ambition of becoming one of the "good professors."

June, 1959 — SAVANNAH, GEORGIA — Vol. 12, No. 5

Mrs. Sadie Steele Selected "Teacher Of Year" For the State of Georgia

There is an old saying that a college is no greater than its alumni. This month, Mrs. Sadie Steele, class of '48, was selected as the "Teacher of the Year" for the state of Georgia. This honor marks another first for Savannah State College as well as for Chatham County.

Mrs. Steele is a native of Savannah and attended elementary school here. However, she pursued her high school work at Stanton High School of Jacksonville, Florida, from which she was graduated. She was an elementary education major at Savannah State College and was graduated with the Bachelor of Science degree. She holds the Master of Arts degree in elementary education from Columbia University.

She has been teaching for more than twenty years and is truly dedicated to the teaching profession. Presently she has a combined class of first grade and second grade pupils at Powell Laboratory School, Thunderbolt. To see her teach is an inspirational experience in itself. The trust, respect and admiration that her pupils have for her can only come from her sincerity, outgoing personality and her attitude that every child is first a dynamic human being, who possesses at least some one thing that can and should be developed so that he can make his contribution to society. Under her guidance, even the most shy and reticent children blossom out.

In addition to her professional commitments, she finds time to be president of the Savannah Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority; she is a member of the Hodge Memorial Kindergarten Board; she serves on the Tuberculosis Citizenship Board; she is active with several volunteer agencies and charities; she is not only an active member of Bunn's Memorial Baptist Church, Savannah, but she is also a member of the Board of Trustees. She is the devoted wife of Clarence Steele and the mother of a sixteen-year-old son.

The Tiger's Roar salutes Savannah State alumna, Mrs. Sadie Steele, Georgia's Teacher of the Year for 1959.

YMCA Players Perform at SSC

The Players Guild of the West Broad Street YMCA presented a three-act mystery, "Stranger In the Night," by Paul McCoy, on Monday night, May 11, in Meldrim Auditorium. The play was directed by Mrs. Mozelle B. Clemmons, an instructor at Tompkins High School.

This year's production represented the third in a series of plays presented by the YMCA Players Guild. The plays which were presented during the previous two years were: "Punky Noodles," and "No Rhyme Nor Reason."

The YMCA Players Guild is the result of a study made by the Adult Program Committee of the West Broad Street YMCA. The study proved the need for programs for adults that were similar to those performed in high school and college.

Dr. Calvin L. Kiah, chairman of the Department of Education, and presently chairman of the Board of Management of the West Broad Street YMCA, was chairman of the Adult Program Committee when this study was made. John Lyons, Sr., is presently chairman of the Adult Program Committee and a member of the Players Guild.

The cast for this year's play consisted of Mrs. Jean Farmer, Julius C. Stevens, Mrs. Katherina Dwight, Mrs. Mamie M. Hart, Miss Jewel Grant, Wade M. Simmons, Benjamin F. Lewis, Miss Laura G. Solomon, Mrs. Mamie Williams, Mrs. Doris Williams Murray, Robert Tindal and Hiram L. McGee.

Million-Dollar Center Is Under Construction at Savannah State College

Logan and Williams of Atlanta are architects for the million-dollar technical center, which is being constructed west of Herty and Adam Halls (the present science building and dining hall respectively) on the campus of Savannah State College.

The technical center is of brick construction with four wings linked together. The southwest wing will be the electronics technology section with instructional areas for electric machines, electric circuits, basic electronics laboratory, advanced electronics, television and micro-wave laboratory and advanced radio. The northwest wing will be the automotive technology department and will have four spacious shops. There will be adequate locker rooms and faculty offices in all wings.

The building construction technology department is in the north-center wing, which will house shops for building construction, woodworking, plumbing and masonry. The southeast wing is to house departments of chemistry and physics. The first floor features three chemical laboratories, faculty and student lounges, a technical library with workrooms and administrative offices.

The assembly room will be on the second floor and will accommodate two hundred persons. The south wing has two floors with five technical classrooms and a survey laboratory on the first floor, and four drafting laboratories on the second floor.

This million-dollar center is a dream come true for Savannah State College.

Mitchell-Ruff Duo Gives Concert

The fifth annual fine arts festival climaxed its week of activities with a jazz concert by the nationally famous Mitchell-Ruff Jazz Duo during the regular assembly hour in Meldrim Auditorium on May 7.

The jazz duo is composed of Dwike Mitchell, pianist and Willie Ruff, double bassist and French hornist.

Mr. Mitchell is a native of Jacksonville, Florida, and received his formal education at the Philadelphia Music Academy and the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. While serving in the Air Force for two years, he was soloist on the "Air Force Hour."

Mr. Ruff is a native of Sheffield, Alabama. He received both the Bachelor of Music and the Master of Music degrees from Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut. He has played the double bass violin with Benny Goodman's famous orchestra, and the French horn with the Connecticut Symphony Orchestra. Upon graduating from Yale he joined the Lionel Hampton Band, but left to re-form the duo that was started with Mitchell, while they were in the Air Force.

They have appeared in Europe and throughout this country. They are currently signed to a five-year recording contract with Columbia Records. Their recordings appear on Epic, Roulette, and Roulette Stereophonic labels.

Graduation 'Round the World

This June, as your parents applaud their favorite graduate, a proud Bantu tribesman in Africa will be painting his!

He will smear the happy lad's face with certain designs that signify the family to which he belongs; a few more dabs will portray the animal held sacred by the boy's clan; and, if the lad has earned his work well, additional blobs of home-made paint will announce his chosen profession — warrior, hunter, craftsman, priest.

A young researcher at Underwood Corporation, who uncovered these oddities in preparation for the company's new advertising program, found graduations around the world fascinating. For example, on the other side of the world, equally far from books and classrooms — but not examinations — the eyes of a few chosen Melanesian boys will sparkle as bones are inserted through their noses — symbols of their having reached the estate of manhood, with its privileges and responsibilities.

Some young men on nearby islands must endure much more thrilling rites: their youth accompanying their elders on hunting expeditions, they must pass one of the most rigorous tests ever devised for a student.

Accompanied by two adult men from his family, each youth is escorted into the wilderness or to some mountain top far from his village. All he has are the clothes on his back and a knife — no food or tools. His kinsmen search him for contraband, then leave him without a word.

His mission: survive for one week and find his way back home. He must prove himself capable of tracking down and killing game, making a lean-to of whatever materials he can find, reading the stars and avoid getting killed.

Sometimes, the boy doesn't make it — and his family is deeply shamed. But when, on the seventh day, a successful candidate stumbles into the village, dirty, exhausted and shivering — what a celebration! The clan throws the biggest party of its existence. The lucre can do no wrong for the following week. He may kiss any girl he wishes, drop in for supper anywhere, drink himself senseless — anything he wants. For he has returned; he is a man.

If you think that's tough, consider the boys who aspire to native priesthood. In order to qualify as a shaman (medicine man), they undergo the same test as their less ambitious brother, but are forbidden to eat. For a solid week, all they may have is water. And though they are unguarded, they obey — for they firmly believe that the full-fledged shaman can tell whether or not they have had food.

Beauty on Parade

By "Gem"

A very small, but appreciative crowd witnessed the first annual "Miss Savannah State Pageant" on Thursday evening, May 14, 1959. Talent, charm and beauty were very vividly displayed. The narrator for the spectacle was Miss Sara Reynolds.

The lovely aspirants for the coveted title, "Miss SSC," were introduced to the audience. They were beautifully dressed in vivid colors and styles. Miss Josie Simpson wore a pink, embroidered cotton sheath. Miss Mildred Thomas wore a lace beige suit. Miss Juliette West wore a beige empire - waist sheath. Miss Delores Julian wore a lavender sheath with white accessories. Miss Lonnie Culver wore a purple polka dot sheath with a purple duster. Her accessories were white.

After a short interval the contestants then modeled swim suits. Miss Culver wore a one-piece black swim suit. Miss Julian's suit was also a one-piece black. Miss Simpson appeared in a white, low-back suit. Miss Thomas wore a one-piece yellow-orange. Miss West wore a very stunning one-piece blue.

The next sequence was the modeling of evening wear. Miss Culver wore a pink street-length gown with rhinestone accessories. Miss Julian wore a soft-green lace; her accessories were also rhinestones. Miss Simpson wore a soft pink gown covered with chiffon. Miss Thomas was carrying a rhinestone lady-all, and wore a white nylon and lace street-length gown. Miss West wore a full-length gown. Her accessories also featured rhinestones.

In the next sequence talent was exhibited. Miss Julian recited "The White Magnolia Tree." Her attire was a black pleated cotton skirt, a long sleeve white blouse, and black pumps with "cha-cha" heels. Miss Culver, wearing a pink circular-skirt dress and silver slippers, performed a creative dance to the song "He." Miss Simpson's interpretation of "Between the World and Me" was appreciated very much, according to the applause; she wore a nile-green cotton dress. Miss Thomas, accompanied by Miss Juanita Moon, sang "The Birth of the Blues." Her attire was also highly appreciated. She wore rhinestone earrings, crystal-clear bare backs, and the beige lace suit which she wore in the first sequence. Miss West performed a monologue, in which she portrayed a mother whose son was receiving his first dancing lesson. She wore a white pleated skirt, a yellow blouse, neutral kid flat pumps and silver earrings. The audience applauded very appreciatively after her performance.

The big question is which of these lovely and talented young ladies will reign as "Miss SSC" and who will be her charming attendants.

POINTS TO PONDER

A. Powell Davies in The Temptation to Be Good:

A young lady I have known since she was a baby wrote recently to tell me of her engagement; she was so full of the happiness of it that her letter was almost a song of joy. Then, at the end, she had a moment of misgiving and wondered whether I would think that what she had written was rather silly. So she said, "It is a surprising thought to me, but I suppose all the rest of the world of sensible people think that he is just an ordinary nice young man. It's amazing, but I suppose that this is what they think!"

I wrote back that she need not bother about "sensible" people. I told her that no young man beloved is ever an ordinary young man; that every time two people really love each other the world began all over again; that, always, the world is what our own hearts take to it; that the love we carry with us makes all loveliness come true. And if you think I told her any lies, whoever you are, you have grown older than you needed to, and ought to be ashamed.

—Parker, Struss and Cudahy

Freya Stark in Alexander's Path:

A good traveler does not, I think, much mind the uninteresting places. He is there to be inside things, as a thread is inside the necklace it strings. The world, with unknown and unexpected variety, is a part of his own leisure; and this living participation is what separates the traveler and the tourist, who remains separate, as if he were at a theater, and not himself a part of whatever the show may be.

—Harcourt, Brace

Thomas Paine:

Reputation is what men and women think of us; character is what God and the angels know of us.

Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover:

Today's effort to wrap children in cotton wool and protect them against every risk of school life contrasts with the way children were raised in pioneer days. No parent would then have dreamed of sparing his son the risk of possible accident by not teaching him how to shoot a rifle. Survival depended on the ability to raise one's intellectual capacities to higher levels than were ever before needed; yet many American parents will not accept the risk of their child's hurting himself by failing in a tough curriculum. Ability to think is as important today as ability to shoot was yesterday. Although our country has little admiration for the pampered child of rich parents, now that most of us are rich beyond the dreams of men elsewhere in this world—richer by far than most ruling classes were a few generations ago—now we engage in that very pampering which we most detest.

Margaret Kennedy in The Mida Touch:

The art of happiness, like that of bicycling, should be learned as early as possible. The balance, the unconscious poise, the effortless adjustment, do not come naturally to those who have never known them in childhood.

—Random House

Clifton Fadiman:

England's superior motoring manners are not a sign of superior breeding. They are a sign of good sense. The English are not patient out of lethargy. They are patient because it does not occur to them to confuse energy with friction. The Englishman has discovered that civility, indoctrinated from early childhood, is simply the most inexpensive and efficient reducer of friction.

And so his sign will read: Busy Streets. Please Be Patient and Helpful—two adjectives that strike the American as belonging to literature rather than life. Or Heavy Vehicles: Low Gear Advised — delicately implying that the advisee is a man of judgment. Or Please Have the Courtesy Not to Park Here Unless You Are Citing at These Premises — not an impersonal command to a faceless mass (No Parking!) but a communication from one thoughtful individual to another thoughtful individual.

Thomas Merton in The Seven Storey Mountain:

The truth that many people never understand, until it is too late, is that the more you try to avoid suffering the more you suffer, because smaller and more insignificant things begin to torture you, in proportion to your fear of being hurt.

Spring Captivates Savannah State

By Mamie Green

Spring made its debut at SSC, and everyone is taking advantage of all that comes with such a joyous season. The trees are dressed at their very best, all donned in green leaves and lowly hanging Spanish moss. The grass is brightly green and at morning, fresh with dew. The atmosphere possesses a faint aroma of freshness. The pale-blue sky, ablaze with flowing sun, is pregnant with fluffy cloods, as white as virgin silk.

On the campus, beneath the trees are squirrels scampering to and fro. Dogs of various breeds and sizes are busily chasing squirrels and each other. Chirping birds stream overhead. At the top of the stately-standing flagpole is the flag waving gently whenever a balmy breeze blows.

Scattered around the spacious grounds are cars of various sizes, makes, models and colors. And stepping from those cars are students and faculty members all dressed in the latest fashions. The males seem to be inclined toward the popular cord suits. The females are displayed out in sheaths of various styles, colors and fabrics. The popular can-can slips are also worn. (Of course, they are worn with the circle skirts).

There is really something majestic about this season called spring. Couples are seen strolling to class, from class, to dinner, to the library, to the dormitory or just strolling to be strolling with each other. To find the appropriate words to depict a typical spring day at SSC, one would have to exhaust the largest dictionary, and then there is the possibility that the job would not be completed.

This joyous season promotes "carefreeness," romance, and most of all the urge to study.

No one, except those at SSC can really know what pleasant conditions engulf the campus. And only lovers (those in love with love, Nature and each other) can really appreciate the joy this season brings.

Have you sat in the Alphas' park at night? Well, the mosquitoes are quite bothersome, but the air is so balmy that you nearly forget you're being bitten by those blood thieves.

The members of the SSC family are truly lucky people, for very few people know of the joy and happiness that are all theirs at the beautiful Savannah State College.

The Periscope

By James N. Nevels

Christian A. Herter, newly appointed Secretary of State, charged the Communists with attempting to keep Germany permanently divided. The Secretary spoke at the Geneva Foreign Ministers Conference where he maintained that negotiations on the subject of the Berlin crisis are needed between the East and West.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko introduced a peace treaty which was drafted by the Soviet Union. He indicated that his government would consider any changes in the treaty made by the Western powers. However, he made no efforts to end the East-West deadlock.

On the American scene former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was awarded the Medal of Freedom, which is this country's highest civilian award. Mr. Dulles' cancer illness was recently complicated by an attack of pneumonia.

Periscoping the Steel Strike

In New York City, the man-on-the-street sat it out and waiched for the appointed day, June 30. That was the day the United Steel Workers, comprising more than 500,000 workers, planned to execute their strike against the steel industry. Negotiations were taking place in the city of New York.

The workers' objective was higher wages. However, spokesmen for the industry stood firm for eight days, in opposition to the union's goals. On the ninth day, the labor union negotiators agreed to end the strike for an increase of 30 cents an hour, effective November 1, 1960.

The ABC's of Job Hunting

You've left the campus behind you, whether it be permanently or just for a summer job.

You're "in the market now" forearmed with the experience and knowledge gained in school to help you meet the "outside world." Now, no matter how the job begins, you're ready to put your classroom knowledge into actual every-day working practice.

How do you go about finding the right job? Where do you start? What can you offer? Remember, to begin with, finding a job is an experience common virtually to everyone. With proper planning you need not become a "jumping jack" from one job to another if you know what to expect from prospective employers and how to meet their needs you'll find you can become profitably employed in the field of your true choice and grow in it contributing both to your job and to yourself.

Now, is there an "art" to job-seeking? Most people know more about buying a car or refrigerator than they know about finding a job. Yes, there is a method. It takes systematic and organized effort. And as a newcomer to the ranks of the working folks employers will judge you on certain basic points. According to the Mennen Company, whose men's toiletries help to relate your good grooming to success, they list the following as the Basic ABC steps for the jobseeker to follow:

1. Constructive Attitude:
"Sell" yourself. Be confident. Have the right attitude in wanting to make good.

2. Know What You Have To Offer:
Analyze what you really like to do best. Study your interests. Be prepared to talk about them during an interview. Knowing, then, that the first product you have to sell is your self, you must then find the market for yourself.

3. Learn About Field:
Based on your interest in a field learn as much about it as possible. Asking family, relatives, older people in business about certain fields, and your vocational guidance counsellor gives you insight into preparing yourself for the needs of the field of your choice.

4. Write Application:
It is advisable to write to personnel directors of companies in your area that interest you. State your school record, and previous work record, if any. State your interests and service record in school. Look for relationship between past training or experience and relate to job desired.

5. Getting Started:
Sources for job leads can be found in your classified directory, asking family friends about job openings, through your school employment bureau.

6. Arrive Early:
First impressions count. Arrive at interview five minutes early. The interviewer will respect your interest. Lateness is a bad strike against you to begin with.

7. Appearance Counts:
Be neat, clean, hair combed, fingernails clean, well-pressed clothes, shined shoes, avoid gaudy jewels, makeup. Using men's toiletries, such as Mennen, will keep you well-shaved, well groomed to reflect to a prospective employer that you also have the type of well-groomed mind that makes for success in his company.

8. Advance Planning:
Be definite in your answers to interviewer. Sit up straight, feet firmly on ground. Think before answering a question. Prepare yourself to discuss school, work record, special interests which could contribute to your getting ahead on the job.

9. Prepare Resume:
"Sell" interviewer on his need to hire you by showing him past work record. List jobs, dates of jobs, names of employers, kinds of work you did, reason you left. For references, give names and addresses of three reliable people who know you and your work.

10. Be Wise:
Be confident, enthusiastic, but don't bluff. Use good English, and speak distinctly. But don't talk too much. Listen carefully. Be polite and tactful. Show interest in asking about the company and its operations. Don't argue with the employer. Don't mention personal problems, home, or money problems. Call interviewer by last, not first name. Don't say "I'll take anything." Be flexible and willing, but indicate your preferences. Be realistic in discussing wages.

11. Understand Employer's Needs:
Be grown-up, businesslike if it seems you won't get the job. Seek employer's advice about other jobs with the firm which may come up.

12. Keep "At It":
Having "hurdled" the experience of your first interview you have now learned the ABC's of job hunting. Because you've learned, too, that you may not get the first job you seek keep up your courage, perserverance, and "keep at it." You're bound to connect—and the next interview may very well turn up a better job than the first offered!

Opportunity Is Richer Than Ever For Graduates, Says Will Durant

For from declining, opportunity for the young graduate is richer than ever in today's world, notes famed philosopher Will Durant in the June Reader's Digest.

To make the most of this opportunity, Dr. Durant advises, in effect: stay healthy, get married and learn when to keep quiet.

Sickness is a crime which in most cases indicates that you have done something physiologically foolish, Dr . Durant points out. "Perhaps one of the cardinal errors of our land and time is that we continue in a sedentary life the diet that once served to provide muscle for an active one."

To remedy this excess of "imports over exports," exercise for at least an hour each day, he advises. "Cut the lawn, clean the car, take a walk."

Early marriage—"as soon as you can keep the wolf from the door" is another stimulant to success. "You will be ten years to choose wisely, but you won't be much wiser in these matters at 40." But let at least six months elapse between first acquaintance and marriage, he says.

Finally, learn when it is wise not to speak. "If you can't say good and encouraging things, say nothing. Nothing is always a clever thing to say."

Having offered these guides to success, Dr. Durant warns not to make too much of success. "Build an economic basis under your life, but don't get caught in the ratrap of money-making as a profession. That, like sex, can be a consuming fever, and it brings no lasting happiness."

The article, "Young Man—Your World," is condensed from a commencement address delivered by Dr. Durant at a Claremont, California school.

Sidney A. Jones Delivers Address at SSC

Sidney A. Jones, prominent businessman and owner of the Sidney A. Jones Fueral Home, Savannah, addressed the Savannah State College Family during the regular assembly hour Wednesday, June 24.

Mr. Jones chose as his subject, "Kindness and Courage." He began by quoting Lady Astor who states, "Kindness in another's trouble and courage in your own." Next he presented an analysis of kindness and courage and stated some of the advantages of exhibiting the two. He stated "What man can preceive, he can achieve."

Reverend E. O. S. Cleveland, pastor of Saint John Baptist Church, delivers the 81st Baccalaureate address of Savannah State College.

81st Baccalaureate Held at SSC

The eighty-first Baccalaureate Service of Savannah State College was held Sunday afternoon, May 31, 1959, at 5:00 p.m. in Meldrim Auditorium.

The address to the eighty-one members of the graduating class was delivered by Dr. E. O. S. Cleveland, pastor of the Saint John Baptist Church, Savannah, Georgia. Dr. Cleveland chose as his topic, "A Set Purpose," based on the First Chapter and the eighth verse of Daniel.

Dr. Cleveland told the graduates that anyone with a set purpose . . . an unchangeable goal . . . cannot be defeated permanently. He cautioned the graduates to stay close to God, and allow God to lead them and to keep faith in their ideals.

Dr. William K. Payne, President of Savannah State College, introduced the speaker. Also included on the program was the invocation by Rev. A. E. Peacock; selections, "He Shall Come Down Like Rain," and "Soon Ah Will Be Done," by the Savannah State College Choral Society, under the direction of Dr. Coleridge Braithwaite; and "Pilgrim's Chorus," by the Women's Ensemble, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Harrington.

Dr. Howard Thurman, Marsh Chapel, Delivers Commencement Address

By Sherman Roberson

Dr Howard W. Thurman, Dean, Marsh Chapel, Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts, was the principal speaker at the 81st Commencement exercise of Savannah State College, held in Meldrim Auditorium at 11:00 on June 3.

Dr. Thurman chose as his thesis, "Seek After Truth." He told the eighty-one graduates from twenty-eight cities that the key to the outer world lies within the individual. Though one may not be as road looking as one would like to be or as learned as one would like to be, but seeing how one is stuck with one's self, he had well accept this fact and get acquainted with himself. He further stated that in order to accept yourself you must accept responsibility and grow up. The definition of growing up according to Dr. Thurman is ". . . Learning how to accept the time interval between the desires of an individual and the fulfillment of the desires."

He stated that you must be a seeker of truth in the world and society in which you live and in order to do so you must understand with a brain that is as hard as ice and with a heart as warm as that of a mother.

Dr. Thurman stated that freedom is a sense of alternative and option. "As long as you have a choice, you are free." But when you lose your sense of choice, though you still eat, sleep and produce your kind . . . you are dead! Die poor, unknown, unloved, perhaps, but shut your eyes to nothing that seems to you to be the truth. . . ."

Included in the program were the invocation by Rev. P. A. Patterson, pastor, Butler Presbyterian Church; selections, "The Beatitudes" and "Great and Marvellous Are Thy Works," by the Savannah State College Choral Society and "On Great Lone Hills," by the Men's Ensemble; presentation of the speaker by President W. K. Payne, and induction of Graduates into the Alumni Association by Mr. Leonard H. Law, President, National Alumni Association.

Dr. Howard W. Thurman, Dean, Marsh Chapel, Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts, delivers the 81st Commencement address of Savannah State College.

Dr. W. K. Payne Addresses Family

Dr. William K. Payne, President of Savannah State College, delivered the keynote address during the first all-College Assembly of the Summer Quarter on June 16, in Meldrim Auditorium.

Dr. Payne stated that in the past much emphasis was placed on the type of education, but in the present day the emphasis has shifted from type to quality. For if our society is to survive, the institutions of today must provide men and women with a quality of education that will enable them to derive solutions for the problems existing in this era.

He set forth that the calibre of education, the quality of learning received by individuals, will deal a deciding blow in relation to the alleviation of world problems.

He cautioned those enrolled in summer school to strive to attain a quality of education that will be representative of themselves, their country and all concerned.

Points to Ponder

Louis Pasteur:

Never try to prove to the other person that you are right. It is human nature to object to anyone who insists he is right. Rather, always present your arguments in such a manner as to do your best to prove that you are wrong. If you follow this approach, especially when you are sure you are right, the selfsame person you are trying to convince will bring up strong evidence in behalf of your cause and prove to himself and to the world that your stand is correct.

Quoted by O. A. Battista in How to Enjoy Work and Get More Fun Out of Life (Prentice-Hall)

Robert Louis Stevenson in Virginibus Puerisque and Familiar Studies of Men and Books:

If a wife is talented as a woman, it will not much matter if she is talented in nothing else. She must know her mystery as femme, and have a fine touch for the affections. It is more important that a person should talk pleasantly of common friends and the things around him one nothings of the day, than that she should speak with the tongues of men and angels; for a while together by the fire eighteen more frequently than marriage than the presence of a distinguished foreigner to dinner.

—Dutton

Clarence Day in ????:

The world of books is the most remarkable creation of man. Nothing else that he builds lasts. Monuments fall; nations perish; civilizations grow old and die out; and, after an era of darkness, new races build on others. But in the world of books are volumes that have seen this happen again and again, and yet live on, still young, still as fresh as the day they were written, still telling men's hearts of the hearts of men centuries dead.

—Yale University Press

T. A. Boyd in Professional Amateur, the Biography of Charles Franklin Kettering:

Said "Boss" Kettering: "Research is a high-hat word that scares a lot of people. It needn't. It is nothing but a state of mind —a friendly, welcoming attitude toward change. It is the problem-solving mind as contrasted with the worried, let-well-enough-alone mind. It is the composer mind instead of the fiddler mind. It is the tomorrow mind instead of the yesterday mind."

—Dutton

Clifton Fadiman:

The great teacher is rarely "popular." He is interested in something more important than winning the affections of an unending procession of young people. No great teacher is demonstrable, in the sense that a successful politician must be. Mark Van Doren, who taught me English at Columbia, calmly assumed a class composed entirely of lovely thinkers. At first that was embarrassing, but after a while you got used to it, and pretty soon you found yourself saying something practically publishable. I can remember philosophy classes, presided over by another fine teacher, the late Irwin Edman, in which football heroes suddenly, if unpremeditatedly, became adults simply because Edman refused to treat them as anything else. Memorable is that quick look of panic mingled with amazed delight that would spread over their pleasant open faces at the realization that they had given birth to an idea. By this look you may know that education is in process.

Despite Nature's Ways

Many students, from neighboring areas and various states, have enrolled at Savannah State College for the Summer Quarter despite the ways of nature.

It is a logical assumption that these students considered the practical consequences of attending summer school before making a decision.

Even though, during the summer months at Savannah State, the mercury rises far above 90 degrees and sometimes above the 100-degree mark, the classrooms are hot and humid, the various types of insects are plentiful, and various other forms of discomfort are to be encountered, the values to be received outweigh these conditions by a hundred-fold.

Along with her discomforts, nature provides many favorable conditions. Nature has produced an environment at Savannah State College that may be equaled by a few, but surpassed by none. The moss laden trees, songs produced by birds, the rays of the sun that seem to kiss the nearby marsh and many other colorful surroundings, enchant all of the inhabitants of this "college by the sea."

It is hoped that the students enrolled at Savannah State College these summer days have chosen this institution not because of the beauty that nature has shed upon it, but because of the educational benefits that it attempts to provide for its students.

Sometimes, when judging educational institutions, one says that a certain institution is very "poor." The fact is that the individual has failed to decompose the institution into its components. An institution as defined by Webster's New World Dictionary is "an organization having a social, religious or educational purpose . . . the building housing such an organization." In this definition the key word is "organization." This term as defined by the same reference is ". . . A body of persons organized for some specific purpose. . . ." According to this definition, the statement, "That a certain institution is very poor," could easily be changed to read, "That is a very poor group of individuals."

This statement refers to a situation where the instructor is not assuming his responsibility to the teaching profession nor the students involved and also where the student is not assuming his responsibility to himself nor the instructor.

It is the student's duty to demand the "goods" that he is paying for. "The student must bring some to get more," his

The First Boston Jazz Festival, sponsored by the Sheraton Hotel system and produced by George Wein, will be held late this summer. The Sheraton Hotel Festival will be held in the 35,000 capacity Fenway Park and will offer some big names in jazz. The dates of the festival are August 21, 22, 23. BILLIE HOLLIDAY IS HOSPITALIZED . . .

Hospitalized with a serious liver and heart condition after distasteful hassles with two New York institutions, Billie Holliday was under medical treatment when police charged her with possession of narcotics in her hospital room.

Forty-four years old now and broken in health, Billie Holliday, one of the greatest singers Jazz ever produced, was giving a sad illustration of what Shakespeare meant by "the law's delay." A New York newspaper had for its headlines, "Singer Billie Holliday Is Dying." To some of us, they were talking about "our girl," our non-expendable Billie. And what was Billie doing while such a sensational report was being made? Well, Billie was sitting up in a room at the Metropolitan Hospital in New York City. On Wednesday, June 3, Dr. Caminer of Metropolitan Hospital confirmed for the second time that Billie's illness had no connection with drugs. After seventy-two hours in the hospital, she had shown no symptoms of withdrawal. The New York paper then stated that Billie is now "straight." It was then known that "Our gal," Billie Holliday, was a long way from dead. She is now thinking about the work she has to do recording the sound track of the film based on her life this summer.

J. J. JOHNSON "CAUGHT IN THE ACT" . . .

The new Basin Street East is attempting to occupy a middle ground, midway between Broadways' Birdland and the intimacy of the Embers. The quiet subtlety of the J. J. Johnson Quintet is well suited to this purpose. They play good, listenable jazz without being too aggressive about it.

On the opening night, the J. J. Johnson Quintet's first tune was a number entitled, "Tune Up" (which was just about what the title indicated), Cole Porter's "I've Got You Under My Skin," and J. J.'s interpretation of "Star Dust" were next. J. J. played the latter in a very modern vein with profound creativeness. The members of the group were J. J. Johnson, trombone; Cliff Jordan, tenor sax; Albert Heath, drums; Cedar Walton, piano; and James De Brest, bass.

Teachers Study Mass Communications

The Mass Media of Communications class under the direction of Mrs. Luetta C. Upshur, assistant professor of languages and literature, is composed of thirteen students, eight in-service teachers and five regular students. The purpose of the class is to analyze the media in terms of content, method and psychology.

Members of the class are as follows: Jeanette Shatteen, instructor, Mary Jackson Elementary School, Statesboro; Pharestine Appling, Nahunta Elementary School, Nahunta; Mary Lester, Unadilla Elementary School, Unadilla; Rebecca Gray, senior, social science major, Tifton; Edith White, senior, business education major, Hilton Head; Ethel Frazier, instructor, Ludowici; Christine Welcome, senior, social science major, Ludowici; Eula Lamar, Maggie Califf High School, Gray; Alvin Collins, senior, English major, Waycross; Sworen Smalls, Tattnall County Industrial School, Reidsville; Mattie Lee, instructor, Savannah; Delores Dorsey, Peaboby High School, Eastman.

The group has analyzed radio and television programs according to content. This was done through the use of televisions and radios in and out of class.

In-Service Teachers Give Demonstrations

The in-service teachers enrolled in the workshop in Education 461 and 462 conducted demonstrations in the areas of language arts, arithmetic and social studies.

Mrs. Dorothy Jamerson, a member of the Sol Johnson faculty, gave the initial demonstration in the area of language arts. She worked from the sub-unit title "Exploring Natural Resources Through the Language Arts." With the use of recordings and pictures she related to the students how people in the Philippine Islands live and some of the uses they make of their natural resources.

Mr. June Hart, instructor at Aaron Elementary School, Millen, Georgia, demonstrated methods of teaching arithmetic. He explored various methods and fundamentals suitable for lower and upper elementary groups.

Mr. Andrew Bowers, LaGrange, Georgia, used "Social Studies In Many Areas" as a working unit theme. He concentrated his discussion in civics, geography and history. Mr. Bowers simplified his presentation by making reference to the three major institutions of learning, the church, the home and the school.

Miss Clemmie S. McAlister, instructor at Warrenton Elementary and High School, Warrenton, Georgia, gave a demonstration in the area of natural science. She used "The Air We Live In" as her subtitle. She demonstrated that the air is indispensable to life. . . . Without it living things (plants and animals) could not survive.

Mr. Willie W. Dright and Miss Shirley Thomas, graduates of the class of '58, cut wedding cake after taking marital vows.

Bourjaily, Vance N., The Violated. New York: The Dial Press, Inc. 1958. 599 pp.

A Review by Yvonne Hooks

The Boar's Head Club at SSC has recently read, discussed and recommended for your reading enjoyment a novel by Vance Nye Bourjaily, The Violated.

Vance Bourjaily is the author of two previous novels, The End of My Life and The Hound of the Earth, and was co-founder of the literary publication, Discovery. A sometime drama critic, television dramatist, and newspaperman, Mr. Bourjaily is now serving as visiting lecturer at the University of Iowa Writers' Workshop.

Although the drifting plot of the novel is not pointedly emphasized, it serves to combine and interweave a stimulating group of people whom the author vividly characterizes.

The novel tells the story of how four individuals whose lives suddenly connect in the Ivy League years before the war when they meet, largely through Tom Beninger's effort, fascinate, hate, love, help, and hurt each other.

The Violated is meritorious because of Bourjaily's perceptive, often moving, characterizations of brilliant Tom Beninger, his pretty sister, Ellen; his friend, wealthy playboy Guy Cinturon; and tough Eddie Bissle.

The author's Fitzgerald-like atmosphere sadly surrounds Ellen Beninger, a pretty, vivacious girl, who in maturonly years has become a shadowy, senseless alcoholic.

Bourjaily evokes humor in his portrait of Guy Cinturon, the wealthy playboy from Mexico who diligently keeps a diary of conquests with a page for every girl he has known.

One character who draws striking attention is Eddie Bissle, in his words, "crud." In tough, dwarfish Bissle, the reader sees a dirth of faith, hope, love and happiness, a 5'5" thump of unrelenting bitterness, hate, and insensitivity. Author Bourjaily explains:

"Eddie Bissle's heart broke young so he throw the damn cub scout pieces away."

The author's characterization of Tom points up the tenderness, gentleness, confusion of a brilliant, warm youth. The reader sees Tom search for happiness, and living. The reader sees Tom fail at jobs, aspirations, and hopes. Then the reader feels anguished defeat when this climate of search, confusion, and failure consumes Tom.

In the words of the author these people are violated

". . . by their inability to communicate, to love, to comprehend, to create — violated by neurotic commitments to preposterous goals or, more tragically, to no goals at all."

The author's style is one of frank brevity which combines compact realism and harshness with subtle humor.

Elementary Science Teachers Study Electrons at SSC

During the first days of July, the teachers in the Elementary Science Workshop studied the atom and its uses in everyday life. They hoped to gain knowledge from these experiences that would be useful to them as they attempt to teach pupils on the elementary levels the concepts pertaining to atomic energy.

W. V. Winters, Professor of Physics, Savannah State College, was the first consultant used in this study. He introduced this unit of study with a lecture-demonstration on the atom. Mr. Winters used the hydrogen atom in his demonstration since it is the lightest one and is more easily demonstrated. He diagramed this atom along with others, showing their internal structures: the nuclei, protons, neutrons and electrons, and how the protons are located within the nuclei and how the electrons and nuclei travel in their respective orbits around the nuclei.

Mr. Winters then explained the principles of nuclear fission, the difference between a stable and unstable atom, and isotopes, their uses and formation. He also demonstrated the use of the Geiger counter in determining and locating radio-active material.

The second consultant for this workshop was Mr. Ware T. Beall, a specialist in science education and a traveling science teacher. Mr. Beall continued the work that was initiated by Mr. Winters. He concerned himself primarily with the electrical charges located in the outer orbits of atoms which are known as electrons. He demonstrated how these electrons, known to all as electricity, are harnessed and used in our everyday living.

He also showed a list of experiments that could be used in demonstrating the concepts of electricity on all grade levels to achieve the objectives listed in Science for Georgia Schools.

"This Is Kelly Weaver"

By Robert Bess

This is Kell Weaver! Savannah State College students patiently await each weekend to be enchanted by such musical numbers as "Moonlight in Vermont," "What A Difference the Day Makes," and many other jazz selections by their favorite artists being played by one of Savannah's foremost disc-jockeys, Kelly Weaver, over WSOK, 1230 on the radio dial.

Kelly Weaver is a native of Pine Tops, North Carolina, where he was graduated from George Washington Carver High School. He matriculated at Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia, for two and a half years, with a major in Biology. His education was interrupted by military conscription.

He has served in the United States Air Force for three and a half years and at present is stationed at Hunter Air Force Base, engaged in the area of Finance Personnel Service. During his tour of duty, he has traveled to such faraway places as Sidi-Slimane Air Force Base, French Morocco, and a host of others.

Weaver's experience in the field of communication includes high school training, training at the Armed Service Radio School, and his present work at WSOK. "Kell," a talkative, ambitious, and easy-to-know kind of person, says that for his personal listening, he prefers progressive jazz, but as a disc-jockey he can appreciate practically all types of music.

The staff of the Tiger's Roar of Savannah State College salutes Kelly Weaver and wishes for his continued success.
